IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

Kennedy Alerts U.S. Forces For Possible Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy alerted land, sea and air units Saturday for possible movement into Southeast Asia if further developments in crisis-ridden Laos makes this necessary.

The first step was taken Friday with the dispatch into Southeast Asian waters of an aircraft carrier task force of the U.S. 7th Fleet, believed to be carrying a 2,000-man reinforced Marine battalion.

THAILAND ALLY

These troops could be landed in Thailand, a U.S. ally under the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, by arrangement with that country.

Exactly what use may be made of the U.S. forces involved in the precautionary moves is still unclear and will depend on further decisions in the light of the developing situation, informants said.

Whether American troops actually will go into Laos was described as depending upon what the Communists and the pro-Western Laotian forces do in the immediate future.

Officials refused at this juncture however, to exclude the possibility that the United States would intervene directly in the little country.

An American battle group reported to number about 1,000 soldiers, already deployed in Thailand, is said to be one of the units involved in Kennedy's precautionary moves. The troops are there by agreement with the Thai government following recent SEATO military maneuvers.

Officials said this group is moving up toward the Mekong River border between Laos and Thailand by Communist or pro-Communist troops from Laos.

In Kennedy's strategic planning, the Mekong River, at least so far as it forms the border between Laos and Thailand, constitutues a line beyond which he does not intend to allow Red forces to pass.

Growing Communist advances in the tiny Laotian kingdom were the subject of two conferences Kennedy held Saturday with his

Algeria Acts To Wipe Out Secret Army

Moslem Troops Are Called Out; Voting Date Set

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The Algerian Provisional Executive called out thousands of Moslem troops Saturday night to smash European Secret Army Organization terrorists and decided, informants said, to hold Algeria's self-determination referendum July 1.

The referendum is almost certain to bring Algeria under full Moslem rule and clear the way for independence from France. The secret army, engaged in a fierce campaign of Moslem slaughter, is fighting to keep Algeria French.

OPPOSE DELAY

The informants said the Provisional Executive—a group of interim administrators — is determined to go ahead with the referendum despite possible stepped-up secret army action.

In the referendum, inhabitants of Algeria will determine whether they want independence. This vast North African territory has about nine million Moslems and one million Europeans.

The referendum was provided for in the March 18 accords at Evian between France and the Algerian provisional government. The accords brought a cease-fire in the 7½-year Algerian war for independence.

The French people gave overwhelming approval to the accords in an April 8 referendum.

Informants said the referendum in Algeria would be followed by an election on July 22 for a Constitutional Legislature. The Provisional Executive would then turn over its governing powers to a government selected by the legislature.

The Algerian provisional government, set up in neighboring Tunisia, also would turn over its powers to the legislature.

The Provisional Executive, based at nearby Rocher Noir, has begun drafting a constitution for

Deficit-Troubled Solons To Open 1962 Legislature

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

A troubled Louisiana Legislature will open the 1962 regular session at noon Monday facing a multitude of problems topped by a $73-million deficit.

Both houses will convene at noon at the capitol in Baton Rouge to begin a 60-day struggle against the state's mounting debt at the halfway mark under the administration of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis.

While the governor's legislative budget committee has recommended a $93 million cut to balance the budget for the next fiscal year, Davis still has not said how he plans to solve the deficit.

FREE HAND

Should he choose to let the Legislature resolve the deficit, it could lead to the most independent Legislature in years.

The budget committee, after days of thumbing through the state's financial records at the capitol, has recommended throwing out some $71-million in extra spending requests made by state agencies.

In addition, the committee recommended another $22-million in reduced spending, which, if approved by the Legislature, would mark the first time in over 18 years that the state has reduced its budget.

While the committee's recom-

36 Injured In 'Chain' Accidents

WOODBURY, N.J. (AP) — A dense fog descended Saturday over the southern section of the New Jersey Turnpike, setting the stage for a chain of accidents described as one of the worst pileups in the highway's 10-year history.

State police said at between 50 and 75 automobiles, a bus, a horse van and several trucks were involved in a mass pileup in both the north and southbound lanes.

At least 36 persons were injured, nine seriously enough to be detained in hospitals.

The chain of accidents occurred about 8 a.m.

Police said the pileup apparently started with a crash of a bus and a tractor outfit used to haul horses.

Traffic was backed up about three miles in the northbound lane. The south bound lane was less seriously affected.

State police said the fog rolled over the highway with such rapidity that accidents were already happening before the speed limit could be reduced from 60 miles per hour.

One vehicle involved was a chartered bus transporting a group of women from Zion Lutheran church in Philadelphia to Baltimore. Several of the women were injured.

300 Reds Slain In Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI) — Waves of South Vietnamese troops flown into battle by U. S. military helicopters killed 300 Communist guerrillas Saturday with few casualties themselves. The action was one of the biggest of the year.

Two U. S. Army H21 helicopters were shot down but were recovered and no Americans were injured. The craft were from the 57th Helicopter Company. Marine helicopters also participated.

The action took place in Kien Phong province about 75 miles southwest of Saigon.

Informed sources said government rangers, regular army troops and civil guards (national guardsmen) belonging to the Vietnamese 7th infantry division took the extremely heavy toll of the guerrillas in five separate clashes.

The fighting raged through areas covered by high reeds and flooded rice paddies in an operation designed to disorganize and wipe out guerrilla units based over the wide-ranging area.

The guerrilla units were located by Vietnamese government L19 observation planes or through previous intelligence estimates, the sources said, and the attack units were dropped on the targets by waves of from five to six helicopters each.

The sources said a total of 28 helicopters were used in the operation and that 2,000 Vietnamese troops took part including some forces used to cut off the guerrillas' line of retreat.

The attack force itself was reported made up from eight to 10 Vietnamese companies.

Two Senate Probers Fly To See Estes

Decline To Say Where Meeting Will Take Place

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Two close-mouthed Senate investigators flew into Dallas Saturday headed for an interview with Billie Sol Estes.

The investigators, Donald F. O'Donnell, acting chief counsel, and Paul E. Kamerick, assistant chief counsel of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, declined to say when and where the interview will take place.

NO ELABORATION

They admitted that a time and place has already been decided on, but refused to elaborate on the grounds that "Estes' lawyer doesn't want publicity."

"A press release was put out in Washington today saying that two investigators had been sent here to interview Billie Sol," O'Donnell said shortly after he stepped off a plane at Love Field, adding, "and that's us."

The veteran Senate investigator wouldn't say how long he and Kamerick would be in Dallas or where they would be going from here.

Quoting the release that had been handed out before he left Washington, he pointed out that Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., of the Investigations subcommittee in authorizing a full-scale investigation and public hearings."

O'Donnell said that all records relating to Estes dealings have been subpoenaed by the subcommittee. "These included, I believe, 46 accounts in nine different banks, records of Estes' business enterprises and long-distance toll records," O'Donnell added.

Noting the Jerry R. Holleman resignation, O'Donnell said that Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg had notified Sen. McClellan by letter Friday that he would have his full cooperation in the investigation.

Holleman, assistant secretary of labor, resigned his $20,000-a-year job Friday night after saying he had accepted $1,000 as a personal gift from Estes to help meet his Washington living expenses.

In Washington Saturday, McClellan told reporters that he be-

MAYOR J. ALLAN NORRIS . . . . Wins Re-Election

New Council Is Elected In Primary

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

J. Allan Norris Saturday rode the crest of a 313 vote majority into a third consecutive four - year term as mayor of West Monroe. But he'll have a brand new board of aldermen.

With balloting numerically nearly the same as April 7 first primary totals, the chief executive put together mixed leads in six of the town's eight precincts to down former mayor C. C. Bell Jr.

Complete but unofficial run-off returns Saturday night gave him 1866 votes to Bell's 1553.

NEW COUNCIL

The high five and their totals among 10 first primary survivors running for seats on the board of aldermen were: Earl Duncan, 2037; Mrs. Joyce T. Smith, 1958; George Wylie, 1900; Charles Anding, 1756; and A. L. DeLoach, 1556.

Incumbents A. P. Burkett, Ben Farmer, R. C. Jolissaint and Loy Heard lost bids for re-election, as did C. E. Ponder in the first primary. Burkett, with 1542 votes, barely was nudged from a seat on the board by DeLoach who tallied 1556.

The hopefuls outvoted Saturday and their totals were: besides Burkett, Ben Farmer, 1328; G. B. Folds, 1232; Jolissaint, 1193; and Heard, 1180.

A temporarily touch - and-go mayor's race found principal Norris strength in precincts one, two, three, eight, nine and eleven, where he amassed winning support of 49, 14, 3, 31, 127 and 240 votes, respectively. In

Employment For Ouachita Parish Rises

April employment in Ouachita Parish showed a continued rise, with a gain of 125 over March and 650 over April 1961, the Louisiana Division of Employment has announced.

There are 28,325 non-agricultural job-holders in the parish, the sector which showed the rise. Agricultural employment was 3500 in April, in March and in April last year.

Unemployment and job openings also show the same optimistic statistics for the parish.

DOWN 300

Jobless workers numbered 300 less than during April of 1961, and 375 less than in March. There were 2525 persons unemployed, 10.6 per cent under April of 1961.

April's demands for labor continued to remain 52 per cent above last year with "very little change in comparison with March."

"Although parish labor demand does not meet supply numerically, there is continuing demand for professional workers, especially engineers," the report said. Experienced stenographers and secretaries are in short supply. Some 567 workers were placed on jobs in April.

Meanwhile, over the state, the Louisiana Division of Employment Security in Baton Rouge says that non - agricultural jobs remained firm during March.

Louisiana employment was 777,800 in mid-March, up 1000 over February and 8300 over March a year ago. March's increase was attributed entirely to manufacturing.

Hourly earnings of production workers in the state dropped from a $2.28 to a $2.26 average along with weekly hours, which dropped from 41.4 to 40.7. These two factors caused a decrease in weekly earnings to $91.98 from $94.39.

Louisiana unemployment in March showed a 6.8 per cent decrease from February, falling to 80,400 persons. By March 15, the insured unemployment total was

Winnfield Re-Elects Mrs. Allen

Voters in six northeast Louisiana towns went to the polls Saturday in Democratic primary run - off elections with Winnfield Mayor Mary W. Allen's victory in her first political test the most significant.

Winnfield voters returned Mayor Allen to office with a 1021 vote majority over J. D. Taylor, who polled 953 votes. Mrs. Allen was appointed in 1960 by Gov. Earl Long following her husband's death.

Wilbur B. Evans with 1137 votes and Kenneth W. Henderson with 1255 won the aldermen's posts open in the run - off, completing a removal of all incumbent aldermen from office. Jesse L. Corley, Robert E. Baker and Tracey L. Harrel, Sr. were elected aldermen in the first primary.

Winn Parish voters apparently endorsed a 7-mill, 5-year school tax renewal as seven of 10 wards reported 395 voters with property assessed at $642,729 voting for renewal and 24 voters with property assessed at $63,220 against.

Machine shop operator Emmett Rogers was elected alderman in Jonesboro, winning the only post contested in the run - off. Rogers' 303 votes defeated Eldon Brown with 196.

In Bonita Horace J. Moore won the mayoralty run - off, defeating M. R. Bolin 73-53. Moore is a sig-

U.S. Fires 10th Shot In Pacific

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States exploded nuclear weapons in the air over the Pacific and underground at its testing site in Nevada Saturday.

The announcement said both were of intermediate yield.

The Pacific shot, the 10th conducted in the current series there, was dropped from an airplane near Christmas Island at about noon Saturday.

"Detonation was in the intermediate range" (roughly equal to 100,000 pounds of TNT), the joint announcement by the Atomic Energy Commission and the Defense Department said.

The underground Nevada test was described as of "intermediate yield." No other details were given except that it was the 32nd shot in a continuing series there that started last September.

Indications that a Nevada test had been conducted came earlier in the day when the California Institute of Technology reported recording an earth tremor of "moderate" intensity near Las Vegas, Nev. A seismologist at the Pasadena institute said it might have been an atomic blast.

The United States also exploded two nuclear devices Friday, both in the Pacific. It was learned Saturday that one was a successful test of a fast-firing, ship - launched nuclear anti-submarine rocket that is to be placed aboard more than 100 ships.

Mrs. Ida McVay, 79, died in a local rest home Saturday night.

A native of Monticello, Ark., Mrs. McVay had lived in Monroe since 1922 and was a member of Faith Baptist Church of Monroe.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night, but will be under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home with burial in Riverview Cemetery.

Mrs. McVay is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Paul LeBlanc, Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. Keith Messenger, Cortez, Colo., and Mrs. Arthur Parker, Milwaukee, Wis.; two sons, F. E. (Pete) McVay, Lawtel, and Fred McVay, Monroe; and a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Clear, Sunny Expected Today

Voters went to the polls in West Monroe under cloudless skies and beaming sunshine Saturday as the weatherman's veracity held good for another day.

It's more of the same again today; warm, sunny and clear weather is predicted. The mercury will again rise to nearly 90 today, with a predicted 60-65 for tonight.

Slow winds will be coming out of the south at approximately 5-15 mph.

Driver Butane Explosion Hero

MORGAN CITY, La. (UPI) — Three persons were injured Saturday when a butane gas truck exploded, including the truck driver who risked his life to remove about 10 children playing in the area.

Authorities said the driver, Eddie Francis, was delivering butane to the home of Mrs. Robert Daigle when he detected a leaking valve on the truck's butane tank.

Francis apparently realized an explosion was imminent. He grabbed up children in the area and carried them out of danger, making several such trips. On the last trip, the truck exploded. He suffered severe burns over much of his body.

Mrs. Daigle and Fire Capt. George Boudier also were injured.

'UNPLANNED, UNWANTED'

Father Confesses Suffocating Baby

DOWNEY, Calif. (AP) — A 29-year-old machinist told police Saturday that he suffocated the youngest of his four children with a plastic bag because the child, a month-old girl, was "unplanned and unwanted."

Booked on suspicion of murder was Charles W. Furnish.

"My wife never wanted the child," Furnish told detectives tearfully Saturday morning. "She was a thorn in her side. The baby was just breaking up our marriage."

Furnish said he considered arranging an accident in which the child, Star, might be killed.

Then last Wednesday, Furnish said, he came home from work and found that his wife, Nancy, 28, was ill in bed. The children, Dawn, 8, Charles Jr., 5, Dusk, 4, and Star, were unfed.

"I went to a drive-in, got some hamburgers and salad and fed the kids," he said.

Awakening in the middle of the night, the father said, he went into the kitchen, got a plastic bag and took it quietly into Star's room. He said he picked up the child, put the bag over her head and placed her back in the crib. Then he smoked a cigarette and returned to bed.

At work the next day, Furnish received his wife's customary 11 a.m. telephone call.

"When she didn't mention Star, I thought it was all a bad dream," said Furnish. "I thought maybe I hadn't done it at all.

But when she called again shortly after noon and said the baby was dead, I knew it was real."

Police said Mrs. Furnish, a late riser, did not realize the child was dead until just before she called her husband.

ALL 70 OR OLDER

'Adopted Mothers' Feted By Merchant

LEHIGHTON, Pa. (AP) — Dick Edwards, a jolly merchant who makes as much of Mother's Day as children do of Christmas, gave another of his parties Saturday, for a gathering of 400 adopted mothers all 70 or older.

He does this every year, the day before Mothers Day, hiring a hall and regaling the senior ladies with the finest food, entertainment and surprises he can provide.

It is the 60-year-old Edwards' way of saying thanks for the memory of his own mother, who died 28 years ago.

He says a couple of years after her death he found the meaning of the day was slipping away from him. Determined to do something about it, he had an inspiration: Why not seek out mothers who for the most part were on their own, lonely, separated from family?

He gave his first party in 1939, entertaining 15 mothers with simple table fare and a session of sentimental songs and folksy, instrumental music. Now it's all more elaborate—Saturday's main course was turkey—with programs lasting up to five hours.

In recent years the piece de resistance has been what Edwards calls the big dramatic surprise—the reunion of a mother and a close relative after long separation.

This year, Mrs. George Magee of neighboring Summit Hill was reunited with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Henry of Spokane, Wash., after a 12-year separation. And for the first time Mrs. Magee saw her three grandchildren: Cindy, 4, Jeffrey, 7; and John, 8.

Voters went to the polls in West Monroe under cloudless skies and beaming sunshine Saturday as the weatherman's veracity held good for another day.

It's more of the same again today; warm, sunny and clear weather is predicted. The mercury will again rise to nearly 90 today, with a predicted 60-65 for tonight.

Slow winds will be coming out of the south at approximately 5-15 mph.

Two Senate Probers Fly To See Estes

Decline To Say Where Meeting Will Take Place

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Two close-mouthed Senate investigators flew into Dallas Saturday headed for an interview with Billie Sol Estes.

The investigators, Donald F. O'Donnell, acting chief counsel, and Paul E. Kamerick, assistant chief counsel of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, declined to say when and where the interview will take place.

NO ELABORATION

They admitted that a time and place has already been decided on, but refused to elaborate on the grounds that "Estes' lawyer doesn't want publicity."

"A press release was put out in Washington today saying that two investigators had been sent here to interview Billie Sol," O'Donnell said shortly after he stepped off a plane at Love Field, adding, "and that's us."

The veteran Senate investigator wouldn't say how long he and Kamerick would be in Dallas or where they would be going from here.

Quoting the release that had been handed out before he left Washington, he pointed out that Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., of the Investigations subcommittee in authorizing a full-scale investigation and public hearings."

O'Donnell said that all records relating to Estes dealings have been subpoenaed by the subcommittee. "These included, I believe, 46 accounts in nine different banks, records of Estes' business enterprises and long-distance toll records," O'Donnell added.

Noting the Jerry R. Holleman resignation, O'Donnell said that Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg had notified Sen. McClellan by letter Friday that he would have his full cooperation in the investigation.

Holleman, assistant secretary of labor, resigned his $20,000-a-year job Friday night after saying he had accepted $1,000 as a personal gift from Estes to help meet his Washington living expenses.

In Washington Saturday, McClellan told reporters that he be-

Negro Drowns Saturday In Ouachita River

A 13 - year - old Negro youth drowned in the Ouachita River Saturday afternoon while playing.

Monroe police identified him as R. T. Sellers, son of David and Rachel Sellers of 2613 May St., Monroe.

He drowned on the east side of the river across the levee from where Plum Street intersects with South Grand.

The boy was first reported missing and feared drowned around 2:30 p.m. Saturday by a group of youths who had been up the river earlier in a boat. The boys

MAYOR J. ALLAN NORRIS . . . . Wins Re-Election

New Council Is Elected In Primary

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

J. Allan Norris Saturday rode the crest of a 313 vote majority into a third consecutive four - year term as mayor of West Monroe. But he'll have a brand new board of aldermen.

With balloting numerically nearly the same as April 7 first primary totals, the chief executive put together mixed leads in six of the town's eight precincts to down former mayor C. C. Bell Jr.

Complete but unofficial run-off returns Saturday night gave him 1866 votes to Bell's 1553.

NEW COUNCIL

The high five and their totals among 10 first primary survivors running for seats on the board of aldermen were: Earl Duncan, 2037; Mrs. Joyce T. Smith, 1958; George Wylie, 1900; Charles Anding, 1756; and A. L. DeLoach, 1556.

Incumbents A. P. Burkett, Ben Farmer, R. C. Jolissaint and Loy Heard lost bids for re-election, as did C. E. Ponder in the first primary. Burkett, with 1542 votes, barely was nudged from a seat on the board by DeLoach who tallied 1556.

The hopefuls outvoted Saturday and their totals were: besides Burkett, Ben Farmer, 1328; G. B. Folds, 1232; Jolissaint, 1193; and Heard, 1180.

A temporarily touch - and-go mayor's race found principal Norris strength in precincts one, two, three, eight, nine and eleven, where he amassed winning support of 49, 14, 3, 31, 127 and 240 votes, respectively. In

Employment For Ouachita Parish Rises

April employment in Ouachita Parish showed a continued rise, with a gain of 125 over March and 650 over April 1961, the Louisiana Division of Employment has announced.

There are 28,325 non-agricultural job-holders in the parish, the sector which showed the rise. Agricultural employment was 3500 in April, in March and in April last year.

Unemployment and job openings also show the same optimistic statistics for the parish.

DOWN 300

Jobless workers numbered 300 less than during April of 1961, and 375 less than in March. There were 2525 persons unemployed, 10.6 per cent under April of 1961.

April's demands for labor continued to remain 52 per cent above last year with "very little change in comparison with March."

"Although parish labor demand does not meet supply numerically, there is continuing demand for professional workers, especially engineers," the report said. Experienced stenographers and secretaries are in short supply. Some 567 workers were placed on jobs in April.

Meanwhile, over the state, the Louisiana Division of Employment Security in Baton Rouge says that non - agricultural jobs remained firm during March.

Louisiana employment was 777,300 in mid-March, up 1000 over February and 8800 over March a year ago. March's increase was attributed entirely to manufacturing.

Hourly earnings of production workers in the state dropped from a $2.28 to a $2.26 average along with weekly hours, which dropped from 41.4 to 40.7. These two factors caused a decrease in weekly earnings to $91.98 from $94.39.

Louisiana unemployment in March showed a 6.8 per cent decrease from February, falling to 80,400 persons. By March 15, the insured unemployment total was

Winnfield Re-Elects Mrs. Allen

Voters in six northeast Louisiana towns went to the polls Saturday in Democratic primary run - off elections with Winnfield Mayor Mary W. Allen's victory in her first political test the most significant.

Winnfield voters returned Mayor Allen to office with a 1021 vote majority over J. D. Taylor, who polled 953 votes. Mrs. Allen was appointed in 1960 by Gov. Earl Long following her husband's death.

Wilbur B. Evans with 1137 votes and Kenneth W. Henderson with 1255 won the aldermen's posts open in the run - off, completing a removal of all incumbent aldermen from office. Jesse L. Corley, Robert E. Baker and Tracey L. Harrel, Sr. were elected aldermen in the first primary.

Winn Parish voters apparently endorsed a 7-mill, 5-year school tax renewal as seven of 10 wards reported 395 voters with property assessed at $642,729 voting for renewal and 24 voters with property assessed at $63,220 against.

Machine shop operator Emmett Rogers was elected alderman in Jonesboro, winning the only post contested in the run - off. Rogers' 308 votes defeated Eldon Brown with 196.

"UNPLANNED, UNWANTED"

Father Confesses Suffocating Baby

DOWNEY, Calif. (AP) — A 29-year-old machinist told police Saturday that he suffocated the youngest of his four children with a plastic bag because the child, a month-old girl, was "unplanned and unwanted."

Booked on suspicion of murder was Charles W. Furnish.

"My wife never wanted the child," Furnish told detectives tearfully Saturday morning. "She was a thorn in her side. The baby was just breaking up our marriage."

Furnish said he considered arranging an accident in which the child, Star, might be killed.

Then last Wednesday, Furnish said, he came home from work and found that his wife, Nancy, 28, was ill in bed. The children, Dawn, 8, Charles Jr., 5, Dusk, 4, and Star, were unfed.

"I went to a drive-in, got some hamburgers and salad and fed the kids," he said.

Awakening in the middle of the night, the father said, he went into the kitchen, got a plastic bag and took it quietly into Star's room. He said he picked up the child, put the bag over her head and placed her back in the crib. Then he smoked a cigarette and returned to bed.

At work the next day, Furnish received his wife's customary 11 a.m. telephone call.

"When she didn't mention Star, I thought it was all a bad dream," said Furnish. "I thought maybe I hadn't done it at all.

But when she called again shortly after noon and said the baby was dead, I knew it was real."

Police said Mrs. Furnish, a late riser, did not realize the child was dead until just before she called her husband.

ALL 70 OR OLDER

'Adopted Mothers' Feted By Merchant

LEHIGHTON, Pa. (AP) — Dick Edwards, a jolly merchant who makes as much of Mother's Day as children do of Christmas, gave another of his parties Saturday, for a gathering of 400 adopted mothers all 70 or older.

He does this every year, the day before Mothers Day, hiring a hall and regaling the senior ladies with the finest food, entertainment and surprises he can provide.

It is the 60-year-old Edwards' way of saying thanks for the memory of his own mother, who died 28 years ago.

He says a couple of years after her death he found the meaning of the day was slipping away from him. Determined to do something about it, he had an inspiration: Why not seek out mothers who for the most part were on their own, lonely, separated from family?

He gave his first party in 1939, entertaining 15 mothers with simple table fare and a session of sentimental songs and folksy, instrumental music. Now it's all more elaborate—Saturday's main course was turkey—with programs lasting up to five hours.

In recent years the piece de resistance has been what Edwards calls the big dramatic surprise—the reunion of a mother and a close relative after long separation.

This year, Mrs. George Magee of neighboring Summit Hill was reunited with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Henry of Spokane, Wash., after a 12-year separation. And for the first time Mrs. Magee saw her three grandchildren: Cindy, 4, Jeffrey, 7; and John, 8.

Deficit-Troubled Solons To Open 1962 Legislature

mendation apparently would balance the budget; the reduction in state spending still would not solve the deficit.

A bond issue has been mentioned in numerous circles while one member of the legislative committee told the Morning World privately that Treasurer A. P. Tugwell was making a study for such a proposal.

Since this is the governor's last regular session and the last one before the legislators face re-election, any tax item might be tough to pass.

A bond issue would be presented to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment.

Finances, of course, will be the Legislature's number one problem but there are other bills being prepared for the hoppa that will be controversial in nature.

Segregation, reapportionment, the Little Hoover Commission's program and a number of other side issues have the potential of becoming the center of a major fight.

Rep. John Garrett's joint legislative committee on segregation met this week at the capitol on anti - integration legislation. One bill will change the voter registration law.

The committee has not outlined its legislative plans, but the New Orleans integration developments will be behind any segregation program presented to the lawmakers.

At least two solons, Rep. Algie Brown of Shreveport and Rep. Jesse Knowles of Lake Charles, have said they will sponsor reappointment bills, which would reapportion the Legislature on a basis of population.

Locally, Rep. Lawrence Gibbs of Monroe again will sponsor a measure for a third House seat for Ouachita.

Reapportionment in the past has widened the split between the city lawmakers and the rural members.

The Little Hoover Commission has 32 bills for introducing, including a hot one to abolish the office of State Comptroller Roy Theriot.

In addition, the commission's bill to permit the governor, excluding Davis, to succeed himself should attract a great deal of attention, especially from lawmakers who are liable to jockey for position in preparation for the 1964 gubernatorial campaign.

The Legislature also may be handed bills again to approve a compromise between the state and the Ward - McIlhenny heirs on the potentially oil-rich wildlife refuge that was deeded to the state by the Ward - McIlhenny estate.

This touched off shouts of graft in a past session, but the attorneys for the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission spent the past several months meeting privately with lawmakers on the subject.

Rep. T. T. Fields of Farmerville has indicated too that he might re-introduce his bill for an investigation of the state mineral board.

Fields' bill was defeated before, but by a very slight margin. The Farmerville lawmaker says he is ready to fight again.

Also looking for a fight is Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe, who has pre-filed a resolution to making the office of state superintendent of education appointive rather than elective.

Supt. Shelby M. Jackson, who commands much influence over the Legislature, thinks Adcock is a "hatchet-man," so there's a fight ahead for the resolution to do away with Jackson.

This is just a sample of what can come during the next 60 days. Lawmakers have 20 days to introduce bills; then the task at hand will be to move them through legislative channels while balancing the budget and solving the deficit.

At the same time those legislators who want to return will keep a close eye on their own skirts to make sure that they are kept politically clean.

Employment For Ouachita Parish Rises

33,400, down 2,500 from February.

Occupationally, the insured unemployed group is 2.4 per cent professional, 11.8 per cent clerical and sales, 6.8 per cent service workers, 18.8 per cent skilled, 20.2 per cent semi - skilled, and 40.0 per cent unskilled and miscellaneous.

The outlook for Ouachita Parish is for continued rising employment in some industrial groups. Construction should continue its increase.

Opening of a new hospital and nursing home should help offset seasonal losses in the service group, occasioned by closing of private schools for the summer, according to the report.

Usual seasonal employment should be expected in June as students, graduates, teachers and service workers leave public schools and colleges for the summer, the report continues.

Contract construction has caused most of the April employment gains over last year in the parish. Seasonal gains in beverages and ice cream did not offset losses in cottonseed milling. Other manufacturing sectors generally held firm.

In non - manufacturing employment, parish wholesale trade held firm while retail trade increased.

Incumbents made a clean sweep of the aldermen's posts in Tallulah as J. C. Stocks won over Archie Fairbanks, 442-352. In the first primary Mayor W. P. Sevier faced no opposition, and aldermen Robert N. Graves and Robert E. Brown were re-elected.

Citizens of Rayville voted for no change in municipal government, the re-election of Marshal Robert N. Smith finishing a complete victory for incumbents that began in the first primary.

An even 1000 votes were cast as Smith, moving into his sixth term, defeated James M. Pyle. Smith polled 582 votes and Pyle 418.

Rayville's Mayor Loy Cloninger and Aldermen Joe Kalil, Mrs. Mattie Haley, D. E. Barr, James Craig and Aubrey Solomon were re-elected in the first primary.

In Lake Providence, businessmen J. D. White and Steve Burton won the run - off election for alderman. White had 368 votes and Burton 343.

Incumbent Howard White was third with 328, followed by Pearce Bailey with 203.

"I don't know that he will answer all of our questions," McClellan said, "but, we have got to find out all we can from him."

Holeman, former president of the Texas AFL-CIO, has often been at odds with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson in Texas political matters in the past. However, he served as executive secretary of President Kennedy's Committee on Eual Employment Opportunities, headed by Johnson.

McClellan did not disclose the nature of the questioning of Holleman, who said in a resignation letter to Kennedy that Estes had been a close personal friend of his for 10 years.

McClellan said in a statement that Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg had given him assurances of his personal cooperation and that of his department in connection with the inquiry into the Estes case.

Holleman was the first top-rank Kennedy administration official to bow out as a result of the investigation of the multimillion-dollar dealings of the 37-year-old Estes in grain storage and cotton acreage allotments.

Algeria Acts To Wipe Out Secret Army

an independent Algeria associated with France, the informants said. It would be subject to approval of a constitutional assembly.

Determined to crush the European secrety army, the Provisional Executive, after meeting with the French, ordered thousands of Moslem troops and police sent to Algiers and Oran. Moslem sharpshooters were being picked for Oran.

The City Council of Oran—a stronghold of the European underground organization—also was dissolved in a series of drastic new measures aimed at halting Algeria's daily blood bath.

The Provisional Executive, headed by Abderrahmane Fares, declared the secret army faces "early collapse of their criminal and absurd policy" of attempting to block Algerian independency by terrorism.

The basis of the new program is to bring in Moslem troops and police to restore order while the European police force and civil administration are purged of secret army sympathizers.

The measures were approved following three days of meetings between the Provisional Executive and French High Commissioner Christian Fouchet.

The decisions announced by the executive from its headquarters at Rocher Noir outside this city ordered:

—Dissolution of the Oran Municipal Council.

—Reinforcement of the Algiers garrison with 15,000 men to be drawn from the Moslem forces being recruited.

—The immediate dispatch of 15 regiments of Algerian sharpshooters from the French army to Oran. This is believed to number more than 30,000 Moslems.

—The immediate recruitment of an additional 6,000 Moslem gendarmes to go into service in Algiers.

—An urgent purge of the civil administration throughout Algeria, including municipal police forces.

top cold war strategists.

The second phase of presidential action, it is understood, will probably result in the movement of some units closer to Southeast Asia in the next few days unless in the meantime there is an improvement in the situation.

While officials declined to disclose any of the specific precautions called for by Kennedy, it appeared likely that forces on Okinawa, a U.S. island base in the western Pacific, are involved.

It was also understood also that elements of the 7th Fleet, which has a total of about 125 ships, are being pulled together for possible quick movement in the direction of Southeast Asia in addition to the task force already dispatched.

Both White House conferences included Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, as well as various intelligence experts.

Officials said the consensus of those at the conferences was that the Laotian crisis has become increasingly serious in the last 24 hours for two reasons:

—The United States is unable to judge the intention of Communit-supported Pathet Lao troops which breached a year-old Lao cease-fire last week and are still marching forward with pro-Western government forces falling back, some in almost complete disorder.

—The Soviet Union so far has failed completely to respond to U.S. and British appeals for cooperation in bringing the fighting to an end and reviving negotiations for establishment of a neutralist government in Laos.

The Laotian crisis holds grave implications for Thailand and for neighboring South Viet Nam, where the United States is already heavily engaged in assisting anti-Communist forces to battle rebel guerrillas.

At the same time, it was learned that the United States has asked neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, now in Paris, to return to Laos at once. If political negotiations could be resumed, Souvanna Phouma would be a key figure and Kennedy and Rusk apparently hope to use his influence for restoration of the cease fire.

The pro-Western government strongman, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan who previously was reported reluctant to support the coalition regime project, is now said to have advised U.S. officials he favors negotiations. But authorities here privately concede that his bargaining position has been considerably weakened by failure of his forces to stand up at any point against Pathet Lao attack.

The United States has told Phoumi, informants said, that it considers his past conduct, including his recent handling of government military forces, unwise and it considers its present responsibility to be less to him than to the people of Laos and to King Savang Vatthana.

Informants said the significance of the task force movement, which reportedly began Friday, was that it would put some mobile units in position for quick action as necessary. Another evident purpose is to remind the Soviet Union and Red China of the presence of American might in the area and the interest of the United States in preventing the whole region from being overrun by Communist-supported forces.

told police they had seen a young Negro playing around in the water and gave him a lift out to a dock floating approximately 40 feet away from the bank.

When the boys returned from Lazarre's Point about an hour and a half later, they told officers they didn't see the Negro but noticed his shirt and shoes still on the bank where he had left them.

The emergency unit from the Monroe fire department was called to drag for the boy's body and hooked his body on the first drag. They brought it up from the river a short distance from the dock.

Police were unable to identify the youth for several hours and not until his parents called the station at 7:45 p.m. to report their son missing were they able to identify him.

The boy's father was taken to Miller's Funeral Home where the body had been carried, and he positively identified the youth.

This marks the second death by drowning in Monroe this year. The tragedy was termed accidental by police, who were investigating the accident.

Occupationally, the insured unemployed group is 2.4 per cent professional, 11.8 per cent clerical and sales, 6.8 per cent service workers, 18.8 per cent skilled, 20.2 per cent semi - skilled, and 40.0 per cent unskilled and miscellaneous.

The outlook for Ouachita Parish is for continued rising employment in some industrial groups. Construction should continue its increase.

Opening of a new hospital and nursing home should help offset seasonal losses in the service group, occasioned by closing of private schools for the summer, according to the report.

Usual seasonal employment should be expected in June as students, graduates, teachers and service workers leave public schools and colleges for the summer, the report continues.

Contract construction has caused most of the April employment gains over last year in the parish. Seasonal gains in beverages and ice cream did not offset losses in cotton-seed milling. Other manufacturing sectors generally held firm.

Winnfield Re-Elects Mrs. Allen

Incumbents made a clean sweep of the aldermen's posts in Tallulah as J. C. Stocks won over Archie Fairbanks, 442-352. In the first primary Mayor W. P. Sevier faced no opposition, and aldermen Robert N. Graves and Robert E. Brown were re-elected.

Citizens of Rayville voted for no change in municipal government, the re-election of Marshal Robert N. Smith finishing a complete victory for incumbents that began in the first primary.

An even 1000 votes were cast as Smith, moving into his sixth term, defeated James M. Pyle. Smith polled 582 votes and Pyle 418.

Rayville's Mayor Loy Cloninger and Aldermen Joe Kalil, Mrs. Mattie Haley, D. E. Barr, James Craig and Aubrey Solomon were re-elected in the first primary.

In Lake Providence, businessmen J. D. White and Steve Burton won the run - off election for alderman. White had 368 votes and Burton 343.

Incumbent Howard White was third with 328, followed by Pearce Bailey with 203.

Women Realtors Planning Dance

Community service projects of the Women's Council of the Monroe - West Monroe Real Estate Board will benefit from a spring dinner dance the group is sponsoring Friday at the Paragon Club.

Miss Freeda Mickel, the organization's president, said that dance music will be furnished by the Melodaires.

Two Senate Probers Fly To See Estes

lieves the indicted financier is ready to talk about his complicated grain and cotton deals.

"I don't know that he will answer all of our questions," McClellan said, "but, we have got to find out all we can from him."

Holeman, former president of the Texas AFL-CIO, has often been at odds with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson in Texas political matters in the past. However, he served as executive secretary of President Kennedy's Committee on Eual Employment Opportunities, headed by Johnson.

McClellan did not disclose the nature of the questioning of Holleman, who said in a resignation letter to Kennedy that Estes had been a close personal friend of his for 10 years.

McClellan said in a statement that Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg had given him assurances of his personal cooperation and that of his department in connection with the inquiry into the Estes case.

Holleman was the first top-rank Kennedy administration official to bow out as a result of the investigation of the multimillion-dollar dealings of the 37-year-old Estes in grain storage and cotton acreage allotments.

Algeria Acts To Wipe Out Secret Army

an independent Algeria associated with France, the informants said. It would be subject to approval of a constitutional assembly.

Determined to crush the European secrety army, the Provisional Executive, after meeting with the French, ordered thousands of Moslem troops and police sent to Algiers and Oran. Moslem sharpshooters were being picked for Oran.

The City Council of Oran—a stronghold of the European underground organization—also was dissolved in a series of drastic new measures aimed at halting Algeria's daily blood bath.

The Provisional Executive, headed by Abderrahmane Fares, declared the secret army faces "early collapse of their criminal and absurd policy" of attempting to block Algerian independency by terrorism.

The basis of the new program is to bring in Moslem troops and police to restore order while the European police force and civil administration are purged of secret army sympathizers.

The measures were approved following three days of meetings between the Provisional Executive and French High Commissioner Christian Fouchet.

The decisions announced by the executive from its headquarters at Rocher Noir outside this city ordered:

—Dissolution of the Oran Municipal Council.

—Reinforcement of the Algiers garrison with 15,000 men to be drawn from the Moslem forces being recruited.

—The immediate dispatch of 15 regiments of Algerian sharpshooters from the French army to Oran. This is believed to number more than 30,000 Moslems.

—The immediate recruitment of an additional 6,000 Moslem gendarmes to go into service in Algiers.

—An urgent purge of the civil administration throughout Algeria, including municipal police forces.

top cold war strategists.

The second phase of presidential action, it is understood, will probably result in the movement of some units closer to Southeast Asia in the next few days unless in the meantime there is an improvement in the situation.

While officials declined to disclose any of the specific precautions called for by Kennedy, it appeared likely that forces on Okinawa, a U.S. island base in the western Pacific, are involved.

It was also understood also that elements of the 7th Fleet, which has a total of about 125 ships, are being pulled together for possible quick movement in the direction of Southeast Asia in addition to the task force already dispatched.

Both White House conferences included Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, as well as various intelligence experts.

Officials said the consensus of those at the conferences was that the Laotian crisis has become increasingly serious in the last 24 hours for two reasons:

—The United States is unable to judge the intention of Communit-supported Pathet Lao troops which breached a year-old Lao cease-fire last week and are still marching forward with pro-Western government forces falling back, some in almost complete disorder.

—The Soviet Union so far has failed completely to respond to U.S. and British appeals for cooperation in bringing the fighting to an end and reviving negotiations for establishment of a neutralist government in Laos.

The Laotian crisis holds grave implications for Thailand and for neighboring South Viet Nam, where the United States is already heavily engaged in assisting anti-Communist forces to battle rebel guerrillas.

At the same time, it was learned that the United States has asked neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, now in Paris, to return to Laos at once. If political negotiations could be resumed, Souvanna Phouma would be a key figure and Kennedy and Rusk apparently hope to use his influence for restoration of the cease fire.

The pro-Western government strongman, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan who previously was reported reluctant to support the coalition regime project, is now said to have advised U.S. officials he favors negotiations. But authorities here privately concede that his bargaining position has been considerably weakened by failure of his forces to stand up at any point against Pathet Lao attack.

The United States has told Phoumi, informants said, that it considers his past conduct, including his recent handling of government military forces, unwise and it considers its present responsibility to be less to him than to the people of Laos and to King Savang Vatthana.

Informants said the significance of the task force movement, which reportedly began Friday, was that it would put some mobile units in position for quick action as necessary. Another evident purpose is to remind the Soviet Union and Red China of the presence of American might in the area and the interest of the United States in preventing the whole region from being overrun by Communist-supported forces.

Negro Drowns Saturday In Ouachita River

told police they had seen a young Negro playing around in the water and gave him a lift out to a dock floating approximately 40 feet away from the bank.

When the boys returned from Lazarre's Point about an hour and a half later, they told officers they didn't see the Negro but noticed his shirt and shoes still on the bank where he had left them.

The emergency unit from the Monroe fire department was called to drag for the boy's body and hooked his body on the first drag. They brought it up from the river a short distance from the dock.

Police were unable to identify the youth for several hours and not until his parents called the station at 7:45 p.m. to report their son missing were they able to identify him.

The boy's father was taken to Miller's Funeral Home where the body had been carried, and he positively identified the youth.

This marks the second death by drowning in Monroe this year. The tragedy was termed accidental by police, who were investigating the accident.

Mill Expansion Program Slated

BASTROP (Special) — Ian P. Sim, manager of International Paper Company's Louisiana mill has announced a $10 million modernization project for the local mill.

Sim stated that this project is in addition to a $3 million dollar - plus improvement program already underway.

The modernization calls for an almost complete rebuilding of No. 1 and No. 2 machines and additions and improvements for the pulp mill. Only one machine will be inoperative at a time during the rebuilding period.

Mill officials stated that no new permanent employees are anticipated although construction workers for the revamping period will be required.

Farmers May Offer Bill On Reapportioning

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A farm leader said Saturday a constitutional proposal to reapportion the Louisiana Legislature, giving each parish one senator, is ready for introduction if any other reapportionment plan is offered.

Dave B. Means, a vice president of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation, said he was confident rural legislators would give the proposal full support if it were the only acceptable alternative to a court - ordered reapportionment.

The constitutional proposal won't be introduced at the start of the session Monday, he said, but will be held back in readiness.

Louisiana now has 39 senators and 105 state representatives. Since its 1921 constitutional convention — except for piecemeal constitutional changes.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled private citizens can take their reapportionment complaints to the federal courts, and the courts have begun forcing reapportionment in some states.

The proposal backed by the farm bureau would boost Senate membership to 64, and possible cut House membership to 100. It would make the representative unit 50,000 in the House, and tend to cut the number of representatives from the larger parishes.

Laotian Forces Flee Reds Without Putting Up Fight

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Fleeing royal Laotian troops poured into Thailand Saturday before the advance of pro-Communist rebel battalions. The rebels claimed their drive carried them into the Mekong River town of Tanoun only 24 miles west of the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

A U.S. military source said 2,000 of the pro-Western government's troops had fled into friendly Thailand without putting up a fight against a rebel offensive which has surged more than 100 mlies past the year-old cease-fire line.

The rebel "Voice of Laos," in a broadcast heard in Tokyo quoted by the New China News Agency, said royal Laotian troops abandoned Tanoun and fled, presumably across the Mekong River to join their comrades in Thailand.

Tanoun lies about 60 miles south of Houei Sai, key government point fall of which to the Reds was reported Friday.

The reported capture of Tanoun added to royal government fears that the rebels are closing in for an all-out attack on Luang Prabang and on the administrative capital of Vientiane to the south. The Defense Ministry charged Soviet-made planes were rushing men and material to new-won territory in an apparent buildup for a further push.

In Vientiane, the government decided to proclaim a state of siege throughout Laotian territory a formal move that can empower the Cabinet to declare total mobilization. A spokesman said the government also decided to inform the United Nations of the rebel sweep beyond the cease-fire line agreed on last year. There was also talk of an attempt to resume negotiations among the three rival Laotian princes for a coalition regime.

Diplomats said the main factor in the Laotian situation, however, is the stand the United States will take in the face of the rebel war moves.

Thailand's premier, Marshal Sarit Thanarat, flew to the border to inspect his defenses in the light of the Communist gains on the Laotian side of the Mekong River frontier. He said he will decide on the basis of the tour whether he needs reinforcements.

Police reports from the border region said 1,000 Laotian civilians who fled to Thailand depended on the Thai government. These sources said royal Laotian forces in the Nam Tha area numbered 5,000 before the fall of that provincial capital seven days ago.

Pote Sarasin of Thailand, secretary-general of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization who accompanied the premier, told reporters on his return to Bangkok soldiers and civilians were being cared for the Thais.

An American military official who visited the area said the Laotian troops have been disarmed and are camped in a rice field. He said that seven American Military advisory group personnel, among the last elements to leave Houei Sai Friday, were safe in Thailand.

An American source who flew low over Houei Sai Saturday morning said there was no activity observable.

The rebel "Voice of Lao," which had been silent about Houei Sai, finally said that its troops had taken it Friday. In Vientiane a government spokesman said he believed the rebels were still three to four miles away from the town. He added, however, that government troops were continuing to retreat across the Mekong River into Thailand.

American military sources said the future of the Laotian troops

DESPITE LEGAL ACTION

Slavery Remains Practice In India

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Slavery still exists in India, but its days are numbered.

Constitutionally it was declared illegal in 1950. Two weeks ago it was abolished by law. In practice it continues.

But officials said they hope all remaining slaves would be freed by the end of this year.

The stronghold of slavery is the north-eastern frontier agency province of Nefa, bordering Tibet, with its remote and almost inaccessible forest tracts. The status of a man living there was once determined by the number of slaves he owned.

There were 5,500 slaves in Nefa in 1961, according to official sources. By March, 1962, the government had freed an estimated 2,791 of them through persuasion, education or by buying their freedom, paying the owner a maximum of 500 rupee ($100) per slave.

Slavery in Nefa was a heritage from the time when inter-village and inter-tribal fueds were common — the losers becoming slaves

Other persons became slaves mainly for economic reasons. If they failed to pay a debt or fine, they forfeited their freedom for domestic servitude.

Once a slave, it was difficult to regain liberty. Children were born into slavery because their parents were slaves.

The masters did not shackle their "servants." On the contrary, in most cases they were well-treated. In a few cases they were treated as part of the family. But they could not move from the house without their master's permission.

A master could give his slave to a friend as a goodwill gesture, or give him away as a dowry for his daughter.

The slave had one right — the inviolability of his wife or daughter. A master had to pay a heavy penalty if he violated this right.

Officials said slavery once existed in a slightly modified form among the tribes of eastern Orissa state and the central Indian state of Madhya Pradesh, but has been wiped out there.

In these regions, slaves worked as unpaid servants. If their masters could not afford their keep, they were freed.

The British administration tried to eradicate slavery in Nefa, but failed despite repeated shows of force.

When India became independent, Mahatma Gandhi asked the government to abolish slavery throughout the country.

Accordingly, a provision in the Indian constitution declared slavery illegal.

The Indian government, like the British, at first faced violent opposition.

Gradually government officials and the army penetrated the interior of Nefa and bought slaves or forced their masters to free them.

Parish Doctors To Staff New Concordia Unit

FERRIDAY (Special) — Physicians and surgeons of Concordia Parish will staff the new Concordia Parish Hill - Burton Hospital at Ferriday when the facility, on which bids will be let at Vidalia by the Concordia Parish Police Jury, May 31 at 3 p.m.

The hospital will be handled by an administrator and there will be no resident physicians, but all doctors of the parish will be eligible to be staff members of the institution, according to Dr. Herman Gibson Jr., of Ferriday.

The site of the proposed new hospital, to be erected at the cost of a million dollars, will be north of Ferriday on the Ferriday - Clayton Highway. The ten-acre tract was donated to the parish by the estate of the late Andrew B. Learned, Natchez, Miss. industrialist, and his niece, Mrs. Louise Metcalfe Williams, of Chicago.

Plans are already underway here by various civic and other clubs including the Ferriday Garden Club, to beautify the grounds when the buildings are completed.

Farmers May Offer Bill On Reapportioning

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A farm leader said Saturday a constitutional proposal to reapportion the Louisiana Legislature, giving each parish one senator, is ready for introduction if any other reapportionment plan is offered.

Dave B. Means, a vice president of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation, said he was confident rural legislators would give the proposal full support if it were the only acceptable alternative to a court - ordered reapportionment.

The constitutional proposal won't be introduced at the start of the session Monday, he said, but will be held back in readiness.

Louisiana now has 39 senators and 105 state representatives. Since its 1921 constitutional convention — except for piecemeal constitutional changes.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled private citizens can take their reapportionment complaints to the federal courts, and the courts have begun forcing reapportionment in some states.

The proposal backed by the farm bureau would boost Senate membership to 64, and possible cut House membership to 100. It would make the representative unit 50,000 in the House, and tend to cut the number of representatives from the larger parishes.

Laotian Forces Flee Reds Without Putting Up Fight

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Fleeing royal Laotian troops poured into Thailand Saturday before the advance of pro-Communist rebel battalions. The rebels claimed their drive carried them into the Mekong River town of Tanoun only 24 miles west of the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

A U.S. military source said 2,000 of the pro-Western government's troops had fled into friendly Thailand without putting up a fight against a rebel offensive which has surged more than 100 miles past the year-old cease-fire line.

The rebel "Voice of Laos," in a broadcast heard in Tokyo quoted by the New China News Agency, said royal Laotian troops abandoned Tanoun and fled, presumably across the Mekong River to join their comrades in Thailand.

Tanoun lies about 60 miles south of Houei Sai, key government point fall of which to the Reds was reported Friday.

The reported capture of Tanoun added to royal government fears that the rebels are closing in for an all-out attack on Luang Prabang and on the administrative capital of Vientiane to the south. The Defense Ministry charged Soviet-made planes were rushing men and material to new-won territory in an apparent buildup for a further push.

In Vientiane, the government decided to proclaim a state of siege throughout Laotian territory a formal move that can empower the Cabinet to declare total mobilization. A spokesman said the government also decided to inform the United Nations of the rebel sweep beyond the cease-fire line agreed on last year. There was also talk of an attempt to resume negotiations among the three rival Laotian princes for a coalition regime.

Diplomats said the main factor in the Laotian situation, however, is the stand the United States will take in the face of the rebel war moves.

Thailand's premier, Marshal Sarit Thanarat, flew to the border to inspect his defenses in the light of the Communist gains on the Laotian side of the Mekong River frontier. He said he will decide on the basis of the tour whether he needs reinforcements.

Police reports from the border region said 1,000 Laotian civilians who fled to Thailand depended on the Thai government. These sources said royal Laotian forces as well as up to 2,000 troops had fled into Thailand so far to escape the Red push.

Pote Sarasin of Thailand, secretary-general of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization who accompanied the premier, told reporters on his return to Bangkok soldiers and civilians were being cared for the Thais.

An American military official who visited the area said the Laotian troops have been disarmed and are camped in a rice field. He said that seven American Military advisory group personnel, among the last elements to leave Houei Sai Friday, were safe in Thailand.

An American source who flew low over Houei Sai Saturday morning said there was no activity observable.

The rebel "Voice of Lao," which had been silent about Houei Sai, finally said that its troops had taken it Friday. In Vientiane a government spokesman said he believed the rebels were still three to four miles away from the town. He added, however, that government troops were continuing to retreat across the Mekong River into Thailand.

American military sources said the future of the Laotian troops in the Nam Tha area numbered 5,000 before the fall of that provincial capital seven days ago.

DESPITE LEGAL ACTION

Slavery Remains Practice In India

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Slavery still exists in India, but its days are numbered.

Constitutionally it was declared illegal in 1950. Two weeks ago it was abolished by law. In practice it continues.

But officials said they hope all remaining slaves would be freed by the end of this year.

The stronghold of slavery is the north-eastern frontier agency province of Nefa, bordering Tibet, with its remote and almost inaccessible forest tracts. The status of a man living there was once determined by the number of slaves he owned.

There were 5,500 slaves in Nefa in 1961, according to official sources. By March, 1962, the government had freed an estimated 2,791 of them through persuasion, education or by buying their freedom, paying the owner a maximum of 500 rupee ($100) per slave.

Slavery in Nefa was a heritage from the time when inter-village and inter-tribal fueds were common — the losers becoming slaves

Other persons became slaves mainly for economic reasons. If they failed to pay a debt or fine, they forfeited their freedom for domestic servitude.

Once a slave, it was difficult to regain liberty. Children were born into slavery because their parents were slaves.

The masters did not shackle their "servants." On the contrary, in most cases they were well-treated. In a few cases they were treated as part of the family. But they could not move from the house without their master's permission.

A master could give his slave to a friend as a goodwill gesture, or give him away as a dowry for his daughter.

The slave had one right — the inviolability of his wife or daughter. A master had to pay a heavy penalty if he violated this right.

Officials said slavery once existed in a slightly modified form among the tribes of eastern Orissa state and the central Indian state of Madhya Pradesh, but has been wiped out there.

In these regions, slaves worked as unpaid servants. If their masters could not afford their keep, they were freed.

The British administration tried to eradicate slavery in Nefa, but failed despite repeated shows of force.

When India became independent, Mahatma Gandhi asked the government to abolish slavery throughout the country.

Accordingly, a provision in the Indian constitution declared slavery illegal.

The Indian government, like the British, at first faced violent opposition.

Gradually government officials and the army penetrated the interior of Nefa and bought slaves or forced their masters to free them.

Scales Against Range Hogs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and final article in a series written by Grits Gresham, Louisiana outdoors writer of Natchitoches, for the Louisiana Forestry Association.)

By GRITS GRESHAM

Spearheaded by the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation, a drive has been launched which seems likely to spell the legal end of open range hogs in Louisiana. A bill to accomplish this will be introduced in the coming session of the legislature by that politically-potent organization.

Support for the proposed law is increasing, and comes from a variety of groups whose memberships cut across line of party affiliation, economic and social status, and geographical boundaries. In addition to the key sponsor of the bill, the Farm Bureau Federation, two other statewide groups which have specifically adopted resolutions favoring it are the Louisiana Forestry Association and the Louisiana Wildlife Federation.

Other organizations which are actively considering an affirmitive stand in support of the bill, individual members of which have already voiced their approval, are the Louisiana Cattlemen's Association, Rice Growers Association, Louisiana Association of General Contractors, Soil Conservation District Supervisors Association, and the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs.

ONCE COLORFUL

The running of hogs on open range was once a substantial and colorful part of the Louisiana economy. Many hog men claimed hundreds of animals, although none ever knew exactly how many he did have.

Handling these free running hogs, which became quite wild, was an impossible task for men alone, so a unique strain of dogs was developed to handle the job. This is the Catahoula Hog Dog, often known as the Catahoula Cur. Generally found in one of two color phases, the leopard or the brindle, the Catahoula became amazingly adept at rounding up a herd of hogs from a vast expanse of swampland.

The most efficient of the dogs would half lead - half drive the hogs into a trap built in the woods for that purpose. After "branding" the unmarked ones with his particular ear marks, the owner would then take some to market and turn the rest loose.

With the changing economy the importance of free ranging hogs in Louisiana dropped tremendously. Few people, if any, now depend upon them for their livelihood.

The open range hog now constitutes a source of danger and damage in many areas of interest where this was not formerly the case. The tremendous growth of the cattle industry has accentuated the damage done by hogs to improve pastures. Reforestation of cutover pinelands, made feasible and desirable by new economic conditions, fire protection, and research break-throughs in regeneration techniques, now make coping with open range hogs a necessity. Damage to row crops has become extensive.

ROAD HAZARD

Sleek, hardsurfaced highways now span and crisscross every portion of Louisiana, and open range hogs are a serious hazard to the millions of motorists who travel them in high-speed autos.

Highway officials have stated that free running hogs cause considerable damage to sodded highway shoulders, and officials of the Department of Public Works have stated that open range hogs constitute one of the greatest threats to the integrity of the levee system. Levee inspectors, in fact, have orders to shoot on sight any hog found on a levee.

Competition of woods hogs with various wildlife species was not a serious thing in years past, but it assumes substanital status when considering that more than a quarter of a million Louisiana residents now enjoy hunting as part of their recreation.

Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, Associate Professor of Wildlife Management at LSU, says that the presence of free running hogs in the woods "drastically reduces the number of first rate game species such as deer, turkeys, squirrels and rabbits, for they consume the natural as well as the planted food in the forest."

Glasgow also pointed out that woods hogs are known disease spreaders, will destroy every bird nest found on the ground, and that "when the value of woods hogs is compared with the losses due to their destructiveness to the forest and to wildlife, there is no conceivable way to justify their presence in the woods."

John D. Newsom, Chief of Fish and Game for the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, says, "I personally feel that the elimination of free range hogs in Louisiana would greatly benefit several species of wildlife."

Another factor of importance to hunters, fishermen, boaters, and campers in Louisiana is the potential damage from hogs to their camps. Quite a few have returned to find their tents in tatters, and their food and equipment destroyed.

The love of the piney woods rooter, as many foresters refer to the open range hog, for longleaf pine seedlings has stymied reforestation of much of the state's timber growing lands. About half of the total is in more than 110,000 small ownerships averaging about 55 acres each. As a result of a fast, inexpensive method developed in 1955 by the Alexandria Forest Research Center, these small landowners can economically reforest their lands with longleaf. They could, that is, if there were no open range hogs.

BIG APPETITE

The rooters have a voracious appetite for the tap root of longleaf, and a small herd of hogs can destroy a forty acre longleaf plantation in one day. They feed also on loblolly and slash to an extent, and do great damage to the seedlings when rooting for other foods.

In 1954 the Louisiana legislature gave landowners a measure of protection, passing a law which permitted them to impound hogs found on their lands and hold them for the owners. The cost of catching the hogs, however, proved to be great — many times the "catch fee" which the law permitted the landowner to charge the hog owner.

The law did cause many hog owners to go out of the hog business on a commerical scale, and the open range hog population dropped briefly. Those left in the wild, however, thrived and multiplied, and the population is back at a pre - 1954 level. The difference is that 90 per cent of them are unmarked — and unclaimed until some landowner catches and pens them.

On the credit side — the open range hog does furnish many families with meat and a very small financial income, but it is profitable for those people because they have no expenses for owning land, paying taxes on the land, maintaining fences, and feeding their hogs.

But the scales are weighed heavily on the debit side, according to the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation and the other groups supporting the porposed law, when the public interest is considered. If their beliefs prevail when state legislators gather in Baton Rouge this spring, the era of open range hogs in Louisiana will end.

THE DISPOSITION of this young pig was unmistakeable — mean and ornery.

T. L. JAMES Co. employee makes a detailed record of each hog caught on the company lands.

Average Auto Carries Two State Tourists

The average out-of-state automobile crossing into Louisiana carries more than two persons who plan to spend slightly under three days in the state during which they will leave behind about $200.

This was the statistical word Saturday from the Lovely Louisiana Tourist Association and the State Tourist Bureau.

MAKE CHECK

They said a continuing check, inaugurated when the State Police began passing out registration cards to visiting motorists in January, had disclosed that both volume and spending on the part of visitors is higher than had been originally believed.

State Tourist Bureau Director Bill Welch said 986 automobiles selected at random carried a total of 2,322 persons who planned to spend a total of 5,523 days in Louisiana.

"These statistics show a comforting rise in tourist income," Welch said, "and bear out our conviction that coordinated work by the Department of Commerce and Industry and groups such as the Lovely Louisiana Tourist Association is paying off with a growing tourist economy."

ANOTHER SIGN

Welch said another barometer is the number of requests for information about Louisiana. "We received more than 40,000 such letters last month," he noted. "That is considerably more than we have ever received in any single month."

The tourist industry last year brought more than $561,000,000 into Louisiana, a gain of about $14,000,000 over 1960. Officials of the Lovely Louisiana Tourist Association said if the present trend continues the state can expect an even greater gain this year.

TRADITIONAL ACTIVITY

Honors Day Program Set At Northeast Wednesday

Student academic and leadership qualities will be recognized by Northeast Louisiana State College at the traditional Honors Day program on campus.

The event is scheduled Wednesday in Brown Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. The program is open to the public, Dean Harry M. Lemert, chairman of the Lectures, Concerts and Assemblies Committee, announced.

Approximately 35 awards will be made to honor those students who have excelled in accomplishments both in and out of the classroom.

Trophies and other forms of recognition will be given by President George T. Walker, representatives of organizations in the Twin Cities and at Northeast State, and persons requested to represent individuals who are donors of awards.

The list does not include many trophies which are presented on other special occasions, Dean Lemert explained.

Athletic awards are given to outstanding players and trainers at banquets which feature such recognition in the pro-honor scholastic excellence and outstanding leadership on similiar occasions.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps pays tribute to cadets for academic achievement and military prominence at a special Honors Day in the late spring. The President's medal, trophies and other awards are given by military organizations and individuals in Monroe and West Monroe who show continued interest in the progress of the ROTC.

Health Nurse Attends Meet

WINNSBORO (Special) — Mrs. Thelma C. Applewhite of Winnsboro, Franklin Parish public health nurse, left New Orleans Saturday for Detroit, Michigan, where she will attend the American Nurses Association convention.

Mrs. Applewhite will participate as a delegate from the Louisiana Public Health Nurses Section.

She and several friends from New Orleans plan to visit Canada and other interesting places after the convention concludes on May 18.

Scales Against Range Hogs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and final article in a series written by Grits Gresham, Louisiana outdoors writer of Natchitoches, for the Louisiana Forestry Association.)

By GRITS GRESHAM

Spearheaded by the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation, a drive has been launched which seems likely to spell the legal end of open range hogs in Louisiana. A bill to accomplish this will be introduced in the coming session of the legislature by that politically-potent organization.

Support for the proposed law is increasing, and comes from a variety of groups whose memberships cut across line of party affiliation, economic and social status, and geographical boundaries. In addition to the key sponsor of the bill, the Farm Bureau Federation, two other statewide groups which have specifically adopted resolutions favoring it are the Louisiana Forestry Association and the Louisiana Wildlife Federation.

Other organizations which are actively considering an affirmitive stand in support of the bill, individual members of which have already voiced their approval, are the Louisiana Cattlemen's Association, Rice Growers Association, Louisiana Association of General Contractors, Soil Conservation District Supervisors Association, and the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs.

ONCE COLORFUL

The running of hogs on open range was once a substantial and colorful part of the Louisiana economy. Many hog men claimed hundreds of animals, although none ever knew exactly how many he did have.

Handling these free running hogs, which became quite wild, was an impossible task for men alone, so a unique strain of dogs was developed to handle the job. This is the Catahoula Hog Dog, often known as the Catahoula Cur. Generally found in one of two color phases, the leopard or the brindle, the Catahoula became amazingly adept at rounding up a herd of hogs from a vast expanse of swampland.

The most efficient of the dogs would half lead - half drive the hogs into a trap built in the woods for that purpose. After "branding" the unmarked ones with his particular ear marks, the owner would then take some to market and turn the rest loose.

With the changing economy the importance of free ranging hogs in Louisiana dropped tremendously. Few people, if any, now depend upon them for their livelihood.

The open range hog now constitutes a source of danger and damage in many areas of interest where this was not formerly the case. The tremendous growth of the cattle industry has accentuated the damage done by hogs to improve pastures. Reforestation of cutover pinelands, made feasible and desirable by new economic conditions, fire protection, and research break-throughs in regeneration techniques, now make coping with open range hogs a necessity. Damage to row crops has become extensive.

ROAD HAZARD

Sleek, hardsurfaced highways now span and crisscross every portion of Louisiana, and open range hogs are a serious hazard to the millions of motorists who travel them in high-speed autos.

Highway officials have stated that free running hogs cause considerable damage to sodded highway shoulders, and officials of the Department of Public Works have stated that open range hogs constitute one of the greatest threats to the integrity of the levee system. Levee inspectors, in fact, have orders to shoot on sight any hog found on a levee.

Competition of woods hogs with various wildlife species was not a serious thing in years past, but it assumes substanital status when considering that more than a quarter of a million Louisiana residents now enjoy hunting as part of their recreation.

Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, Associate Professor of Wildlife Management at LSU, says that the presence of free running hogs in the woods "drastically reduces the number of first rate game species such as deer, turkeys, squirrels and rabbits, for they consume the natural as well as the planted food in the forest."

Glasgow also pointed out that woods hogs are known disease spreaders, will destroy every bird nest found on the ground, and that "when the value of woods hogs is compared with the losses due to their destructiveness to the forest and to wildlife, there is no conceivable way to justify their presence in the woods."

John D. Newsom, Chief of Fish and Game for the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, says, "I personally feel that the elimination of free range hogs in Louisiana would greatly benefit several species of wildlife."

Another factor of importance to hunters, fishermen, boaters, and campers in Louisiana is the potential damage from hogs to their camps. Quite a few have returned to find their tents in tatters, and their food and equipment destroyed.

The love of the piney woods rooter, as many foresters refer to the open range hog, for longleaf pine seedlings has stymied reforestation of much of the state's timber growing lands. About half of the total is in more than 110,000 small ownerships averaging about 55 acres each. As a result of a fast, inexpensive method developed in 1955 by the Alexandria Forest Research Center, these small landowners can economically reforest their lands with longleaf. They could, that is, if there were no open range hogs.

BIG APPETITE

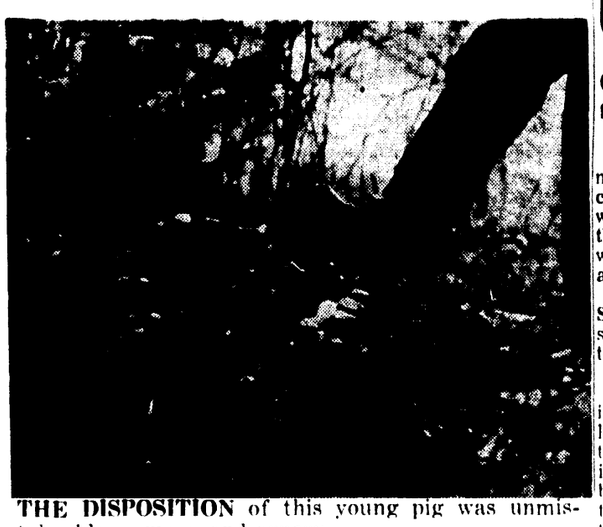
The rooters have a voracious appetite for the tap root of longleaf, and a small herd of hogs can destroy a forty acre longleaf plantation in one day. They feed also on loblolly and slash to an extent, and do great damage to the seedlings when rooting for other foods.

In 1954 the Louisiana legislature gave landowners a measure of protection, passing a law which permitted them to impound hogs found on their lands and hold them for the owners. The cost of catching the hogs, however, proved to be great — many times the "catch fee" which the law permitted the landowner to charge the hog owner.

The law did cause many hog owners to go out of the hog business on a commerical scale, and the open range hog population dropped briefly. Those left in the wild, however, thrived and multiplied, and the population is back at a pre - 1954 level. The difference is that 90 per cent of them are unmarked — and unclaimed until some landowner catches and pens them.

On the credit side — the open range hog does furnish many families with meat and a very small financial income, but it is profitable for those people because they have no expenses for owning land, paying taxes on the land, maintaining fences, and feeding their hogs.

But the scales are weighed heavily on the debit side, according to the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation and the other groups supporting the porposed law, when the public interest is considered. If their beliefs prevail when state legislators gather in Baton Rouge this spring, the era of open range hogs in Louisiana will end.



THE DISPOSITION of this young pig was unmistakeable — mean and ornery.

T. L. JAMES Co. employee makes a detailed record of each hog caught on the company lands.

Educator Due As Keynoter At Conference

A member of the faculty of Yale University Divinity School, Dr. John Oliver Nelson of New Haven, Conn., will be keynote speaker for the Presbyterian Synod Men's Conference May 19-20 at Silliman College, Clinton, La.

Nelson is professor of christian vocation, which is the theme for the conference.

He will open the conference on Saturday morning and will conclude the session at 1 p.m. the following day. Donald Logan of West Monroe, will be one of the discussion group leaders at the conference.

Average Auto Carries Two State Tourists

The average out-of-state automobile crossing into Louisiana carries more than two persons who plan to spend slightly under three days in the state during which they will leave behind about $200.

This was the statistical word Saturday from the Lovely Louisiana Tourist Association and the State Tourist Bureau.

MAKE CHECK

They said a continuing check, inaugurated when the State Police began passing out registration cards to visiting motorists in January, had disclosed that both volume and spending on the part of visitors is higher than had been originally believed.

State Tourist Bureau Director Bill Welch said 986 automobiles selected at random carried a total of 2,322 persons who planned to spend a total of 5,528 days in Louisiana.

"These statistics show a comforting rise in tourist income," Welch said, "and bear out our conviction that coordinated work by the Department of Commerce and Industry and groups such as the Lovely Louisiana Tourist Association is paying off with a growing tourist economy."

ANOTHER SIGN

Welch said another barometer is the number of requests for information about Louisiana. "We received more than 40,000 such letters last month," he noted. "That is considerably more than we have ever received in any single month."

The tourist industry last year brought more than $561,000,000 into Louisiana, a gain of about $14,000,000 over 1960. Officials of the Lovely Louisiana Tourist Association said if the present trend continues the state can expect an even greater gain this year.

TRADITIONAL ACTIVITY

Honors Day Program Set At Northeast Wednesday

Student academic and leadership qualities will be recognized by Northeast Louisiana State College at the traditional Honors Day program on campus.

The event is scheduled Wednesday in Brown Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. The program is open to the public, Dean Harry M. Lemert, chairman of the Lectures, Concerts and Assemblies Committee, announced.

Approximately 35 awards will be made to honor those students who have excelled in accomplishments both in and out of the classroom.

Trophies and other forms of recognition will be given by President George T. Walker, representatives of organizations in the Twin Cities and at Northeast State, and persons requested to represent individuals who are donors of awards.

The list does not include many trophies which are presented on other special occasions, Dean Lemert explained.

Athletic awards are given to outstanding players and trainers at banquets which feature such recognition in the pro-honor scholastic excellence and outstanding leadership on similiar occasions.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps pays tribute to cadets for academic achievement and military prominence at a special Honors Day in the late spring. The President's medal, trophies and other awards are given by military organizations and individuals in Monroe and West Monroe who show continued interest in the progress of the ROTC.

Health Nurse Attends Meet

CIVILIANS CALM

Dutch Unruffled By Invasion Threat

BIAK, West New Guinea (AP) — This strategic jungle island—possibly the No. 1 target of any Indonesian invasion attempt - is going about its business as calmly as a Dutch burgher on a Sunday stroll in Amsterdam.

The Dutch civilian is as phlegmatic as ever - seemingly unruffled by President Sukarno's threat to capture West New Guinea by the end of the year.

Item: Two Hawker Hunter jets scream off across Geelvink Bay and four Dutch women don't bother to look up from their doubles tennis match.

Item: A big unwieldy looking Nepture wobbles into the air on a radar run while two Dutchmen joke about who is to enter the post office first.

Item: An antiaircraft battery near the international airport points its lethal barrels skyward, but the Dutch gun crews are taking a sun bath.

Military strategists say any war would be quickly over once Sukarno's troops catpure Biak, with its big naval and air force complex, and the Dutch administrative capital of Hollandia, about 240 miles to the east.

In the past few months the Dutch have enlarged Biak's defenses.

Passengers arriving on the big KLM jets need only look out the windows to see the antiaircraft battries guarding the island's airfields.

Camouflage netting can be seen beside Baik's important telegraph and post office building.

Dutch sailors, with their khaki shorts and white flat hats, seem to be everywhere.

To handle the marine overflow, a big Dutch liner is tied up outside the naval base.

Don't the Dutch know about Sukarno's threat? Don't they care? The answer is "Yes."

"What would we do if the Indonesians landed?" said one civil servant. "If they overwhelmed us — and they have the manpower — we would evacuate, of course. We have evacuation plans. We can get away."

"The invasion threat has been hanging over us so long," says a KLM ground hostess, "that we are completely insured.

Many already have returned to Holland, but officials pointed out others have arrived to take their place.

What is the feeling in Biak of the native Papuans?

"There was a flurry of excitement not long ago when two Indonesian patrol boats were sunk the Serang Sea, but that is over now," said a native information officer. "They are calm."

The Dutch say the Papauan population on Biak - as in the rest of West New Guinea - want self - determination and not Sukarno.

But they admit there is some pro - Indonesian feeling here underground.

Speech Class Slates Readings

Northeast Louisiana State College students in an oral interpretation speech class will give a variety of readings in a program Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Biedenharn Recital Hall on campus.

The public is invited to the annual affair directed by George C. Brian, associate professor of speech and instructor of the course.

Interpretations will include humorous, serious and choral readings as phases of class requisities.

Annual Clapper Award Goes To Capital Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Fryklund, a reporter on military affairs for the Washington Evening Star, was designated winner of the 18th annual Raymond Clapper Memorial Award.

Fryklund, 40, was cited "for his comprehensive and discerning reporting on national defense developments." He will receive the $1,000 that goes with the award at a luncheon of the National Press Club May 31.

Fryklund was the unanimous choice of a panel of five newspaper executives. The judges gave honorable mention to David Wise of the New York Herald Tribune "for the general excellence of his Washington reporting."

The award honors the memory of Raymond Clapper, a distinguised Washington correspondent who was killed in a Pacific plane crash in 1944.

Fryklund is a native of Denver and was educated at Wayne University and the University of Michigan. He served four years with the Army Air Force and before coming to the Star worked for the Dunn County News, Menomonie, Wis., and the St. Petersburg Times.

Demo Leaders Say JFK Trade Plan To Pass

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressional leaders now are saying President Kennedy will get substantially the trade expansion legislation he wants—but not until after the present reciprocal trade law has expired.

The law, periodically renewed since Congress first passed it in 1934, expires June 30 unless it is again revived. Kennedy, asserting that a whole new situation has been created by establishment of the European Common Market, has called for sweeping new authority for tariff reductions and other trade negotiations rather than a simple extension.

The chance that Congress will complete action on such a bill by June 30 has now narrowed almost to vanishing. The House Ways and Means Committee, which started work on the bill in March, has at least 10 days more of sessions ahead, with some of the most controversial points still to be resolved.

Then the bill will still have to go before the Rules Committee and the House itself. Leaders will do well to send it to the Senate by June 10.

The Senate Finance Committee is certain to conduct extended hearings on the measure which affects scores of U.S. interests—when it gets around to starting such hearings. It has a heavy calendar of other legislation.

If the reciprocal trade law should lapse before a replacement is enacted, the result is not regarded by its supporters as significant—except perhaps psychologically.

Expiration of the law would not invalidate the numerous trade agreements already in effect. It would deprive the President of authority to negotiate new ones. But the government is not ready to launch negotiations with the Common Market by July 1—in all likelihood several months of preparation will be required after Congress votes the new authority, if it does so.

However, administration forces have apparently lost whatever psychological leverage the June 30 deadline may have given them. A period without a reciprocal trade law on the books, however short, appears inevitable.

The administration and its legislative supporters nevertheless appear confident that, though they may have to compromise on some features, they have the votes for a sweeping new trade program.

Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., House Democratic whip and Ways and Means Committee member, told the Business Council Friday night in Hot Springs, Va., that if he and other supporters of the bill have miscalculated, it probably is in the direction of overestimating the opposition.

CIVILIANS CALM

Dutch Unruffled By Invasion Threat

BIAK, West New Guinea (AP) — This strategic jungle island-possibly the No. 1 target of any Indonesian invasion attempt - is going about its business as calmly as a Dutch burgher on a Sunday stroll in Amsterdam.

The Dutch civilian is as phlegmatic as ever - seemingly unruffled by President Sukarno's threat to capture West New Guinea by the end of the year.

Item: Two Hawker Hunter jets scream off across Geelvink Bay and four Dutch women don't bother to look up from their doubles tennis match.

Item: A big unwieldy looking Nepture wobbles into the air on a radar run while two Dutchmen joke about who is to enter the post office first.

Item: An antiaircraft battery near the international airport points its lethal barrels skyward, but the Dutch gun crews are taking a sun bath.

Military strategists say any war would be quickly over once Sukarno's troops catpure Biak, with its big naval and air force complex, and the Dutch administrative capital of Hollandia, about 240 miles to the east.

In the past few months the Dutch have enlarged Biak's defenses.

Passengers arriving on the big KLM jets need only look out the windows to see the antiaircraft battries guarding the island's airfields.

Camouflage netting can be seen beside Baik's important telegraph and post office building.

Dutch sailors, with their khaki shorts and white flat hats, seem to be everywhere.

To handle the marine overflow, a big Dutch liner is tied up outside the naval base.

Don't the Dutch know about Sukarno's threat? Don't they care? The answer is "Yes."

"What would we do if the Indonesians landed?" said one civil servant. "If they overwhelmed us — and they have the manpower — we would evacuate, of course. We have evacuation plans. We can get away."

"The invasion threat has been hanging over us so long," says a KLM ground hostess, "that we are completely insured."

Many already have returned to Holland, but officials pointed out others have arrived to take their place.

What is the feeling in Biak of the native Papuans?

"There was a flurry of excitement not long ago when two Indonesian patrol boats were sunk the Serang Sea, but that is over now," said a native information officer. "They are calm."

The Dutch say the Papauan population on Biak - as in the rest of West New Guinea - want self - determination and not Sukarno.

But they admit there is some pro - Indonesian feeling here underground.

Speech Class Slates Readings

Northeast Louisiana State College students in an oral interpretation speech class will give a variety of readings in a program Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Biedenharn Recital Hall on campus.

The public is invited to the annual affair directed by George C. Brian, associate professor of speech and instructor of the course.

Interpretations will include humorous, serious and choral readings as phases of class requisities.

Annual Clapper Award Goes To Capital Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Fryklund, a reporter on military affairs for the Washington Evening Star, was designated winner of the 18th annual Raymond Clapper Memorial Award.

Fryklund, 40, was cited "for his comprehensive and discerning reporting on national defense developments." He will receive the $1,000 that goes with the award at a luncheon of the National Press Club May 31.

Fryklund was the unanimous choice of a panel of five newspaper executives. The judges gave honorable mention to David Wise of the New York Herald Tribune "for the general excellence of his Washington reporting."

The award honors the memory of Raymond Clapper, a distinguised Washington correspondent who was killed in a Pacific plane crash in 1944.

Fryklund is a native of Denver and was educated at Wayne University and the University of Michigan. He served four years with the Army Air Force and before coming to the Star worked for the Dunn County News, Menomonie, Wis., and the St. Petersburg Times.

Demo Leaders Say JFK Trade Plan To Pass

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressional leaders now are saying President Kennedy will get substantially the trade expansion legislation he wants—but not until after the present reciprocal trade law has expired.

The law, periodically renewed since Congress first passed it in 1934, expires June 30 unless it is again revived. Kennedy, asserting that a whole new situation has been created by establishment of the European Common Market, has called for sweeping new authority for tariff reductions and other trade negotiations rather than a simple extension.

The chance that Congress will complete action on such a bill by June 30 has now narrowed almost to vanishing. The House Ways and Means Committee, which started work on the bill in March, has at least 10 days more of sessions ahead, with some of the most controversial points still to be resolved.

Then the bill will still have to go before the Rules Committee and the House itself. Leaders will do well to send it to the Senate by June 10.

The Senate Finance Committee is certain to conduct extended hearings on the measure which affects scores of U.S. interests—when it gets around to starting such hearings. It has a heavy calendar of other legislation.

If the reciprocal trade law should lapse before a replacement is enacted, the result is not regarded by its supporters as significant—except perhaps psychologically.

Expiration of the law would not invalidate the numerous trade agreements already in effect. It would deprive the President of authority to negotiate new ones. But the government is not ready to launch negotiations with the Common Market by July 1—in all likelihood several months of preparation will be required after Congress votes the new authority, if it does so.

However, administration forces have apparently lost whatever psychological leverage the June 30 deadline may have given them. A period without a reciprocal trade law on the books, however short, appears inevitable.

The administration and its legislative supporters nevertheless appear confident that, though they may have to compromise on some features, they have the votes for a sweeping new trade program.

Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., House Democratic whip and Ways and Means Committee member, told the Business Council Friday night in Hot Springs, Va., that if he and other supporters of the bill have miscalculated, it probably is in the direction of overestimating the opposition.

New Orleans House Seat Runoffs Due

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Charles Smither and Philip Ciaccio led Democratic primaries for state House seats in New Orleans Saturday, but both were forced into runoffs May 26.

Smither, insurance executive making his first bid for elective office, ran far ahead of a seven-man field in the uptown 14th ward for the seat vacated by George Tessier, now a state senator.

Smither, who polled 3,286 votes, will meet John Singreen, an ardent segregationist, in the runoff. Singreen received 1,472 votes. Smither missed a first primary majority by 329 votes.

In the sprawling ninth ward, on the eastern edge of the city, Ciaccio missed a majority by 145 votes. He will face attorney Louis Trent, backed by Mayor Victor Schiro, in the runoff for the seat of Daniel Kelly, now a city councilman. Ciaccio polled 5,161 and Trent had 4,283 to run far ahead of three other candidates.

The Republican candidate in the June 5 general election in the ninth ward is Lucius D. Dalton, who was unopposed.

Racial Group Pickets Police Headquarters

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People began picketing St. Louis police headquarters Saturday, claiming the police board has refused to meet with its representatives.

Thirteen placard-carrying pickets began walking in front of the headquarters building.

Officials of the NAACP said they have been seeking such a meeting since police chief Curtis Brostron announced a year ago the department would follow a policy of non-discrimination in recruitment and promotion of its personnel.

The organization said it wanted clarification on methods of implementing the policy.

The pickets, which included both whites and Negroes, handed out handbills charging unfair practices in recruitment, assignment and promotion of Negro policemen. The handbill charged "'Jim Crow' still is being practices" in the department.

The police board issued a statement reaffirming its announced policy against discrimination. It accused the NAACP of making false accusations and charges.

The board of police commissioners said Negro officers hold a larger number of leadership positions in relation to the total number of Negroes on the force than white officers. The board added there is a shortage of qualified applicants for police jobs, especially for Negroes.

Mexico Rumors Are Spiked On New Volcano

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Authorities said Saturday there was no basis to rumors that a new volcano triggered an earthquake which rocked seven central Mexican states Friday, killing three persons and injuring at least 100 others.

Dr. Jose Merino Colorado of the Mexican Geophysical Institute said a search plane was unable to find any active volcano in an area 60 miles east of Acapulco where farmhands had reported water boiling in local streams, the result of volcanic activity.

The quake shook Mexico City for nine seconds and was reported to be the heaviest since 1957 when 66 persons died.

Reports from areas hit by the quake indicated damage to be lighter than first believed. Most of the debris had been cleared away Saturday and residents seemed calm.

Businessmen Given Pledge

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Undersecretary of State George W. Ball told American businessmen Saturday night that "gunboat diplomacy" is dead, but he promised vigorous U.S. government support in making sure they get fair treatment for their enterprises in foreign countries.

In an address prepared for a dinner meeting of the Business Council here, Ball deplored outright expropriation of U.S. property by foreign governments or what he called "creeping expropriation" through tax and other measures.

He urged businessmen to cooperate with U.S. embassies and consulates in developing their foreign enterprises and said: "Obviously, the embassies of the United States cannot be expected to make a strong presentation (to foreign governments in cases where an American national may not himself have clean hands, where he may have been guilty of policies which are manifestly inconsistent with legitimate requirements of the host country.

"But any American national who has comported himself according to the laws of that country will—I can assure you—receive the full and vigorous assistance of the State Department and our embassies abroad."

There was a time, Ball said, when American business could operate abroad without paying heed to charges of economic imperialism and could rely on direct U.S. intervention if it got into serious trouble.

In today's world, he said, such "gunboat diplomacy" is out of date and the United States cannot disregard the sovereignty of other and less developed nations "without contradicting its own policy of helping those nations to become independent and self-respecting."

What the United States government is trying in many ways to do, he said, is to aid the development of political and economic stability in other nations so that among other results, those countries will provide reliable opportunities for business investment. He also suggested that the Kennedy administration is prepared to consider expanding government insurance for U.S. foreign investments as experience indicates that is necessary and desirable.

Ball declared that the United States has long recognized the right of foreign governments to seize, or expropriate, U.S. property abroad provided that just compensation is paid. But he said that the United States also considers that the seizure of existing properties is a foolish way for less-developed countries to employ their resources. It often involves an unnecessary diversion of resources from desirable purposes, he declared, and in many cases means a transfer of control from competent management to inexperienced administration.

Ball chided some American businessmen for what he called their "ignorant self-assurance" in undertaking foreign operations without any intelligent inquiry as to the political environment in which they would have to do business or the personalities who dominated that local political scene.

Integration Still Problem

By CARROLL P. TROSCLAIR

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — When the Louisiana Legislature opens a 60-day session Monday it will face an integration problem much more severe than the one which prompted five frantic special sessions in 1960 and 1961.

Many of the integration problems have grown considerably since 1960. New ones have developed. None of the old ones seem to have gone away.

Most of the segregation laws passed by the legislature in its 1960 - 61 special sessions were thrown out by Federal Judge J. Skelly Wright and higher federal courts.

But segregationists denied the special sessions were futile. Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock said they dramatically demonstrated Louisiana's determination to fight for segregation.

The segregation line has been held in some areas, but the fight up to now has been mostly a losing one.

Brightest development for segregationists has been the departure of Judge Wright—who probably did more than any other one man to bring integration to Louisiana.

Wright has been promoted to the Court of Appeals at Washington, D.C. He battled the legislature tooth-and-nail, was called a traitor by some Louisianans and was cited for his "lonely courage by integrationists.

He has been replaced in the federal court here by Frank B. Ellis, who in his first weeks has been pictured as a potential new white hope.

In less than a month Ellis has stayed two Wright orders, one calling for Tulane University to integrate and another for the Orleans Parish School Board to desegregate all elementary schools.

Ellis has also granted Tulane a new desegregation trial and is studying a school board request for a retrial. He has emphasized that since he is considering the matters for the first time he needs more time to study the cases.

The school board hopes he will give it enough time to bypass the September deadline for integrating all elementary schools. The stay will remain in effect until Ellis decides on whether to grant a new trial.

"The situation is all right with us as it stands right now," school board president. Theodore Shepard said. He said the stay allows the board to continue, at least temporarily, using pupil placement tests in gradually desegregating the schools.

When the legislature met in 1960, four Negro first - graders had been admitted to two previously all-white public schools. Today there are 12 Negroes in six white schools. Shepard says there must be more in September.

New Orleans House Seat Runoffs Due

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Charles Smither and Philip Ciaccio led Democratic primaries for state House seats in New Orleans Saturday, but both were forced into runoffs May 26.

Smither, insurance executive making his first bid for elective office, ran far ahead of a seven-man field in the uptown 14th ward for the seat vacated by George Tessier, now a state senator.

Smither, who polled 3,286 votes, will meet John Singreen, an ardent segregationist, in the runoff. Singreen received 1,472 votes. Smither missed a first primary majority by 329 votes.

In the sprawling ninth ward, on the eastern edge of the city, Ciaccio missed a majority by 145 votes. He will face attorney Louis Trent, backed by Mayor Victor Schiro, in the runoff for the seat of Daniel Kelly, now a city councilman. Ciaccio polled 5,161 and Trent had 4,283 to run far ahead of three other candidates.

The Republican candidate in the June 5 general election in the ninth ward is Lucius D. Dalton, who was unopposed.

Racial Group Pickets Police Headquarters

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People began picketing St. Louis police headquarters Saturday, claiming the police board has refused to meet with its representatives.

The board of police commissioners said Negro officers hold a larger number of leadership positions in relation to the total number of Negroes on the force than white officers. The board added there is a shortage of qualified applicants for police jobs, especially for Negroes.

Integration Still Problem

By CARROLL P. TROSCLAIR

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — When the Louisiana Legislature opens a 60-day session Monday it will face an integration problem much more severe than the one which prompted five frantic special sessions in 1960 and 1961.

Many of the integration problems have grown considerably since 1960. New ones have developed. None of the old ones seem to have gone away.

Most of the segregation laws passed by the legislature in its 1960 - 61 special sessions were thrown out by Federal Judge J. Skelly Wright and higher federal courts.

But segregationists denied the special sessions were futile. Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock said they dramatically demonstrated Louisiana's determination to fight for segregation.

The segregation line has been held in some areas, but the fight up to now has been mostly a losing one.

Brightest development for segregationists has been the departure of Judge Wright—who probably did more than any other one man to bring integration to Louisiana.

Wright has been promoted to the Court of Appeals at Washington, D.C. He battled the legislature tooth-and-nail, was called a traitor by some Louisianans and was cited for his "lonely courage by integrationists.

He has been replaced in the federal court here by Frank B. Ellis, who in his first weeks has been pictured as a potential new white hope.

In less than a month Ellis has stayed two Wright orders, one calling for Tulane University to integrate and another for the Orleans Parish School Board to desegregate all elementary schools.

Ellis has also granted Tulane a new desegregation trial and is studying a school board request for a retrial. He has emphasized that since he is considering the matters for the first time he needs more time to study the cases.

The school board hopes he will give it enough time to bypass the September deadline for integrating all elementary schools. The stay will remain in effect until Ellis decides on whether to grant a new trial.

"The situation is all right with us as it stands right now," school board president. Theodore Shepard said. He said the stay allows the board to continue, at least temporarily, using pupil placement tests in gradually desegregating the schools.

When the legislature met in 1960, four Negro first - graders had been admitted to two previously all-white public schools. Today there are 12 Negroes in six white schools. Shepard says there must be more in September.

U.S. Chief Of Proctol Weds Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angier Biddle Duke, State Department protocol chief, and Robin Chandler Lynn of New York were married Saturday in nearby McLean, Va.

President and Mrs. Kennedy stopped in at the wedding reception afterward in the Georgetown home of Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., just around the corner from the house Kennedy occupied when he was a senator.

Vice president and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson also attended.

The wedding took place in the home of Walter T. Ridder. It was performed by Thomas P. Chapman, clerk of the court of Fairfax County. Members of both families were present.

Biddle is the multimillionaire grandson of one of the founders of Duke University and the American Tobacco Co.

His former wife, Lulu, was killed in an airplane crash in New York a year ago.

His bride is a member of the New York Junior League, a director of the Girls Club of New York, and the mother of two teen-age children from a previous marriage to actor Jeffrey Lynn, whom she divorced six years ago.

Duke has two school-age children and a married son.

ONE OF THREE Louisiana State University students to receive the cancer research grant awarded by the American Cancer Society was Joe Gilbert Hollyfield, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Hollyfield of 1608 North Sixth St., Monroe. Hollyfield, a native of El Dorado, Ark. and graduate of Hendrix College at Conway, Ark., was a former student at Northeast State College. He is presently a graduate teaching assistant in the LSU Department of oology.

Congo Leader Declares State Of Emergency

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — President Joseph Kasavubu has declared a state of emergency in Kivu Province because of tensions among political factions, a communique announced Saturday.

The Provincial Assembly voted Monday to censure Provincial President Jean Miruho and several members of his government.

The censure vote arose from several local problems in Kivu.

Miruho should resign as a result of the vote of censure, but he claims no quorum was present and hence the vote was illegal. Since the vote was taken, Miruho has been under the protection of U.N. and Congolese army troops.

Greek Princess Renounces Her Throne Rights

ATHENS, Greece (UPI)— Princess Sophie, whose marriage to Don Juan Carlos may make her queen of Spain some day, formally renounced her rights to the throne of Greece Saturday.

The 23-year old Greek princess and the son of the Pretender to the Spanish throne will be married here Monday.

Sophie was second in line to the Greek throne, after her older brother Prince Constantine, the heir apparent. Her younger sister, Princess Irene, now becomes second in line.

Sophie renounced her rights in a special application to her father, King Paul. The King accepted and the decree will be published shortly in the official government gazette.

The Princess acted in accordance with tradition. In addition, since she will be married to a foreigner who may be king of another country, there was little liklihood of her ascending the throne of Greece.

While Don Juan Carlos's father is still alive, indications are that Generalissimo Francisco Franco would prefer the son of assume the throne, if and when such a move is made.

Video Doctor Is Planning To Continue

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Vince Edwards, television's "Dr. Ben Casey," says he'll be back in video's operating room next season despite all the fighting that's been going on between his agents and Bing Crosby's production company.

For the past several weeks, Edwards' agents have been negotiating with Crosby Productions, owners of the show, over a salary hike.

Edwards demands were considered high, even in a business where large salaries are common.

The actor's representatives want $7,500 per week, 25 per cent ownership of the show and $300,000 to develop new series for his own production company.

All this after one season on the air! Actors in shows which have attained "Casey's" popularity never dreamed of such recompense.

Edwards' salary during the past season has been $1,750 a week. Under terms of his contract, which still has four years to run, Vince would have been raised to $2,000 next season.

Vince's salary would increase year until he reached a top of $2,750 a week within the next four years.

Crosby is a man with millions of dollars and he was kindly disposed towards Vince's request for a raise. But he wasn't prepared to go all the way with Edwards.

Bing offered Vince a raise to $3,000 a show, $15,000 for script development in partnership with Crosby's productions and a cut of any new shows they might create together.

Edwards' agents didn't accept the offer as time for contract renewal rolled around. So, Bing picked up his option on Vince's services for another year at $2,000 a week.

Filming of "Ben Casey" for this season ended last week and Vince was requested to vacation until June at which time he reports back for next year's shooting.

There was some conjecture that he might go on strike against Crosby Productions, a move which could put him in the unemployment lines.

A Crosby spokesman said the company has an exclusive contract with television's "Dr. Ben."

And Edwards, whose career was at best mediocre before "Ben Casey," is smart enough to realize he's found a good thing.

"I'm very happy and grateful," said Edwards, "I'll definitely be back."

Having promised to return, Vince put his surgical kit aside, washed off the makeup and went to a party celebrating the end of filming for "Ben Casey's" first season.

Tech Education Center Planning Special Courses

RUSTON (Special) — Five special courses will be sponsored by the special education center of Louisiana Tech this summer, in addition to regular classes of the department, Ralph L. Wooldridge, director of the special education center, has announced.

A two - week workshop in education of the physically handicapped will be conducted at the Cerebral Palsy School - Clinic in Monroe July 16-27.

Tech also will sponsor a two-week workshop in school audiometry June 5-18, with practicum at the Lincoln Parish Health Unit and the A. E. Phillips Elementary School here.

A six - week course in materials and methods of teaching arts and crafts to mentally handicapped will be taught by Mrs. Mary Beth Huddleston, occupational therapist, registered, June 5 to July 13.

Two other six - week courses at Tech will be "Psychology of Socially and Emotionally Disturbed Children" and "Education of Educable Mentally Retarded Children." These two courses will be taught by Miss Hellen Gully, visiting lecturer from Fort Worth, Tex.

Regular nine - week courses here this summer, leading toward certification in education of exceptional children, include "Administration of Special Education," "Human Anatomy and Physiology," "Child Psychology," "Adolescent Psychology," "Dynamics of Adjustment," "Psychometrics" and Measurement in Education."

Lost Or Stolen Property Sought

Both Monroe and West Monroe police departments were investigating separate reports received Saturday of either lost or stolen money totaling $60 and $150.

In Monroe, Negro Mary Harps of 1203 Pine St., told officers that $60 was missing out of a purse she placed in a dresser drawer Friday night. She was out of the house several times with the purse and was not certain whether it could have been lost or was stolen.

West Monroe police received a report from Carl Hessick at 1402 Glenmar St., Monroe, that he lost his billfold containing $150.

Hessick said he discovered his black leather wallet missing from his pocket Thursday around 3 p.m.

Alabama Political Race Is Unusual

By JOE MCKNIGHT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (APz — Alabamians are being treated to one of the most unusual political races in state history, with all of the state's congressmen viewing each other as political opponents.

Never before have Alabamians elected all their congressmen on a statewide vote.

Never before have all the state's congressmen had to look on each other as political opponents.

A shift in population is causing the state to lose one seat in Congress.

The Alabama Legislature, unable to agree on a redistricting plan, settled on what has become known as the 9-8 plan—a leave-it-to-the voters solution.

Candidates for Congress were nominated in the present nine districts in the May 1 Democratic primary. All district nominees are incumbents. They will meet each other statewide May 29 with the low vote getter being dropped. The eight survivors will be Democratic nominees on the November general ballot.

With the exception of one vital factor—to get renominated—the campaign is totally lacking in issues.

Campaigning statewide is something new for them. They limit it largely to personal contact work and nonpolitical speeches at every possible social and civic function.

When they do make political speeches outside their district, the theme generally is: "Vote for your congressman and consider me."

Frank Boykin, representative from the 1st District, looks on the race as a sad and unfortunate thing for the people of Alabama.

George Grant of the 2nd District called it a hither-and-yonder campaign.

The campaign is especially new to Robert Jones of the 8th District. He has been in Congress 15 years but has never had opposition.

Most of the candidates expressed a common problem—that the public doesn't understand the 9-8 plan.

Several of the representatives say voters in other districts thank them for their time and effort but explain they're voting for their local congressman.

"All voters must vote for eight candidates May 29, said Rains. "Otherwise their ballots won't be counted."

Louisiana Wins In CAP Drill

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Louisiana won its third straight annual southwest region Civil Air Patrol cadet drill competition award Saturday at the Dallas Naval Air Station.

The Louisiana wing scored 739 points out of a possible 800 points to take first place honors ahead of teams from Texas and Arkansas.

To the winners went the Lt. John Henry Dean memorial trophy, named in honor of the CAP hero who lost his life on a special mission flight during World War II.

Kennedy Tot Catches On To Schedules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

Caroline Kennedy may be only four years old, but she's catching on rapidly to life in the White House. For one thing, she's discovered schedules and she also considers herself an integral and operating part of her father's business day.

Watching him leave the White House by helicopter the other morning for a speaking date in Atlantic City, Caroline expressed regret at seeing the President depart.

A staff member quickly assured her, "don't worry, Caroline, he'll be back by lunchtime."

"Well, I'll be back then, too," she replied gravely then skipping off to her morning schedule at play school.

The Kennedys are expanding the leisure area of the White House and landscaping part of the roof, apparently as a high level patio for pleasant warm weather evenings.

The President's new helicopter, a turbo-jet 12-passenger model that can travel at speeds up to 150 miles per hour, is a picture of plush beige luxury on the inside, but the most artful decoration and soundproofing has not kept the new whirly-bird from being noisy. The President's new 'copter has some advantages that may outweigh the noisiness.

On trips of 100 to 200 miles, the speedy rotary aircraft eliminates the time-consuming need for his having to shuttle by helicopter to Andrews Air Force Base where he switches to a conventional jet transport. On longer trips, however, he'll follow his usual pattern of going to Andrews to board the big plane.

The new helicopter has a small galley tended by a white-coated Navy steward and the galley is large enough to prepare simple meals—soup, coffee, eggs, etc.

And Kennedy's craft also now includes a lavatory, a facility missing on earlier models.

The helicopter, a Marine Corps HSS2, is not new in military use. It has been assigned to the President until he receives a jet-powered whirly-bird late this year or sometime next year.

Nuclear Anti-Sub Rocket Is Tested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has successfully tested a fast-firing, ship-launched nuclear anti-submarine rocket that is to be placed aboard more than 100 ships, it was learned Saturday.

The powerful A-weapon, called "Asroc" for anti-subarmine rocket, was fired from a multiple launcher aboard a U. S. destroyer in the Pacific late Friday, informed sources said.

A nuclear test was announced by the Atomic Energy Commission, but the official statement said only that "a low yield nuclear test took place under water . . . several hundred miles from the closest land."

The experiment, releasing an explosive force less than that of the Hiroshima bomb, actually was the first test of a complete ship-fired nuclear weapons system.

The Navy has tested equally powerful atomic depth charges, called "Betty" and "Lulu," but these have to be air-dropped because a ship cannot hurl them out far enough to escape the effects of the explosion.

In answer to inquiries, the Navy said the Asroc is already aboard several ships, and that plans have been made to equip 95 destroyers and 35 frigates with the weapon.

Funds for equipping 24 destroyers with Asrocs have been requested in the budget now before Congress. About half of the total planned have been authorized by Congress. Their chief mission will be to protect aircraft carriers from hostile submarines.

The weapon's multiple launcher carriers eight tubes in two layers of four each. When a submarine is detected, the entire launcher trains on the target, its rocket tubes elevating two at a time. In addition to nuclear warheads, it can launch acoustic torpedos which home in on their targets.

No information was avilable on the distance Friday's warhead was fired. But the Asroc is known to have a range of only a few miles.

The distance from which the nuclear blast would kill a submarine would depend greatly on the vessel's depth. If the submarine was at considerable depth and already under heavy water pressure, the effective range of the explosion might be a half mile or more.

Mothers' Day Present Stolen; Police Probing

Mothers' Day for Mitchell Whitehead's mother will be short on gifts today — someone stole her Mother's Day present from her car just minutes after she received it from her son Saturday.

Monroe police are investigating the theft which took place in front of a DeSiard Street Grocery store.

He told officers the present was given to his mother who took it and laid the package in the car. Shortly afterward, when she returned to the car, the gift was gone.

Police said Whitehead described it as a grey box containing a flowered duster - coat. The incident is under investigation.

Police were also investigating the theft of clothing from a man's car while it was parked at the Hollywood Restaurant at North Fourth Street and Bress Avenue.

The clothing, belonging to J. B. Adcock of 3151 Lakeshore St., Shreveport, was taken while he was inside the restaurant eating lunch between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday. He described the articles as a dark brown man's suit, size 42, valued at $65, and a green ladies dress, valued at $39.95. They were taken through the open car window.

U.S. OFFICIALS AGREE

Airliner Needed To Replace DC3

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Wanted: An airliner to replace the DC3."

Figuratively speaking, that advertisement has been floating all around the aviation industry since World War II ended. It still has not been answered.

Everyone agrees that the smaller airlines (and some of the larger ones, too could use a modern version of the famed Douglas twin-engine transport that has been flying for more than a quarter of a century — a low-cost airliner with the DC3's virtues of simplicity, reliability, economy and versatility.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney, the chairman of the Senate aviation subcommittee, put it bluntly

"What this country really needs is a new DC3 that still sells at DC3 prices," the Oklahoma Democrat said.

"Is the industry which can perfect long-range transports and the X15 and the B70 incapable of producing a suitable aircraft for use by local service carriers? Is it incapable of producing a workhorse aircraft to carry passengers and freight in under-developed areas?"

Vice chairman Robert Murphy of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) recently backed up Monroney's plea for a true DC3 replacement. He said there is a "crying need" for such an airliner. He predicted a huge expansion of air travel if one were developed.

"Many areas of this country could best be served by such an aircraft without incurring tremendous costs for improving ground facilities," Murphy said.

Both Murphy and Monroney may be asking for the moon. The manufacturer who could turn out the modern equivalent of a DC3 for its original price tag of $120,000 would be pulling a production rabbit out of a hat. Just the required electronic navigation devices that have been developed since the DC3 come close to matching the total cost of the veteran plane. Radar alone, mandatory on most commercial transports, runs about $10,000. Then add the not-insignificant problem of vastly increased costs in labor and materials.

Plenty of airliners have come along with hopes of taking over the DC3's job, but none had much success. And price was probably the biggest factor.

Douglas itself is readying what amounts to a pure jet version of its beloved DC3. Designated thus far only as "Model 2086," the twin-engine jet will carry 56 to 74 passenger at subsonic speeds, yet will be able to operate at airports with runways less than one-mile long. Douglas will not put the plane into production, however, unless it gets at least 135 firm orders. No price has been announced, but it certainly will exceed $1.5 million and may approach $2 million.

Negro 'Rider' Plans Return To New Orleans

NEW YORK (AP)—Junius Eli, 21, one of six Negroes who came here on one-way bus tickets paid for by Louisiana segregationists, said Saturday he is returning to New Orleans.

Checking out of a Harlem YMCA, Eli said, "I am leaving today by train for New Orleans —New Orleans is home, the fight's down there."

But then he said he would remain there for a week or two and leave for Sacramento, Calif., to stay with a cousin.

Eli, a former student at Southern University in New Orleans, said that another of the Negroes who arrived with him, Morris Price, 20, will be leaving for New Orleans next Monday or Tuesday.

Eli said that he was not leaving New York because of a lack of employment. "I have made more money in the past two weeks than I ever made in New Orleans," he said.

Eli said that his fare back to New Orleans was paid by newspaper columnist Harry Golden.

Golden had offered to pay the return fare of the first 10 New Orleans Negroes who wanted to go home after "vacationing" in New York at the expense of the White Citizens Council.

Kennedy Tot Catches On To Schedules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

Caroline Kennedy may be only four years old, but she's catching on rapidly to life in the White House. For one thing, she's discovered schedules and she also considers herself an integral and operating part of her father's business day.

Watching him leave the White House by helicopter the other morning for a speaking date in Atlantic City, Caroline expressed regret at seeing the President depart.

A staff member quickly assured her, "don't worry, Caroline, he'll be back by lunchtime."

"Well, I'll be back then, too," she replied gravely then skipping off to her morning schedule at play school.

The Kennedys are expanding the leisure area of the White House and landscaping part of the roof, apparently as a high level patio for pleasant warm weather evenings.

The President's new helicopter, a turbo-jet 12-passenger model that can travel at speeds up to 150 miles per hour, is a picture of plush beige luxury on the inside, but the most artful decoration and soundproofing has not kept the new whirly-bird from being noisy. The President's new 'copter has some advantages that may outweigh the noisiness.

On trips of 100 to 200 miles, the speedy rotary aircraft eliminates the time-consuming need for his having to shuttle by helicopter to Andrews Air Force Base where he switches to a conventional jet transport. On longer trips, however, he'll follow his usual pattern of going to Andrews to board the big plane.

The new helicopter has a small galley tended by a white-coated Navy steward and the galley is large enough to prepare simple meals—soup, coffee, eggs, etc.

And Kennedy's craft also now includes a lavatory, a facility missing on earlier models.

The helicopter, a Marine Corps HSS2, is not new in military use. It has been assigned to the President until he receives a jet-powered whirly-bird late this year or sometime next year.

The woman was accredited to the conference quite legitimately, on the written request of an Iowa newspaper editor. But his request did not cover her dog which announced its presence by a couple of small barks while Kennedy was answering a question.

New Council Is Elected In Primary

the first primary, he took one by six votes; lost in two by 23; lost three by 57; lost eight by 15; won nine by 73; and won in eleven by 108 votes.

Bell claimed precincts four and six, both on the West Monroe southside, by margins of 99 and 32 votes. Norris lost in four and six the first time by 110 and 45 votes.

Bell who resigned as mayor in 1952 and Norris was named his replacement by then - Governor Robert Kennon. Bell edged the incumbent by 61 votes in the first primary, 1514 to 1453. A third man, accountant Richard Vallery, split the vote by claiming 400. He came out Friday in support of Norris.

Last night's voting total was a rather disappointing 3419, or approximately 65 per cent of a full registration figure of 5337. It shaded slightly, by 64 votes, the first primary turn - out of 3355 voters, representing 63 per cent of maximum. Registration total remained the same as parish books were closed because of a library tax election in the ensuing five weeks.

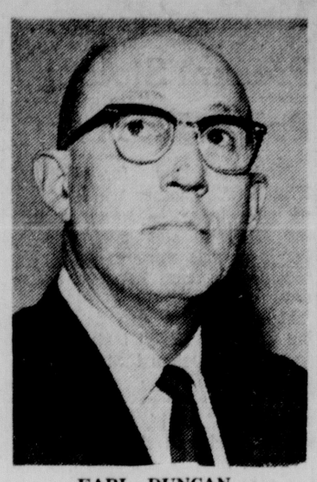
It had been predicted frequently the turn - out Saturday would swell to an all - time high.

In the aldermen's races, Duncan, Mrs. Smith, Wylie and Anding, 1-2-3-4 finishers in the first primary, performed about as expected in duplicating their feats. Mrs. Smith thus becomes the first woman ever elected to public office in West Monroe, as she along with Mrs. Pat Tubbs, a first primary loser, were the first women ever to seek it.

(Others eliminated from 15 first primary would-be aldermen, besides Ponder and Mrs. Tubbs, were Fairell Ketchell, Norman Dodd and J. C. Lolley.)

In order, the remaining candidates bunched this way last night in tight races from top to bottom—Burkett, sixth; Farmer, seventh; Folds, eighth; Jolissaint, ninth; and Heard, tenth.

In the first referendum finals, ninth-place Jolissaint ran sixth, with incumbents Burkett, Heard and Farmer holding down seventh, eight and ninth, and Folds under the wire in tenth place.



EARL DUNCAN

GEORGE WYLIE

MRS. JOYCE SMITH

A. L. DELOACH

CHARLES ANDING

Of the winning five, all of whom take office formally with the close of the present administration July 1, Duncan looked best in precincts six, eight and nine, where he was high; Mrs. Smith in two, three and four, where she was high; Wylie in one and eleven, where he was high; Anding also in one and eleven, where he was near the top; and DeLoach in precincts three and six and eleven where he got an even 500.

Biggest box in the election was at the West Monroe fairgrounds off North Seventh Street, where precinct eleven voters reported fairly late last night at 8:45 p.m., with a sizeable 646 votes for Norris, as against 426 for Bell. Nearly 1500 were registered to vote there; it was a pivotal total for both men.

Norris was trailing by 65 votes with five boxes in, mostly from the southside. Precinct 11 put him in command for keeps when it shot him into the lead by 155 votes. He took precinct 11 in the first primary, as well, but only by 108 votes.

Poll workers yesterday reported, by and large, a fairly good run on the vote throughout the day with activity picking up normally in mid - afternoon and early in the evening. Balloting again was from 6 a.m. until 8 p.m. A total of over 3200 persons were reported as already voted by 7 p.m., with the prospects for substantially exceeding first primary results good.

First box to report came from precinct 4 at 8:25 p.m. It gave a total of but 90 votes to Norris and 189 to Bell, failing ultimately to foreshadow accurately the outcome.

Last to report was the precinct 8 box at 9:15 p.m., quite a bit different from the first with 150 votes for Norris and 119 for Bell. But it didn't wind up making much difference, as Norris already held a 282 vote lead.

Promulgation of the vote is set for 10 a.m. Wednesday at the parish voting machine warehouse, South Seventh Street and the Winnsboro Road in Monroe.

Present for the counting last night, Mayor Norris released the following statement: "I humbly thank the voters of West Monroe for the support you have given me in my re-election in the second primary.

"I shall strive to merit the confidence you have placed in me. I shall work unceasingly in behalf of all our people.

"I especially want to express my most humble and sincere appreciation to those of you who worked so tirelessly for my re-election. Victory was possible only through your efforts."

Bell said, "Defeat is never pleasant and I would not attempt to deny that in this moment of defeat, I am somewhat disappointed. However, I have no apologies for the manner in which we conducted our campaign. We campaigned honorably and with dignity.

"My only apology goes to those hundreds of loyal supporters in may campaign who I am sure share my disappointment. These supporters will have my everlasting gratitude. I urge them now to remember that the city still belongs to all of us and a unified effort for progress will benefit each individual."

DEMO POLITICAL EVENT

JFK Addresses Milwaukee Rally

MILWAUKEE (AP) — President Kennedy, speaking in the state which gave him his real start toward the White House, said Saturday night that many tasks still are undone and, "We cannot permit this country to stand still."

The President spoke at a big Democratic political rally in the Milwaukee Arena, the metropolis of the state which marked up a victory for him in the 1960 primary. Kennedy went on from there to the presidential nomination and the White House.

And he talked in terms reminiscent of his campaign after receiving a welcome by a roaring throng of people packed along a nine-mile motorcade route from the airport into the heart of Milwaukee.

Getting the country moving was a major theme of the campaign in 1960, and Kennedy reverted to that idea Saturday night.

He said he reads in the papers that some people think the President is all right but they don't know about his program. That, he said, has been said of presidents through the years. He ticked off his items—a bill to retrain chronically unemployed, a program to give jobs to young people, a medical care for the aged plan tacked to Social Security, a program of higher education, construction of college dormitories, assistance for farmers.

These, Kennedy said, are things a country must do, things that many other countries did years ago, yet they are regarded with concern here because they are considered new.

"This," the chief executive said, "is the issue between those who feel we should stand still and those who feel we should move ahead."

He said progress has been made in the last year and much remaines to be done, and he does not think we should be wary about the program.

On many of the issues in Congress, he said, the key decisions will be made or have been made by a margin of one or two votes.

Louisiana Tech Beauty Captures Pageant Crown

JONESBORO (Special) — A pretty, 18 - year - old Louisiana Tech coed won over 12 other contestants Saturday in the Jackson Parish beauty pageant, sponsored annually by the parish Jaycees.

The winner, Miss Harriett Irvin of Jonesboro, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Irvin. She will receive a $300 scholarship to a modeling school in Shreveport.

Miss Joy McConathy, 17, of Quitman was named first runner-up. The green - eyed blonde is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taft McConathy of Quitman where she is a high school senior.

Second runner - up was Miss Enid Barr, 18, a senior at Jonesboro - Hodge High School and daughger of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barr.

LP&L Achieves A World's "First" Helping You Live Better Electrically

In its 1961 Annual Report, Louisiana Power & Light Company announced completion of the Little Gypsy generating station—first in the world capable of fully automatic operation. For this achievement in efficient production of low-cost electricity, LP&L is one of five companies in the nation nominated for the 1961 Edison Award—the highest award in the electric utility industry.

With this additional generating capability of 247,000 kilowatts, LP&L's total capability is now four times what it was ten years ago—clear evidence that LP&L is ready with plenty of power for the growing demands of homes, farms, businesses and factories in the 536 communities which it serves.

For the year 1961, LP&L's bill for federal, state and local taxes amounted to $12,823,348. The company willingly pays these taxes to help provide vital community services such as schools, roads, drainage, water, recreational facilities and many others.

Other highlights of LP&L's 1961 Annual Report:

New, efficient billing method, using electronic data processing—another way to insure that electricity remains your biggest bargain.

New Council Is Elected In Primary

the first primary, he took one by six votes; lost in two by 23; lost three by 57; lost eight by 15; won nine by 73; and won in eleven by 108 votes.

Bell claimed precincts four and six, both on the West Monroe southside, by margins of 99 and 32 votes. Norris lost in four and six the first time by 110 and 45 votes.

Bell who resigned as mayor in 1952 and Norris was named his replacement by then - Governor Robert Kennon. Bell edged the incumbent by 61 votes in the first primary, 1514 to 1453. A third man, accountant Richard Vallery, split the vote by claiming 400. He came out Friday in support of Norris.

Last night's voting total was a rather disappointing 3419, or approximately 65 per cent of a full registration figure of 5337. It shaded slightly, by 64 votes, the first primary turn - out of 3355 voters, representing 63 per cent of maximum. Registration total remained the same as parish books were closed because of a library tax election in the ensuing five weeks.

It had been predicted frequently the turn - out Saturday would swell to an all - time high.

In the aldermen's races, Duncan, Mrs. Smith, Wylie and Anding, 1-2-3-4 finishers in the first primary, performed about as expected in duplicating their feats. Mrs. Smith thus becomes the first woman ever elected to public office in West Monroe, as she along with Mrs. Pat Tubbs, a first primary loser, were the first women ever to seek it.

(Others eliminated from 15 first primary would-be aldermen, besides Ponder and Mrs. Tubbs, were Fairell Ketchell, Norman Dodd and J. C. Lolley.)

In order, the remaining candidates bunched this way last night in tight races from top to bottom—Burkett, sixth; Farmer, seventh; Folds, eighth; Jolissaint, ninth; and Heard, tenth.

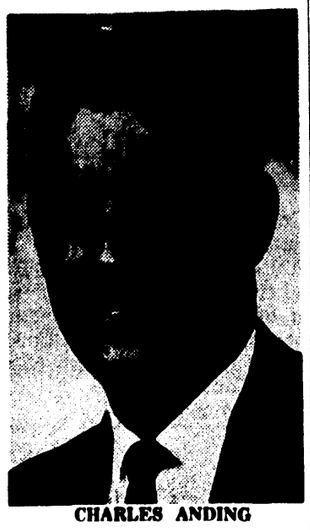
In the first referendum finals, ninth-place Jolissaint ran sixth, with incumbents Burkett, Heard and Farmer holding down seventh, eight and ninth, and Folds under the wire in tenth place.

EARL DUNCAN

GEORGE WYLIE

MRS. JOYCE SMITH

A. L. DELOACH



CHARLES ANDING

Of the winning five, all of whom take office formally with the close of the present administration July 1, Duncan looked best in precincts six, eight and nine, where he was high; Mrs. Smith in two, three and four, where she was high; Wylie in one and eleven, where he was high; Anding also in one and eleven, where he was near the top; and DeLoach in precincts three and six and eleven where he got an even 500.

Biggest box in the election was at the West Monroe fairgrounds off North Seventh Street, where precinct eleven voters reported fairly late last night at 8:45 p.m., with a sizeable 646 votes for Norris, as against 426 for Bell. Nearly 1500 were registered to vote there; it was a pivotal total for both men.

Norris was trailing by 65 votes with five boxes in, mostly from the southside. Precinct 11 put him in command for keeps when it shot him into the lead by 155 votes. He took precinct 11 in the first primary, as well, but only by 108 votes.

Poll workers yesterday reported, by and large, a fairly good run on the vote throughout the day with activity picking up normally in mid - afternoon and early in the evening. Balloting again was from 6 a.m. until 8 p.m. A total of over 3200 persons were reported as already voted by 7 p.m., with the prospects for substantially exceeding first primary results good.

First box to report came from precinct 4 at 8:25 p.m. It gave a total of but 90 votes to Norris and 189 to Bell, failing ultimately to foreshadow accurately the outcome.

Last to report was the precinct 8 box at 9:15 p.m., quite a bit different from the first with 150 votes for Norris and 119 for Bell. But it didn't wind up making much difference, as Norris already held a 282 vote lead.

Promulgation of the vote is set for 10 a.m. Wednesday at the parish voting machine warehouse, South Seventh Street and the Winnsboro Road in Monroe.

Present for the counting last night, Mayor Norris released the following statement: "I humbly thank the voters of West Monroe for the support you have given me in my re-election in the second primary.

"I shall strive to merit the confidence you have placed in me. I shall work unceasingly in behalf of all our people.

"I especially want to express my most humble and sincere appreciation to those of you who worked so tirelessly for my re-election. Victory was possible only through your efforts."

Bell said, "Defeat is never pleasant and I would not attempt to deny that in this moment of defeat, I am somewhat disappointed. However, I have no apologies for the manner in which we conducted our campaign. We campaigned honorably and with dignity.

"My only apology goes to those hundreds of loyal supporters in may campaign who I am sure share my disappointment. These supporters will have my everlasting gratitude. I urge them now to remember that the city still belongs to all of us and a unified effort for progress will benefit each individual."

DEMO POLITICAL EVENT

JFK Addresses Milwaukee Rally

MILWAUKEE (AP) — President Kennedy, speaking in the state which gave him his real start toward the White House, said Saturday night that many tasks still are undone and, "We cannot permit this country to stand still."

The President spoke at a big Democratic political rally in the Milwaukee Arena, the metropolis of the state which marked up a victory for him in the 1960 primary. Kennedy went on from there to the presidential nomination and the White House.

And he talked in terms reminiscent of his campaign after receiving a welcome by a roaring throng of people packed along a nine-mile motorcade route from the airport into the heart of Milwaukee.

Getting the country moving was a major theme of the campaign in 1960, and Kennedy reverted to that idea Saturday night.

He said he reads in the papers that some people think the President is all right but they don't know about his program. That, he said, has been said of presidents through the years. He ticked off his items—a bill to retrain chronically unemployed, a program to give jobs to young people, a medical care for the aged plan tacked to Social Security, a program of higher education, construction of college dormitories, assistance for farmers.

These, Kennedy said, are things a country must do, things that many other countries did years ago, yet they are regarded with concern here because they are considered new.

"This," the chief executive said, "is the issue between those who feel we should stand still and those who feel we should move ahead."

He said progress has been made in the last year and much remaines to be done, and he does not think we should be wary about the program.

On many of the issues in Congress, he said, the key decisions will be made or have been made by a margin of one or two votes.

Reapportioning May Bring Shift In Political Centers

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed with two precedent-smashing Supreme Court decisions, folks from city and suburbia are stepping up a big push to wrest away much of the power wielded by their country cousins in state legislatures.

A great shift in political centers of gravity may result, with incalculable impact on the court of U.S. history.

In more than half the states, litigation is in progress, threatened or talked of, to force reapportionment or otherwise revamp state voting systems. The idea is to change setups under which rural citizens exercise power disproportionate to their long-dwindling numbers.

In one state, Tennessee, the drive has already forced the summoning of a special session of the Legislature, and some other states may follow suit. Study groups are at work in others, and in some there is talk of constitutional amendments.

In some states, litigation has thrown a cloud of uncertainty over this year's voting. For example, Marylanders vote Tuesday in an important primary without knowing what the ground rules are or whether the results — as reckoned under the existing system—will stick.

For Maryland uses the unit system in primaries, a system which a federal court has already struck down in Georgia. The unit system is under court attack in Maryland, as is also the apportionment of the Legislature.

Thus if a governorship candidate, for example, wins nomination without a plurality of popular votes—which has happened in the past—the political fat will be in the fire. The Maryland Committee for Fair Representation has said it will then press its suit against the unit rule.

The unit system works this way in Maryland: Each county and Baltimore City Legislative District is allowed the same number of votes as it has seats in the Legislature. Candidates who carry a county—even by the tiniest margin—get all its unit votes at a subsequent state convention.

The unit system is weighted in favor of sparsely populated counties in the same manner as the makeup of the Legislature. A suit against the present legislative apportionment is pending in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court.

If this court finds "invidious discrimination" — as practically everyone expects—Gov. J. Millard Tawes, a Democrat, has said he will call a special legislative session to pass corrective legislation.

Among other states in which litigation about legislative apportionment is pending or talked of are: Alabama, Colorado, Connecticut Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin.

It seems certain that before the dust settles, there will be marked changes in such situations as Georgia's, where one vote cast in the least populous county has had the same weight as 99 votes in the most populous.

A three-judge federal court has voided the century-old Georgia unit system used in Democratic primaries — traditionally the only real elections in Georgia. The unit rule permitted rural domination of politics to such an extent that the late Gov. Eugene Talmadge (he of the red galluses and the strong appeal to "wool hat" country dwellers) once said he never bothered to campaign in a community big enough to have street car tracks.

The present governor, Ernest Vandiver, a backer of the unit system, decided to go through the motions of an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, but evidently without real hope of success. The appeal, by the Democratic Party of Georgia and the state attorney general, was filed Friday and asked a quick decision because the Democratic primary is set for Sept. 12.

If the appeal fails, the governor has the alternative of calling a special legislative session or summoning the state Democratic Executive Committee to formulate new rules for the party.

For years urban and suburban voters in many states have complained that despite a great exodus from farms to cities over the past few decades farm areas still dominated state legislatures. The result, they said, was neglect of such city needs as roads, schools, transportation, aids to attract industry, etc.

Rural champions, on the other hand, argued that history, custom, geography and community relations should carry weight in apportionment. They raised the standard of states' rights, and pointed to the age-old reluctance of courts to intervene in such disputes.

Until recently, the Supreme Court refrained from entering the "political thicket" of apportionment, but on March 26 it ruled that federal courts can hear the complaints of citizens who contend present methods of dividing up legislative seats are unconstitutional.

The high court followed up this decision, perhaps the most important since its decree against school segregation, with another directing the Michigan Supreme Court to look into the question whether the apportionment of the State Senate violates the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. This amendment forbids states to deprive citizens of "equal protection of the laws."

How far the pendulum will swing is a big question. Some who worry about the rights of minorities fear that eventually city blocs in state legislatures may grow so big they can ride roughshod over farm delegations.

One suggested solution is to base the apportionment of one house of a state legislature on population, and the other on area or "real estate." This is the system used in the U.S. Congress, where each state has two senators, while the House membership is based on population.

Some constitutional specialists dispute this analogy, however. They point out that states have attributes of sovereignty, which the founding fathers recognized, while state subdivisions, such as counties, cities and towns, do not. These are usually regarded, in a legal sense, as mere creations of state governments.

Nobody expects that all or most state voting systems will wind up based strictly on population alone —on a simple counting of heads. Considerable leeway is expected to be left as the courts determine what is "reasonable."

For example, in Georgia the court said a unit voting system would not be "invidious" if the difference in the weight of individual votes in various counties were no greater than the differences in the U.S. Electoral College. Each state has a vote in the electoral college equal to the total of its senators and representatives in Congress.

Thus Alaska has three electoral votes and New York state 45. This figures out to one electoral vote for 76,000 citizens of Alaska and one for 375,000 citizens of New York.

New Principal For School At Baskin Reported

WINNSBORO (Special) — Henry Earl Reagan, 43, has been transfered from the position as principal of Crowville High School to principal of Baskin High School.

The action was taken at a regular meeting of the Franklin Parish School Board in Winnsboro Friday.

Reagan replaces F. E. Lyles as principal at Baskin. Lyles has retired effective at the end of this school term after being principal there for 28 years.

No action was taken on the principalship vacancy at Crowville.

M. D. Peel, Superintendent of Franklin Parish Schools, said that Reagan expressed regreat at leaving Crowville but that he could not turn down the chance to return as principal to the school from which he graduated and where he had been agriculture teacher for many years.

Reagan went from Baskin to principal of Central High School three years ago, and was transfered to Crowville High School last year.

Prizes Are Set By Downtown Merchant Group

The Greater Monroe Downtown Assn. will award $25 prizes Monday to the three winners of its week-long "Downtown Monroe Is For Mom" contest concluded Friday.

Receiving the money will be the oldest mother, the youngest mother and the mother with the most children registering during the contest.

Winning the prize as oldest mother was Mrs. J. D. McGee of 2317 Trenton in West Monroe. She was born Sept. 14, 1874, and is 87 years old.

Mrs. Shirlane Viola of Route 2, Monroe, won in the youngest mother division. Born Sept. 16, 1946, she is 15 and has one child 14 months old.

Susie Daniel, Negro, of 1011 Texas Ave., Monroe, will collect $25 for having the most children—17, of which 15 are alive.

Fred Beckett, chairman of the sponsoring committee, said that over 1000 mothers registered for the contest and that the committee carefully "screened every application as to who was the rightful winner," in each division.

The contest ran over a one-week period, closing out at 5:30 p.m. last Friday.

WALKOUT CALLED OFF

TOKYO (UPI)—The All-Japan's seaman's union won its demands Thursday from Japanese shipowners for a reduction in the work week from 56 to 48 hours with no loss in pay. It called off a second wave of a 10-day walkout scheduled Thursday.

FORMER NURSE HELD

Infant In Hospital Nursery Stabbed

SEATTLE (AP) — A twin boy only 8½ hours old was stabbed in the chest with a butcher knife early Saturday in the nursery of doctor's hospital here.

The baby, born at 9 p.m. Friday night, was described in satisfactory condition. X-rays were scheduled to determine the exact extent of the wound in the upper center of the infant's chest.

Police said the assailant was a former nurse at the hospital, Mrs. Pearl Simons, 35. She was taken to police headquarters for questioning, but police were unable to establish a motive for the attack.

Another nurse, Mrs. Jean McKean, 39, was cut on the head as she struggled desperately to wrest the knife from Mrs. Simons.

The baby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Perrault of Seattle, was in an isolette as is customary in multiple births.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Simons, a mother of three children, apparently entered the hospital about 5:30 a.m. with early-morning nursing and kitchen crews at a time when she could easily go unnoticed.

Mrs. McKeen, night supervisor, first saw Mrs. Simons in the glass-walled isolation room, the knife in her hand. Hospital authorities said Mrs. McKean screamed and ran into the room to grapple with Mrs. Simons.

"That scream apparently startled Mrs. Simons and prevented her from doing anything else until Mrs. McKean grabbed her," a hospital associate said, adding:

"Nobody ever fought like that Mrs. McKean. Those that were there said it was the bravest thing they'd ever seen."

Civitan Meeting Scheduled Here

Rural champions, on the other hand, argued that history, custom, geography and community relations should carry weight in apportionment. They raised the standard of states' rights, and pointed to the age-old reluctance of courts to intervene in such disputes.

Until recently, the Supreme Court refrained from entering the "political thicket" of apportionment, but on March 26 it ruled that federal courts can hear the complaints of citizens who contend present methods of dividing up legislative seats are unconstitutional.

The high court followed up this decision, perhaps the most important since its decree against school segregation, with another directing the Michigan Supreme Court to look into the question whether the apportionment of the State Senate violates the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. This amendment forbids states to deprive citizens of "equal protection of the laws."

How far the pendulum will swing is a big question. Some who worry about the rights of minorities fear that eventually city blocs in state legislatures may grow so big they can ride roughshod over farm delegations.

One suggested solution is to base the apportionment of one house of a state legislature on population, and the other on area or "real estate." This is the system used in the U.S. Congress, where each state has two senators, while the House membership is based on population.

Some constitutional specialists dispute this analogy, however. They point out that states have attributes of sovereignty, which the founding fathers recognized, while state subdivisions, such as counties, cities and towns, do not. These are usually regarded, in a legal sense, as mere creations of state governments.

Nobody expects that all or most state voting systems will wind up based strictly on population alone —on a simple counting of heads. Considerable leeway is expected to be left as the courts determine what is "reasonable."

For example, in Georgia the court said a unit voting system would not be "invidious" if the difference in the weight of individual votes in various counties were no greater than the differences in the U.S. Electoral College. Each state has a vote in the electoral college equal to the total of its senators and representatives in Congress.

Thus Alaska has three electoral votes and New York state 45. This figures out to one electoral vote for 76,000 citizens of Alaska and one for 375,000 citizens of New York.

New Principal For School At Baskin Reported

WINNSBORO (Special) — Henry Earl Reagan, 43, has been transfered from the position as principal of Crowville High School to principal of Baskin High School.

The action was taken at a regular meeting of the Franklin Parish School Board in Winnsboro Friday.

Reagan replaces F. E. Lyles as principal at Baskin. Lyles has retired effective at the end of this school term after being principal there for 28 years.

No action was taken on the principalship vacancy at Crowville.

M. D. Peel, Superintendent of Franklin Parish Schools, said that Reagan expressed regreat at leaving Crowville but that he could not turn down the chance to return as principal to the school from which he graduated and where he had been agriculture teacher for many years.

Reagan went from Baskin to principal of Central High School three years ago, and was transfered to Crowville High School last year.

Prizes Are Set By Downtown Merchant Group

The Greater Monroe Downtown Assn. will award $25 prizes Monday to the three winners of its week-long "Downtown Monroe Is For Mom" contest concluded Friday.

Receiving the money will be the oldest mother, the youngest mother and the mother with the most children registering during the contest.

Winning the prize as oldest mother was Mrs. J. D. McGee of 2317 Trenton in West Monroe. She was born Sept. 11, 1874, and is 87 years old.

Mrs. Shirlane Viola of Route 2, Monroe, won in the youngest mother division. Born Sept. 16, 1946, she is 15 and has one child 14 months old.

Susie Daniel, Negro, of 1011 Texas Ave., Monroe, will collect $25 for having the most children—17, of which 15 are alive.

Fred Beckett, chairman of the sponsoring committee, said that over 1000 mothers registered for the contest and that the committee carefully "screened every application as to who was the rightful winner," in each division.

The contest ran over a one-week period, closing out at 5:30 p.m. last Friday.

WALKOUT CALLED OFF

TOKYO (UPI)—The All-Japan's seaman's union won its demands Thursday from Japanese shipowners for a reduction in the work week from 56 to 48 hours with no loss in pay. It called off a second wave of a 10-day walkout scheduled Thursday.

FORMER NURSE HELD

Infant In Hospital Nursery Stabbed

SEATTLE (AP) — A twin boy only 8½ hours old was stabbed in the chest with a butcher knife early Saturday in the nursery of doctor's hospital here.

The baby, born at 9 p.m. Friday night, was described in satisfactory condition. X-rays were scheduled to determine the exact extent of the wound in the upper center of the infant's chest.

Police said the assailant was a former nurse at the hospital, Mrs. Pearl Simons, 35. She was taken to police headquarters for questioning, but police were unable to establish a motive for the attack.

Another nurse, Mrs. Jean McKean, 39, was cut on the head as she struggled desperately to wrest the knife from Mrs. Simons.

The baby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Perrault of Seattle, was in an isolette as is customary in multiple births.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Simons, a mother of three children, apparently entered the hospital about 5:30 a.m. with early-morning nursing and kitchen crews at a time when she could easily go unnoticed.

Mrs. McKeen, night supervisor, first saw Mrs. Simons in the glass-walled isolation room, the knife in her hand. Hospital authorities said Mrs. McKean screamed and ran into the room to grapple with Mrs. Simons.

"That scream apparently startled Mrs. Simons and prevented her from doing anything else until Mrs. McKean grabbed her," a hospital associate said, adding: "Nobody ever fought like that Mrs. McKean. Those that were there said it was the bravest thing they'd ever seen."

Civitan Meeting Scheduled Here

The Louisiana northwest district of Civitan International will hold an annual council meeting here May 19-20, according to district W. J. Keating of Alexandria.

Keating will preside at the meeting which will feature a display of "The Fabulous Octogenarian," a biography of Courtney W. Shropshire, founder and first Civitan International president.

Thailand Premier Pledges To Fight If Red Forces In Laos Cross Border

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Thailand reacted with alarm Saturday to the rebel success in Laos and Interior Minister Gen. Prapas Charusatien warned, "the Communists are at our own door."

"We will fight to our last breath against the Communist danger," he pledged. "We will fight on every inch of our land."

Premier Sarit Thanarat was preparing to make a personal inspection of Thai defenses along its northern border with Laos following the fall of the Laos stronghold of Houei Sai.

Capture of the Mekong River town by pro-Communist forces held out the threat of penetration by Communist agents and guerrillas into Thailand's rugged northern mountains.

There still was no indication the Southeast Treaty Organization (SEATO) would act in the current crisis. It could send troops into Laos if the Laotian government requested it and if it felt its security was threatened.

SEATO headquarters are in Bangkok.

Sarit, who is supreme commander of the Thai army in addition to being premier, said Friday the Thai border defenses may not yet be adequate and expressed concern over the approach of Communist troops.

He said he would go to the Thai village of Xiengkhong where 2,000 Lao troops have been interned across the 150-yard wide Mekong River from Houei Sai.

He said his personal inspection trip would be necessary before any orders are given for defense actions but the situation in Laos "makes it necessary for us to be on the alert."

Century Of Postal Service Traced

By RAY P. EAGLES
And W. L. SOWERS

WINNFIELD — Improved roads, automation and populatitions shifts have left their marks in the history of the postal service in Winn Parish.

In times past, before the advent of the rural mail delivery service in this area and before modern modes of transportation, there were perhaps as many as 20 post offices serving the communities of Winn at the same time.

At present there are seven post offices in the parish. They are located at Winnfield, St. Maurice, Atlanta, Calvin, Dodson, Sikes and Joyce.

INTENSIVE SEARCH

This information, and lots more, has come from an intensive search of old records by an employee of the Winnfield Post Office, W. L. Sowers, who is president of the Winn Parish Historical and Genealogical Society.

In his search he has compiled an authenticated historical document from records of the Department of Archives, Washington, D. C., dating from 1852. It lists all of the post offices in the parish from that date to the present, along with the appointment date of every post - master serving during the past 110 years.

The records show that in towns as well as in rural communities the location of a post office might change as much as a mile and yet retain the original name and serve substantially the same area.

In other cases names of post offices changed, yet they remained in the same locations.

An effort is being made to gather further details about the various post offices in Winn for the purposes of a preparing a history of the mail service in the parish area.

SEARCH

Sowers is asking residents of the parish how many places in their respective communities they can name where post offices have been located.

He also is seeking interesting information, amusing or serious, about the postal service in the parish.

Interviews with some of the former postmasters have brought out some interesting facts.

Mrs. John H. Mosley was the only woman to serve as postmaster at Winnfield in the 108-year history of that office. The former Miss Mary Belle Wallace, she served from 1901 to 1903.

Now, at the age of 85, she is still busy in church and community activities. She teaches a Sunday School class regularly at the First Baptist Church, an activity she has followed for almost 40 years. In addition to this she lends a strong, clear alto voice to the church choir, and is active in Women's Missionary Union work.

Mrs. Thera Stovall, postmaster at Dodson from May 2, 1933 until June 30, 1949, has the unusual distinction of having been approved for the post by both Republicans and Democrats.

BOTH SIDES

A letter dated March 3, 1933, from Walter F. Brown, postmaster general under President Hoover, stated that she had been approved and said that her commission would follow. The commission, dated May 2, 1933, was received. It was signed by James Farley, postmaster general under Democratic President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Stovall's disability retirement was the result of work overload at the post office during the accelerated days of World War Two when it was impossible to keep clerks at the prevailing rate of pay.

She recalled that in one 24-month period the Dodson post office had 17 clerk changes. The Dodson office advanced from fourth to third class July 1, 1937.

She now resides in Winnfield where reading and church activities occupy her attentions.

Recently he unrolled his commission as postmaster to show that it is dated Jan. 7, 1902. It bears the signature of Henry C. Payne, as postmaster general. He recalled that he had served under 14 postmasters general, and nine presidents.

PAY RATE

The pay for his services in the early days of service was $10 a month. The office was operated in connection with his store for the first 17 years.

William Howard McCarty of Beech Creek community in Winn, served as postmaster of Flat Creek Post Office from Jan. 13, 1912 until June 30, 1947, when the office was discontinued.

Now at the age of 82, he reports that he is not as active in farming, livestock raising and community activites as he once was. He now has only between 115 to 120 head of cows and a "few hogs." Few, in his way of reckoning might be 50 or 60.

Monroe Erskins, for 35 years postmaster at Sikes, recently was seen standing on the outside of the postal window looking in and asking the same question he has heard for many years: "When is the window going to open?"

Long a follower of fox hunting, he retired from following the hounds at about the same time that he retired from the postal service on Nov. 30, 1958.

He said he sold his beagle hounds, but still does a little deer hunting. Most of his time, however, is spent in gardening and watching his "patch" of pine saplings grow.

POSTAL FAMILY

Erskins recalled that he is from a family of postmasters. His grandfather, Squire E. Hart, was postmaster at Newport, La., in the 1860's. An uncle, Marion L. Erskins, was at Newport in 1903. A brother, Iley M., was at Hill, La. in 1903, and an uncle, James K. Erskins, was postmaster at Hill in 1917.

Winnfield has been host to the leading state postal officials in times past. The Louisiana Postmasters' Convention was held here in 1909. Ray Eagles, the News - Star — World correspondent in Winn Parish, has a print of a photo taken during that convention. The styles of that time stand out in bold contrast to those of the present day.

Here is a rundown on the post offices past and present, and their postmasters, and other data compiled from archive records:

Saline Mills — (This is the only Post Office in the area of Natchotoches Parish that made up Winn Parish in 1852). Postmaster, James O. Weeks, July 6, 1854; discontinued Oct. 19, 1859.

Fantastic Possibilities

A quick, easy cure for the common cold? Perhaps.

A washday detergent as effective as those you see in the television commercials? Difficult, but still possible.

All these wonders, and more, may spring from the Nuclear Science Center now in the final planning stages at Auburn University here.

OUTLOOK

Dr. Warren M. Andrews, who will direct the center when it opens in the fall of 1963, won't flatly predict the development of exotic vegetables, miracle drugs or better-than-perfect detergents.

But he doesn't discount the possibilities, either.

"We are just entering the nuclear age," he said in an interview. "The possibilities are fantastic."

There is nothing new about a university getting into nuclear research. That has been going on ever since the subject came off the government's top-secret list in 1954.

But the Auburn center will be unique: Other universities have concentrated on nuclear engineering and the production of power; the facilities here will be available to all interested departments on the campus.

The $1-million-plus center will provide classrooms and laboratory space for Auburn's schools of agriculture, veterinary medicine, pharmacy, home economics, engineering, physics and chemistry.

These facilities will be in wings leading off a nuclear reactor. The center is designed so additional wings can be added later.

HOME ECONOMICS

How does home economics get into the act?

"Nuclear science may turn up new and better ways to pasteurize and preserve food," Andrews said.

"Or suppose you want to test a new detergent. You can make dirt slightly radioactive, then rub into the material to be washed.

"After each washing you test the material with a radiation detector to see how much of the dirt remains. This testing is now done chemically, but it is neither as easy nor as accurate.

"You can use the same 'tracer' technique to test new types of dyes, to see how well they stay on a fabric, or to develop new wash and wear materials."

RADIATION

If seeds are subjected to massive doses of radiation, for instance, "there is no telling what might sprout up."

The School of Veterinary Medicine may conduct experiments in the treatment of cancers and tumors with radiation, and the effects of X rays on pregnant animals.

The School of Pharmacy will be able to study the effects of certain drugs on the body, or make new finds in the study of poisons.

"The pharmacists and the veterinarians may conduct joint experiments on how radiation affects human tissues," Andrews said.

Century Of Postal Service Traced

By RAY P. EAGLES
And W. L. SOWERS

WINNFIELD — Improved roads, automation and populatitions shifts have left their marks in the history of the postal service in Winn Parish.

In times past, before the advent of the rural mail delivery service in this area and before modern modes of transportation, there were perhaps as many as 20 post offices serving the communities of Winn at the same time.

At present there are seven post offices in the parish. They are located at Winnfield, St. Maurice, Atlanta, Calvin, Dodson, Sikes and Joyce.

INTENSIVE SEARCH

This information, and lots more, has come from an intensive search of old records by an employee of the Winnfield Post Office, W. L. Sowers, who is president of the Winn Parish Historical and Genealogical Society.

In his search he has compiled an authenticated historical document from records of the Department of Archives, Washington, D. C., dating from 1852. It lists all of the post offices in the parish from that date to the present, along with the appointment date of every post - master serving during the past 110 years.

The records show that in towns as well as in rural communities the location of a post office might change as much as a mile and yet retain the original name and serve substantially the same area.

In other cases names of post offices changed, yet they remained in the same locations.

An effort is being made to gather further details about the various post offices in Winn for the purposes of a preparing a history of the mail service in the parish area.

SEARCH

Sowers is asking residents of the parish how many places in their respective communities they can name where post offices have been located.

He also is seeking interesting information, amusing or serious, about the postal service in the parish.

Interviews with some of the former postmasters have brought out some interesting facts.

Mrs. John H. Mosley was the only woman to serve as postmaster at Winnfield in the 108-year history of that office. The former Miss Mary Belle Wallace, she served from 1901 to 1903.

Now, at the age of 85, she is still busy in church and community activities. She teaches a Sunday School class regularly at the First Baptist Church, an activity she has followed for almost 40 years. In addition to this she lends a strong, clear alto voice to the church choir, and is active in Women's Missionary Union work.

Mrs. Thera Stovall, postmaster at Dodson from May 2, 1933 until June 30, 1949, has the unusual distinction of having been approved for the post by both Republicans and Democrats.

BOTH SIDES

A letter dated March 3, 1933, from Walter F. Brown, postmaster general under President Hoover, stated that she had been approved and said that her commission would follow. The commission, dated May 2, 1933, was received. It was signed by James Farley, postmaster general under Democratic President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Stovall's disability retirement was the result of work overload at the post office during the accelerated days of World War Two when it was impossible to keep clerks at the prevailing rate of pay.

She recalled that in one 24-month period the Dodson post office had 17 clerk changes. The Dodson office advanced from fourth to third class July 1, 1937.

She now resides in Winnfield where reading and church activities occupy her attentions.

Recently he unrolled his commission as postmaster to show that it is dated Jan. 7, 1902. It bears the signature of Henry C. Payne, as postmaster general. He recalled that he had served under 14 postmasters general, and nine presidents.

PAY RATE

The pay for his services in the early days of service was $10 a month. The office was operated in connection with his store for the first 17 years.

William Howard McCarty of Beech Creek community in Winn, served as postmaster of Flat Creek Post Office from Jan. 13, 1912 until June 30, 1947, when the office was discontinued.

Now at the age of 82, he reports that he is not as active in farming, livestock raising and community activites as he once was. He now has only between 115 to 120 head of cows and a "few hogs." Few, in his way of reckoning might be 50 or 60.

Monroe Erskins, for 35 years postmaster at Sikes, recently was seen standing on the outside of the postal window looking in and asking the same question he has heard for many years: "When is the window going to open?"

Long a follower of fox hunting, he retired from following the hounds at about the same time that he retired from the postal service on Nov. 30, 1958.

He said he sold his beagle hounds, but still does a little deer hunting. Most of his time, however, is spent in gardening and watching his "patch" of pine saplings grow.

POSTAL FAMILY

Erskins recalled that he is from a family of postmasters. His grandfather, Squire E. Hart, was postmaster at Newport, La., in the 1860's. An uncle, Marion L. Erskins, was at Newport in 1903. A brother, Iley M., was at Hill, La. in 1903, and an uncle, James K. Erskins, was postmaster at Hill in 1917.

Winnfield has been host to the leading state postal officials in times past. The Louisiana Postmasters' Convention was held here in 1909. Ray Eagles, the News - Star — World correspondent in Winn Parish, has a print of a photo taken during that convention. The styles of that time stand out in bold contrast to those of the present day.

Here is a rundown on the post offices past and present, and their postmasters, and other data compiled from archive records:

Saline Mills — (This is the only Post Office in the area of Natchotoches Parish that made up Winn Parish in 1852). Postmaster, James O. Weeks, July 6, 1854; discontinued Oct. 19, 1859.

Fantastic Possibilities

A quick, easy cure for the common cold? Perhaps.

A washday detergent as effective as those you see in the television commercials? Difficult, but still possible.

All these wonders, and more, may spring from the Nuclear Science Center now in the final planning stages at Auburn University here.

OUTLOOK

Dr. Warren M. Andrews, who will direct the center when it opens in the fall of 1963, won't flatly predict the development of exotic vegetables, miracle drugs or better-than-perfect detergents.

But he doesn't discount the possibilities, either.

"We are just entering the nuclear age," he said in an interview. "The possibilities are fantastic."

There is nothing new about a university getting into nuclear research. That has been going on ever since the subject came off the government's top-secret list in 1954.

But the Auburn center will be unique: Other universities have concentrated on nuclear engineering and the production of power; the facilities here will be available to all interested departments on the campus.

The $1-million-plus center will provide classrooms and laboratory space for Auburn's schools of agriculture, veterinary medicine, pharmacy, home economics, engineering, physics and chemistry.

These facilities will be in wings leading off a nuclear reactor. The center is designed so additional wings can be added later.

HOME ECONOMICS

How does home economics get into the act?

"Nuclear science may turn up new and better ways to pasteurize and preserve food," Andrews said.

"Or suppose you want to test a new detergent. You can make dirt slightly radioactive, then rub into the material to be washed.

"After each washing you test the material with a radiation detector to see how much of the dirt remains. This testing is now done chemically, but it is neither as easy nor as accurate.

"You can use the same 'tracer' technique to test new types of dyes, to see how well they stay on a fabric, or to develop new wash and wear materials."

Agriculture is another field where research possibilities are endless, Andrews said.

RADIATION

If seeds are subjected to massive doses of radiation, for instance, "there is no telling what might sprout up."

The School of Veterinary Medicine may conduct experiments in the treatment of cancers and tumors with radiation, and the effects of X rays on pregnant animals.

The School of Pharmacy will be able to study the effects of certain drugs on the body, or make new finds in the study of poisons.

"The pharmacists and the veterinarians may conduct joint experiments on how radiation affects human tissues," Andrews said.

John's Hospital Bill

While at first glance it might seem to have some merit, the bill by State Representative Mike John, Jr., to require a fee of $1 per visit from out-patients at state-supported hospitals appears to have enough objectional features to make it undesirable.

Three ways in which the bill might appear to be advantageous are that some additional revenue for the hospitals would be collected; some patients who might be able to pay would be required to pay about one-third of what they would pay for a visit to a regular physician; and it might remove these persons from free medical service as provided under socialized medicine. In each of these three ways the apparent advantage is illusionary.

In regard to the additional revenue, a still greater sum for the state could be obtained if all the patients, both in-patients and out-patients, were required to make some payment for their treatment. There is no reason to assume that most of the out-patients are able to pay and that none of the in-patients are able. Mr. John says that perhaps five per cent or less of the out-patients would not be able to pay the $1-per-visit fee but that at least 95 per cent would be able to pay. It is extremely difficult to see how he arrived at those figures but if he assumes they are correct how can he say that in-patients are not able to pay. It is incorrect to say that because a person is a bed-patient in a hospital he is less able to pay than if he merely comes in for treatment and then leaves.

The proposed change might actually make the cost of operating great enough to more than offset the amount collected. This could easily be true for the reason that many persons who now are out-patients would demand to be admitted as in-patients if they could get the in-patient treatment free of charge and had to pay for the out-patient treatment. Because of crowded conditions, the trend now is to treat as many of the patients as possible as out-patients. It would be obviously unfair to charge a patient for treatment simply because he was willing to go back and forth to his home rather than remain in the hospital.

Furthermore, the state-supported hospitals are operated as charitable institutions and the regulations do not provide for pay patients. An exception to this is the aged persons who are on social security, who are required to pay a fee less than they would pay to a private physician. This, however, is tied in with federal legislation to which many people object.

Making the patients pay a $1 fee for each visit would pre-suppose that they are able to pay for medical treatment, which is contrary to the premise on which the charity hospitals are based. If we were to suppose that 95 per cent of the out-patients are able to pay $1 a visit for treatment, which is obviously untrue if they have been properly screened, then how would we determine how many of the patients were able to pay $2 a visit or $3 a visit or whatever a private physician would charge. Clearly not all of these patients have exactly the same ability to pay.

Charging only $1 for a visit would remove patients from the full-charity class but would not establish them as patients able to pay their own way for services by a private physician. Thus, we apparently would have a mixture of charity treatment and treatment for pay to the state. If we have payment to the state for medical treatment then we have a form of socialized medicine that would pave the way for full socialized medicine.

Concerning his bill, Mr. John said in part:

"This bill will in no way or manner affect any person who is entitled to in-patient bed hospitalization at our charity hospitals.

"At a time when this state is looking for every possible way to reduce expenditures, effect economy and provide our citizens with necessary services, my proposal can and will reduce state expenditures for these services by a fantastic sum.

"A recent survey on my part revealed that last year at E. A. Conway hospital a total of 55,186 persons or visits were conducted through the out-patient clinic.

"If this be the case here in Monroe, I believe it would be safe to assume that this total for Louisiana might conceivably run as high as $2 million when taken into consideration Charity Hospital of New Orleans, Confederate Memorial Medical Center in Shreveport and other charity hospitals under the state department of hospitals.

"I do not believe that it was ever intended for our charity hospitals to become a 'free clinic' for day in and out medical visits for people who are not bed-hospitalized. The time has come when our people must cease to think of our state government in terms of a 'free agency' for all goods and services."

Because Mr. John does seem opposed to free medical treatment for everyone and because his opposition seems to be the basis for his bill, we say that at first glance the bill might appear to have some merit but the misconceptions of the measure seem so clear that its merit appears to be far outweighed by disadvantages.

The evident purpose of the bill is to gain more state revenue but this effect would be extremely doubtful. Bookkeeping and collection costs would dig heavily into the additional revenue. The increased number of in-patients would run up the costs.

In the final analysis, however, the question seems to be how many patients the charity hospitals are treating who are able to pay. If they aren't able to pay, why charge them, whether they are in-patients or out-patients? If they are able to pay, why treat them at charity institutions?

Ribicoff's 'Silly' Charge

Abraham Ribicoff, one of President Kennedy's hand-picked leftist "brains," apparently has decided he has more sense than the members of the American Medical Association, most of whom have spent some 19 to 24 years in school. The secretary of health, education and welfare called on members of the American Medical Association to "quit hurling silly charges" at him.

Who is Ribicoff to decide that the organization which represents practically all of the doctors in the United States is silly? That's about like a proud mother saying, "All the soldiers are out of step except my son John."

Ribicoff's statements was in reply to charges by Dr. F. J. L. Blasingame, AMA executive vice-president, that the welfare department's publication last week of a booklet on the health care of the aged was a violation of laws lobbying with public funds.

Dr. Blasingame contended the booklet lobbies for the president's proposed health insurance for the aged through social security. He asked for an investigation by Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

Since the attorney general is at least as deep in the program for socializing this country as is his brother, President Kennedy, the likelihood that he will take any effective action to stop the sort of lobbying mentioned by Dr. Blasingame is infinitesimal.

Ribicoff stated that, "The American Medical Association is obviously scared."

Sino-Soviet Cooperation

Evidence Of Countries' Working Together In Freight Shipments Casts Doubt On Stories Of Rift

The Chinese Communists' secret handling of huge grain purchases from Canada raises new doubts about the accuracy of those recurring reports of a deep Chinese-Soviet rift.

Large amounts of these Chinese grain purchases are being shipped directly from Canada to Communist East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia to meet growing food shortages throughout the Soviet satellites in Eastern Europe.

In exchange, the Russians are shipping a corresponding amount of their grain by ship and rail to Communist China from eastern Soviet Cities and ports.

This intriguing story of Sino-Soviet cooperation is highlighted in a Defense Intelligence Agency report pieced together from information gathered from Canadian and Eastern European sources.

It reveals that the independent Canadian Wheat Board, which negotiated the $400 million wheat and barley sales, is keeping secret many of these shipping details at the request of the Chinese Communists.

The DIA report states that nearly all the grain shipments from Montreal and Halifax are going to ports in East Germany and Poland, with a few ships being routed to Albania. Grain shipments originating from Vancouver, on Canada's west coast, are going directly to Communist China.

According to the DIA estimate, the Soviet-Red Chinese accord is of tremendous advantage to both Communist countries and shows the close working arrangement between Peiping and Moscow.

For instance, the shipping arrangement permits the Chinese Communists to slash their shipping costs in half since the Peiping regime pays only the cost of transporting the grain from Soviet shipping areas.

On the other hand, Russia benefits tremendously by using the grain exchange to increase Soviet credits in its Eastern European satellites where its present imports are outrunning its exports.

Also, the Soviet gains a sizable windfall by charging the satellites the higher Canadian price for the grain while furnishing the Chinese Communists their lower-costing grain.

HITTING BOTTOM — The DIA estimate confirms this column's report on April 23 that Communist China has exhausted the once-large wheat surpluses in Canada, Australia and Argentina by buying more than $600 million of grain from these countries in the last two years.

This leaves the U. S., with a wheat surplus of 1.3 billion bushels, as the only major wheat-producing country with a surplus that China or Russia can tap to meet their increasing grain needs.

President Kennedy has said that the U. S. will consider an official request from Communist China for food. So far, however, Peiping has made only unofficial feelers.

Communist China's worsening food shortage is re-emphasized in a report from Hong Kong that rations of the Chinese Army were cut for the second time in April.

This report also confirms other U. S. estimates that the food shortage on the mainland is growing so severe that the Chinese Communist regime will be forced to come to the U. S. for help this summer.

Of all the foreign policy controversies, this request is expected to touch off the sharpest debate in Congress and could split the Democratic party wide open, since such Democratic leaders as Speaker John McCormack (Mass.) and Representative Clarence Cannon (Mo.) chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, oppose any shipment of grain to the Chinese Communists.

LOOKING FORWARD — The new Chinese-Soviet trade agreement for 1962 provides for commerce valued at more than 1.2 billion rubles, an amount that makes Peiping the third largest trading partner of the Soviet Union this year. The official value of the ruble is $1.11. Only East Germany and Czechoslovakia have a higher trade exchange with the Soviet Union. . . . The Chinese Communists are letting persons over 60 join their relatives in other countries, for a price — 800 British pounds or a flat $1,000 in U. S. currency. . . W. Averell Harriman, Assistant Secretary of State for the Far East, is telling Administration supporters in Congress that a full-scale review of U. S. policy toward Communist and Nationalist China is now underway within the Administration. . . . Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman has again suggested that his Department take over control of the Food-for-Peace program. He has proposed to President Kennedy that the program be put under his care when Director George McGovern quits later this month to run for the Senate in South Dakota. The President is reportedly undecided whether to replace McGovern or to accept Freeman's suggestion.

SOCIAL WHIRL — President and Mrs. Kennedy's annual party for the diplomatic corps was unique for three precedent-setting innovations: It started in the evening instead of at night; dress was informal for both the men and women instead of white-tie-and-tails and evening gowns; and it wound up with dancing, including the twist by those venturesome enough to attempt it. Among the most enthusiastic dancers were new Russian Ambassador and Madame Dobrynin, who stayed until the end of the jolly evening. Enthused the Soviet diplomat, "We had a very happy time. We liked the informality very much." . . . Mrs. Kennedy had the Senate Ladies Red Cross Unit guessing when she arrived at their Capitol Hill luncheon for her. They suspected her new modified-Cleopatra hairdo was a wig. But it turned out they were wrong, although the First Lady gaily told them she had several wigs but didn't wear them.

Retired Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Harold Burton made their golden wedding anniversary a two-fold occasion — to celebrate their 50th wedding day and as a reception in honor of newly-named Justice Byron White. The handsome party, held in flower-adorned Congressional Club, drew a large throng of notables from Washington and elsewhere. Two unusual guests were Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stearns; he was former president of the University of Colorado. . . Senora Gladys de Arosemena, wife of the President of Ecuador, is so fond of Washington that she is visiting it twice within a period of a few months. She is now here unofficially to launch the SS SANTA MARIANA, named after Ecuador's patron saint, and then will return in late July when she and her husband will be guests of President and Mrs. Kennedy. Senora Arosemena first came to Washington 16 years ago as a bride when her husband was named First Secretary of his country's embassy.

De Lesseps Morrison, Ambassador to the Organization of American States, demonstrated agile skill at dancing the twist at a rollicking party in historic Georgetown. The one-time New Orleans Mayor showed he was as gifted on the dance floor as he is in dealing with Latin American diplomats. . . . Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President "Teddy" Roosevelt and widow of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, O., proudly watched her granddaughter Joanna Sturm put her mount through a stirring exhibition ride at a junior horse show. . . . More than 500 guests had a mouth-watering time at the annual lobster dinner of the Maine State Society. Every item on the luscious menu was from Maine, including clam chowder, potatoes, salad, blueberry pie, apple sauce, and coffee — packed in Maine.

Who's Stalling?

Most People Favor Freedom Academy, State Department Opposes

With an overwhelming percentage of the American people favoring the creation of a Freedom Academy, congressional approval should have been almost automatic. The American people want the academy, if the Gallup poll is to be considered any kind of indication, but there are forces on the right and on the left blocking the bipartisan group seeking authorization. The Gallup figures are somewhat astonishing, for with very little publicity having been given to the Freedom Academy bill, 69 percent of those polled favored it, 14 percent opposed and 17 percent had no opinion.

The bill proposes to set up a school that would train government personnel and private citizens in the strategy and tactics of the cold war — and in Communist methodology. At present, as Dr. Gallup noted in reporting his findings, "we still operate with far too many amateurs who have the desire to win but who completely lack the needed training and background with which to succeed."

Why is the bill stalled in the machinery of Congress? It has, of course, been attacked on the left by the New Republic, which believes that the academy will "propound dogma," and by the Washington Post. It has also been sharply criticized by right-wing patriotic groups which fear that the wrong people may be entrusted with this very necessary task and that the ends sought can be perverted. Proponents of the bill argue that adequate safeguards will be taken to prevent this.

But it was clear to me that something more was involved than the opposition of these groups. For the bill was sponsored and strongly supported by Republican Senator Karl Mundt, who has been one of its staunchest advocates, by liberal Democratic Senator Paul Douglas, and by a group of men whose ideologies vary considerably — Senators Goldwater, Proxmire, Dodd, Case of New Jersey, Keating, Fong, Hickenlooper, Smathers, etc.

Their influence got the bill through the Senate in 1960, but it died in the House when Chairman Francis Walter of the House Un-American Activities Committee expressed a frigid attitude. (He was commended for this by the Washington Post, a newspaper which usually takes a dim view of Mr. Walter, and amusingly this praise worried the Congressman.

But a careful check now points to two other sources of opposition — both formidable. The State Department is one. Though it has notably failed in giving its Foreign Service the ideological weapons to fight Communism, it emphatically rejects the idea of a Freedom Academy. Recently, at conferences between those pushing for the bill and Ambassador Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen — a real power in the department's policy planning — the nature of that opposition was outlined.

Mr. Bohlen insisted that work in the field now being done at Harvard and other universities was sufficient, that the academy was not needed. Mr. Bohlen refused to concede that these universities merely do "area studies" for the government — and however excellent this work may be, it in no way duplicates the kind of training which the proposed Freedom Academy would give.

The real reason: A fear by the department's middle echelon that a new generation of young diplomats will begin to question the ill - conceived viewpoints from which much of our foreign policy is derived.

But the biggest obstacle to passage remains Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It was his memorandum which led to the muzzling of military officers. It was Senator Fulbright who has insisted that "we must learn to overcome our emotional prejudices against Russia" so that in time the Communists will learn to trust us.

The Freedom Academy bill is bottled up in Senator Fulbright's committee and will remain there unless it is yanked out by main force. He has said that the U.S. Constitution was "designed for an 18th Century agrarian society far removed from the centers of world power," but he is ready and willing to use the Congressional system set up by that Constitution to thwart the will of the majority.

But the chairman of one of the Senate's most powerful committees will have a fight on his hands. For Karl Mundt and other supporters of the Freedom Academy are determined to give Congress the opportunity to vote on the bill. And Senator Mundt is a dogged man. The fight will be behind the scenes, but before it is over, the sparks will fly.

U. S. Senator From Arizona

Not since the Cuban invasion fiasco has my office been deluged with the volume of mail which followed the events surrounding the announcement and rescinding of the steel price increase.

And, surprisingly enough, in view of White House claims, the communications ran higher than 95 per cent against the President. In the 10 days following the steel controversy, I received less than two dozen letters in favor of the massive government crackdown against the steel industry and, of these, four were unsigned.

On the other hand, from practically every state in the Union, concerned Americans wrote or telegraphed to (1) register their disagreement with the President's televised castigation of the steel industry and (2) express indignation over the spectacle of the federal government going all out to exercise its power of intimidation against a single industry.

Typical of the sentiments expressed in my mail are the following excerpts taken at random from the stack of 850 letters I received on the steel controversy:

From a Virginia housewife: "I want to express my profound indignation at President Kennedy's actions and attitude against the steel companies' rise in prices. This is flagrant invasion of government into the very foundations of our free enterprise system. All that noble phrasing that it was 'against the best interests of our country' is plain political eyewash masking the petulant anger of a child not having his own way."

From a Texas businessman: "I am dismayed at the police state tactics which were used by the administration in the steel price situation. I do not believe a free economy can survive without a free market; a free market cannot exist without freedom of decision, freedom of the seller to decide whether to raise or lower his price, freedom of the buyer to decide whether to buy, take his trade elsewhere or refrain from buying."

From a service academy professor: "Dec. 7, 1941, was an infamous day in the history of our country. An even greater catastrophe befell our country the day President Kennedy forced the steel companies to bow to his wishes. That day sounded the death knell to the free enterprise system."

From a Maryland housewife: "Regardless of the effect of an increase in steel prices, government intervention to such a degree should not be tolerated by any industry. To any citizen interested in personal rights and freedom, it is frightening to see that one man's will can be so easily imposed on any one facet of our economy."

From a New York builder: "If the government dictates labor cost increases, fringe or otherwise, why, by the same token, should it object to companies raising their prices to absorb this increase? It appears to me that we are moving from our free economy to wage and price controls, not by law but by coercion."

Through most of my mail ran a strain of deep concern over the misuse of government power. Many of the people who wrote asked why President Kennedy had not spoken out strongly at the time the electrical workers in New York forced a contract giving them a 25-hour work week at more pay than they previously had received for a 30-hour week.

Others wanted to know how the Chicago Merchandise Mart, owned by President Kennedy's father, could raise the rentals on its leases from three to five per cent because of increased labor costs without an objection from the government. And still others saw in the steel controversy a dramatization of the deep problem faced by American businessmen in trying to compete with foreign producers who have more modern equipment.

I think that the great interest of the American people in a spectacle which pits the overwhelming power of big government against a single industry is encouraging. The White House may believe it has won a great victory in the steel controversy, but in the long run I suspect the American voters will give the administration reason to regret its heavy-handed tactics.

Womack Heirship Bill

Baton Rouge, La.

To The Editor:

Your editorial of Tuesday, May 8, 1962 entitled (Womack's Heirship Bill) is most appreciated. However, the editorial is slightly misleading as to the intent which I have in introducing legislation amending the Forced Heirship laws under the present Civil Code. Under no circumstances will I attempt to release a parent from his moral obligation to his child.

My bill will deal specifically with families having no children and having accumulated community property. My bill specifically will make the surviving spouse the sole heir to community property where no surviving children are in the family.

Certainly this proposed legislative Act being introduced by me will be open for amendments by any member of the Legislature who feels that he can improve the overall conditions.

I am most appreciative of the many contacts I have had by citizens who are interested in this bill.

I certainly would suggest that each of you contact your Senator and Representative and encourage their support for this worthwhile proposal.

Again thanking you, I am

John's Hospital Bill

While at first glance it might seem to have some merit, the bill by State Representative Mike John, Jr., to require a fee of $1 per visit from out-patients at state-supported hospitals appears to have enough objectional features to make it undesirable.

Three ways in which the bill might appear to be advantageous are that some additional revenue for the hospitals would be collected; some patients who might be able to pay would be required to pay about one-third of what they would pay for a visit to a regular physician; and it might remove these persons from free medical service as provided under socialized medicine. In each of these three ways the apparent advantage is illusionary.

In regard to the additional revenue, a still greater sum for the state could be obtained if all the patients, both in-patients and out-patients, were required to make some payment for their treatment. There is no reason to assume that most of the out-patients are able to pay and that none of the in-patients are able. Mr. John says that perhaps five per cent or less of the out-patients would not be able to pay the $1-per-visit fee but that at least 95 per cent would be able to pay. It is extremely difficult to see how he arrived at those figures but if he assumes they are correct how can he say that in-patients are not able to pay. They suspected her new modified-Cleopatra hairdo was a wig. But it turned out they were wrong, although the First Lady gaily told them she had several wigs but didn't wear them.

Retired Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Harold Burton made their golden wedding anniversary a two-fold occasion — to celebrate their 50th wedding day and as a reception in honor of newly-named Justice Byron White. The handsome party, held in flower-adorned Congressional Club, drew a large throng of notables from Washington and elsewhere. Two unusual guests were Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stearns; he was former president of the University of Colorado. . . Senora Gladys de Arosemena, wife of the President of Ecuador, is so fond of Washington that she is visiting it twice within a period of a few months. She is now here unofficially to launch the SS SANTA MARIANA, named after Ecuador's patron saint, and then will return in late July when she and her husband will be guests of President and Mrs. Kennedy. Senora Arosemena first came to Washington 16 years ago as a bride when her husband was named First Secretary of his country's embassy.

De Lesseps Morrison, Ambassador to the Organization of American States, demonstrated agile skill at dancing the twist at a rollicking party in historic Georgetown. The one-time New Orleans Mayor showed he was as gifted on the dance floor as he is in dealing with Latin American diplomats. . . . Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President "Teddy" Roosevelt and widow of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, O., proudly watched her granddaughter Joanna Sturm put her mount through a stirring exhibition ride at a junior horse show. . . . More than 500 guests had a mouth-watering time at the annual lobster dinner of the Maine State Society. Every item on the luscious menu was from Maine, including clam chowder, potatoes, salad, blueberry pie, apple sauce, and coffee — packed in Maine.

Who's Stalling?

Most People Favor Freedom Academy, State Department Opposes

With an overwhelming percentage of the American people favoring the creation of a Freedom Academy, congressional approval should have been almost automatic. The American people want the academy, if the Gallup poll is to be considered any kind of indication, but there are forces on the right and on the left blocking the bipartisan group seeking authorization. The Gallup figures are somewhat astonishing, for with very little publicity having been given to the Freedom Academy bill, 69 percent of those polled favored it, 14 percent opposed and 17 percent had no opinion.

The bill proposes to set up a school that would train government personnel and private citizens in the strategy and tactics of the cold war — and in Communist methodology. At present, as Dr. Gallup noted in reporting his findings, "we still operate with far too many amateurs who have the desire to win but who completely lack the needed training and background with which to succeed."

Why is the bill stalled in the machinery of Congress? It has, of course, been attacked on the left by the New Republic, which believes that the academy will "propound dogma," and by the Washington Post. It has also been sharply criticized by right-wing patriotic groups which fear that the wrong people may be entrusted with this very necessary task and that the ends sought can be perverted. Proponents of the bill argue that adequate safeguards will be taken to prevent this.

But it was clear to me that something more was involved than the opposition of these groups. For the bill was sponsored and strongly supported by Republican Senator Karl Mundt, who has been one of its staunchest advocates, by liberal Democratic Senator Paul Douglas, and by a group of men whose ideologies vary considerably — Senators Goldwater, Proxmire, Dodd, Case of New Jersey, Keating, Fong, Hickenlooper, Smathers, etc.

Their influence got the bill through the Senate in 1960, but it died in the House when Chairman Francis Walter of the House Un-American Activities Committee expressed a frigid attitude. (He was commended for this by the Washington Post, a newspaper which usually takes a dim view of Mr. Walter, and amusingly this praise worried the Congressman.

But a careful check now points to two other sources of opposition — both formidable. The State Department is one. Though it has notably failed in giving its Foreign Service the ideological weapons to fight Communism, it emphatically rejects the idea of a Freedom Academy. Recently, at conferences between those pushing for the bill and Ambassador Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen — a real power in the department's policy planning — the nature of that opposition was outlined.

Mr. Bohlen insisted that work in the field now being done at Harvard and other universities was sufficient, that the academy was not needed. Mr. Bohlen refused to concede that these universities merely do "area studies" for the government — and however excellent this work may be, it in no way duplicates the kind of training which the proposed Freedom Academy would give.

The real reason: A fear by the department's middle echelon that a new generation of young diplomats will begin to question the ill - conceived viewpoints from which much of our foreign policy is derived.

But the biggest obstacle to passage remains Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It was his memorandum which led to the muzzling of military officers. It was Senator Fulbright who has insisted that "we must learn to overcome our emotional prejudices against Russia" so that in time the Communists will learn to trust us.

The Freedom Academy bill is bottled up in Senator Fulbright's committee and will remain there unless it is yanked out by main force. He has said that the U.S. Constitution was "designed for an 18th Century agrarian society far removed from the centers of world power," but he is ready and willing to use the Congressional system set up by that Constitution to thwart the will of the majority.

But the chairman of one of the Senate's most powerful committees will have a fight on his hands. For Karl Mundt and other supporters of the Freedom Academy are determined to give Congress the opportunity to vote on the bill. And Senator Mundt is a dogged man. The fight will be behind the scenes, but before it is over, the sparks will fly.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

Not since the Cuban invasion fiasco has my office been deluged with the volume of mail which followed the events surrounding the announcement and rescinding of the steel price increase.

And, surprisingly enough, in view of White House claims, the communications ran higher than 95 per cent against the President. In the 10 days following the steel controversy, I received less than two dozen letters in favor of the massive government crackdown against the steel industry and, of these, four were unsigned.

On the other hand, from practically every state in the Union, concerned Americans wrote or telegraphed to (1) register their disagreement with the President's televised castigation of the steel industry and (2) express indignation over the spectacle of the federal government going all out to exercise its power of intimidation against a single industry.

Typical of the sentiments expressed in my mail are the following excerpts taken at random from the stack of 850 letters I received on the steel controversy:

From a Virginia housewife: "I want to express my profound indignation at President Kennedy's actions and attitude against the steel companies' rise in prices. This is flagrant invasion of government into the very foundations of our free enterprise system. All that noble phrasing that it was 'against the best interests of our country' is plain political eyewash masking the petulant anger of a child not having his own way."

From a Texas businessman: "I am dismayed at the police state tactics which were used by the administration in the steel price situation. I do not believe a free economy can survive without a free market; a free market cannot exist without freedom of decision, freedom of the seller to decide whether to raise or lower his price, freedom of the buyer to decide whether to buy, take his trade elsewhere or refrain from buying."

From a service academy professor: "Dec. 7, 1941, was an infamous day in the history of our country. An even greater catastrophe befell our country the day President Kennedy forced the steel companies to bow to his wishes. That day sounded the death knell to the free enterprise system."

From a Maryland housewife: "Regardless of the effect of an increase in steel prices, government intervention to such a degree should not be tolerated by any industry. To any citizen interested in personal rights and freedom, it is frightening to see that one man's will can be so easily imposed on any one facet of our economy."

From a New York builder: "If the government dictates labor cost increases, fringe or otherwise, why, by the same token, should it object to companies raising their prices to absorb this increase? It appears to me that we are moving from our free economy to wage and price controls, not by law but by coercion."

Through most of my mail ran a strain of deep concern over the misuse of government power. Many of the people who wrote asked why President Kennedy had not spoken out strongly at the time the electrical workers in New York forced a contract giving them a 25-hour work week at more pay than they previously had received for a 30-hour week.

Others wanted to know how the Chicago Merchandise Mart, owned by President Kennedy's father, could raise the rentals on its leases from three to five per cent because of increased labor costs without an objection from the government. And still others saw in the steel controversy a dramatization of the deep problem faced by American businessmen in trying to compete with foreign producers who have more modern equipment.

I think that the great interest of the American people in a spectacle which pits the overwhelming power of big government against a single industry is encouraging. The White House may believe it has won a great victory in the steel controversy, but in the long run I suspect the American voters will give the administration reason to regret its heavy-handed tactics.

How do you stand, sir?

Womack Heirship Bill

Baton Rouge, La.

To The Editor:

Your editorial of Tuesday, May 8, 1962 entitled (Womack's Heirship Bill) is most appreciated. However, the editorial is slightly misleading as to the intent which I have in introducing legislation amending the Forced Heirship laws under the present Civil Code. Under no circumstances will I attempt to release a parent from his moral obligation to his child.

My bill will deal specifically with families having no children and having accumulated community property. My bill specifically will make the surviving spouse the sole heir to community property where no surviving children are in the family.

Certainly this proposed legislative Act being introduced by me will be open for amendments by any member of the Legislature who feels that he can improve the overall conditions.

I am most appreciative of the many contacts I have had by citizens who are interested in this bill.

I certainly would suggest that each of you contact your Senator and Representative and encourage their support for this worthwhile proposal.

Again thanking you, I am

Approves Thwarted

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

This is just a word of thanks for the "word-picture" appearing in Sunday's world entitled "Thwarted."

It so aptly says what those of us who work with the younger groups would love to scream from the house-tops! Our problems in Sunday school and Training Union are mostly "adult" problems.

Thank you again.

IN ARGENTINA

Internal War Now Underway

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—When Prince Philip of Britain was in Argentina late in March, he may have touched a raw military nerve.

It happened just before the army packed President Arturo Frondizi off to exile in the current, continuing crisis.

Philip was chatting with a high-ranking Argentine general. "General," he asked, "have you ever been in a war?" The general shrugged apologetically, explaining Argentina has had no war since the one with Paraguay almost a century ago.

"Well," Philip is quoted as saying wryly, "I hope you're not going to start one now."

Argentina's army has had little to do—except for politicking—all those intervening years. Today it has found a war to fight. It considers itself at war against internal enemies. It sees those enemies as trying to reduce Argentina to chaos and then to pick up the pieces. The trouble is, the army itself also is having its own internal war.

Much of the confusion swirling about the murky maze of Argentine politics stems from the fact that the army is like no other army in the world. When Argentines say "the army," they mean the high command and senior officers. It seems less a military establishment than a select club of uniformed referees whose self-imposed mission is to keep the politicians from killing each other.

The current crisis is only beginning. There is widespread fear among those who care—and they do not seem to include many among the public—that another military showdown may be near, engendered by the military's own internal squabbles and by pressures on it from outside—the navy, the politicians, the impatient left, the extreme right, the gathering economic storm.

A majority of army officers claim to be supporters of constitutional government. But the army forced newly installed President Jose Maria Guido to annul the March 18 election results that brought Peronists victory, to suspend the constiution and rule by decree.

There are two military groups. Both are anti-Communist. Both oppose the return of dictator Juan D. Peron or Peronism. Both claim to yearn for a constitutional atmosphere in government.

But the hard-line group stands for a firm guiding hand on the presidency, to restrict its freedom of action. Strangely enough, the leader of the hard-liners, Gen. Raul Poggi, himself once was accused of having been soft on Peronism. His group includes some navy officers.

The soft-line group is headed by Gen. Enrique Rauch. It fears too much military interference and involvement with the civilian government, and indeed, that Poggi and his followers will take over, since growing sentiment for military dictatorship has been noted among some officers in recent weeks.

There is conflict, too, between army and navy. The stronger army is likely to forget its own squabbles long enough to keep the navy out of power if there should be any real threat of a naval officer coup.

There are things the military is united about. It regards the deposed president, Frondizi, as a Machiavellian schemer. It points to his early Marxist background and suspects him of plotting for a Marxist state. The army accuses him of having known that his actions regarding the March 18 elections, permitting Peronists to run and thus paving the way for their victory, was risking chaos for the country.

If the army should finally impose military dictatorship, for many officers it would be reluctantly. But there are some who would welcome military dictatorship, and the possibility of a new explosion cannot be ruled out.

There is little reflection of this, however, in the streets of Buenos Aires. The visitor gets the distinct impression that the general public displays enormous apathy about the whole thing—that it couldn't care less.

Philip Off On Another Selling Tour

By EDDY GILMORE

What does this tall, handsome, witty, intelligent and, at times, blunt husband of Queen Elizabeth II have to sell?

The answer is—Britain.

Officially, he is going to be chairman of a commonwealth study conference convening in Montreal Monday.

But he also will be selling Britain—a Britain that Philip finds complacent in a competitive world.

Just over a month ago, he returned to London after a 36,000-mile tour of South America where he averaged 500 miles a day, and just about as many handshakes and friendly greetings.

Sure of himself and a great public performer, he played a native drum in British Guiana, delivered opinions on abstract art in Chile and galloped gaucho style around Peru.

CELEBRATED

Never celebrated for unqualified praise of royalty, the Laborite Daily Mirror commented to its 12 million readers:

"By his good humor, energy and enthusiasm, he has been the best possible ambassador for Britain."

Referring to his British-selling activities in South America, the weekly British news magazine, Topic, said:

"If sheer charm and personal magnetism can do the trick, the queen's husband has the sale in the bag."

Never relaxing as a sort of self-appointed scourge to the British industry he believes in, Philip told the grand council of the Federation of British Industries a couple o f days after his South American jaunt:

"I am sorry to say this — there is no getting away from it at the moment, we (the British) have a reputation for being rather slow and old-fashioned."

Now he's on a 25-day tour that will wind up in New York June 7.

Philip is nearing his 41st birthday (June 10). In the last 15 years he has risen to international renown.

Since his engagement to the then Princess Elizabeth and his marriage to her on Nov. 20, 1947, he has brought a new lustre of realism to an ancient monarchy. Brushing aside some conventions, he has streamlined many aspects of the throne.

Starchy debutante parties have been abolished. Informal luncheons that include actors, artists, dancers, writers and businessmen take place regularly at Buckingham Palace.

Despite the hard work and traveling Philip and the queen do, they seem to be more in love than ever before in their lives. Close friends say the minor squabbles—and some of them in public—that punctuated the early days of their marriage have ended.

Now, nearly 15 years wed, and with his blond hair thinning, Philip is the queen's prince charming and Britain's supermost super salesman.

Word Nay Means Yes In Greek

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Twice on Monday a sad-eyed Greek princess and a curly-haired Spanish prince will pronounce a Greek word that sounds like "nay" but means "yes."

Princess Sophie, Greek orthodox, and Prince Juan Carlos, Roman Catholic, must say their marriage vows twice to satisfy the rules of their churches and of Greece.

The double wedding for the royal bluebloods, whose romance is said to be the real thing and not just an arranged affair, was a solution to a major problem that faced the two in their march to the altar or altars.

Fair Sophie has had other problems too, the problems of any bride—her wedding dress, the invitation list, finding a new home for herself and her bridegroom.

In her case, as a princess, they have been magnified.

The princess, 23, ordered her shoes and wedding trousseau from Paris. That raised a howl that echoed from the cliffs of the Athenian Acropolis to the heights of Mt. Olympus.

What's wrong with Greek shoes? said local sandalmakers. What's wrong with Greek clothes? cried the garmentmakers. What's wrong with Greek hats? moaned the milliners.

Sophie made something of a concession. She ordered her wedding dress—to be a secret until the last minute—from Jean Desses, a Parisian couturier of Greek origin. Desses had it cut in Paris and sewn in Athens.

Invitations presented another problem. The Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Denis here holds no more than 1,000. The local Greek Orthodox Cathedral holds less than 3,000. But thousands of leading Greeks want to attend. The 300 members of Parliament and their families alone would fill the Roman Catholic Church. So the palace cut the invitation list drastically.

There were indications that Sophie, while preparing for her wedding, was thinking of her new home after marriage. A farmers' society asked her what she wanted as a wedding present.

"A young laurel tree," she replied, "to be planted in my garden so that it will always remind me of Greece."

Her words were taken as an indication that the young couple would make their home outside of Greece, perhaps in Spain, where Juan Carlos, 24, might one day sit on a throne being kept vacant for him by Gen. Francisco Franco.

There hasn't been a big royal wedding in Athens since 1938, when Sophie's parents, King Paul and Queen Frederika, were married.

So flags are up. Hotels are jammed with newsmen and curious tourists. A special press center set up for last week's North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting has been kept operating for the wedding.

It is taken for granted that Sophie will convert to Roman Catholicism. But no one in the palace talks about that now.

Sophie and Juan Carlos—who is learning Greek—will twice say "Nei," Greek for yes.

ALGERIA TERROR

Raoul Salan Goes To Trial Tuesday

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP) — Raoul Salan, France's most decorated soldier, goes on trial for his life Tuesday for treason against the De Gaulle regime he helped to install.

"I am ready to die," Salan has said, "but first I intend to defend my honor."

In doing this, he is certain to bring into focus his always fragile, often hostile, relations with Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

On May 15, 1958, for instance, Salan, the supreme military and civilian commander in Algeria, stepped to a balcony at the height of a revolt by European settlers. He closed his short address to a crowd of about 5,000 with the ritual phrases "Vive la France" and Vive French Algeria." The crowd massed on the square roared approval.

As the shouts faded away, Salan saluted and turned to leave. Then, he half turned back to the microphone and voiced a hasty postscript "Vive de Gaulle." The words seemed to come with difficulty.

From that moment on, De Gaulle's political star became a comet. The army was with him, or so his backers said. The Fourth Republic was doomed and soon would be dead. Salan had no love for the reeling Paris regime but he had no conviction for De Gaulle either, particularly since De Gaulle's political aims on Algeria then were unknown.

Salan had two principal aims. They were to keep the French flag flying over Algeria, and to keep the army from splitting in civil war.

There was no reward for Salan for his reluctant endorsement of De Gaulle. He was eased out of the Algerian command by De Gaulle, given two honorary posts in Paris, then retired. This was the signal for Salan to go into opposition to De Gaulle.

Now, Salan's trial opens, four years and two insurrections after he first gave De Gaulle his timid backing.

Salan and three other generals briefly seized power in Algiers in April 1961. But there was no repetition of May 1958. De Gaulle's regime in Paris was firm. Many army leaders hesitated to join a new revolt. The opposition of the army's draftees finally punctured the dream. The privates beat the generals.

Salan and Edmond Jouhaud, former chief of staff of the French air force, then went underground. They formed the Secret Army Organization which had the backing of almost all European settlers to fight Algerian independence. Their aim was the same as it had been in May 1958—to keep Algeria under tight French control. They were stripped of their generals' ranks and sentenced to death in absentia.

Jouhaud was captured, retried, and resentenced to death. Then Salan was taken and it is his turn to appear before the special high military court.

Prosecution and defense wlil be running on different rails during the trial.

The prosecution is basing its case solely on the generals' revolt and the activities of the Secret Army. Salan never has denied his part in either.

But Salan wants to talk about many other things, from the time of his appointment as supreme commander in Algeria on Nov. 18, 1956, to the moment of his arrest. He wants to put emphasis on an unsuccessful attempt to kill him on Jan. 17, 1957, and the uprising that brought De Gaulle to power.

Salan told the examing magistrate the attempt on his life "is linked to an important plot whose success depended on my assassination." His attorneys have hinted leading Gaullists were involved. Salan escaped the bazooka shell fired into his office when he chanced to step into another room. His aide was killed.

Witnesses in the Jouhaud trial testified De Gaulle was fully aware of the plotting that preceded the 1958 revolt and had given permission for pushing aside top military commanders if necessary.

Since he apparently has no hope of saving his life, Salan wants to rewrite the history books for a more favorable account of his acts.

Harvey Hudson went to Paris from the Chicago AP bureau in 1948 and has been covering the news in France and its neighbors ever since.

IN BAMBOO CURTAIN

Tiny Hole Through Which Talk Goes

U. S. AMBASSADOR to Warsaw John M. Cabot, left, and Red China's Wang Ping-Nan, right, meet again in Warsaw next Thursday for another in a series of conferences that began nearly seven years ago. Their 110th session in the talkathon will be held in Mysliwiecki Palace in downtown Warsaw. (AP Wirephoto)

By GENE KRAMER

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—There is a tiny hole in the bamboo curtain through which the United States and Communist China talk to each other some times.

Ambassadors of the two nations come face to face here May 17 in the 110th session in seven years.

Odds are that John M. Cabot of the United States and Wang Ping-nan of China will talk for about two hours and agree to get together again in about six weeks, same time, same place and to disclose nothing else publicly.

Their desire to continue meeting is at present the most significant thing about this contact between two huge nations that do not recognize each other officially.

Obviously, neither side wants to break it off and both apparently consider it potentially useful. The Washington-Warsaw-Peiping pipeline might become important some day, if Communist China joins the ranks of nuclear powers or if the Chinese-Soviet ideological split worsens.

Meanwhile, what goes on in tan-walled Mysliwiecki Palace in downtown Warsaw, a former royal hunting lodge, where Cabot, the tall erect Bostonian who became ambassador to Warsaw last February, meets short, slender Wang Ping-nan, veteran diplomat of the Chinese Communists?

The Americans are as inscrutable as the Chinese in their refusal to tell. Still, if next Thursday is typical, it is possible to piece together a reasonably educated guess on the proceedings.

Two black limousines, a Lincoln Continental flying the American flag and a Soviet Zis carrying the starred Red Chinese flag, roll into the palace grounds a few minutes apart. Each carries an ambassador and three aides.

They file quickly up a green-carpeted stairway to separate waiting rooms. At 2 p.m., they walk into a spacious yellow-papered meeting room hung with paintings of Italian pastoral scenes.

With silent greetings—half-nod and half-bow—the diplomats take seats facing each other about 10 feet apart on opposite sides of four mahogany tables arranged at right angles to form a hollow rectangle.

First one, then the other ambassador goes through what one Warsaw diplomat calls "playing the same old cracked phonograph records."

In other words, Wang may demand to know whether the United States is ready to end what the Communists call the illegal American occupation of Formosa. Cabot probably demands that Red China formally renounce the use of force as a condition to discussing the Formosa question, a demand that Washington says has been made in vain scores of times during the prolonged talks.

The U.S. side is believed to demand regularly release of four Americans still in Chinese prisons and perhaps occasionally asks Red China to admit American newsmen to its territory with no political conditions. The Chinese answer has always been "no" and "no."

Major Novel Story About Hunted Stag

A major novel in more ways than one, this is the story of a young writer and the hazards of his talent.

Out of the coal-bearing hills of Kentucky came this Youngblood Hawke — Arthur or "Art" to his intimates — and even while he was serving in the Pacific with the Seabees he was pouring out stories and plays.

Hawke had within him some of the suspicious cunning of the mountain people. He also had a gift for keen observation and was to become a self - starting, prolific writer. He was dollar conscious like his mother, who perennially clung to a hope that old coal leases in the hills would being a sudden fortune.

The story begins in 1946 with Hawke, still in his 20s, bringing the manuscript of his first long, rambling novel to a New York publisher. He is the greenhorn who meets the glittering Manhattan world of sophisticates and manipulators, not to mention bloodsuckers.

Right at the beginning he encounters two women who play major parts in his career. Red-haired Jeanne Green is an editor in a publishing house, the one young woman who in the long run could have saved him. Frieda Winter, concert manager, woman of the world and wife of a Wall Streeter, takes a fancy to the young author and later becomes his mistress.

There also is Karl Fry, ex-poet and ex-Communist who writes mystery stories, and Fry immediately senses what Hawke's fate will be. He compares him with the hunted stag (a natural genius who sooner or later will be brought down by the hounds (the money - grabbing opportunists). Later in the book Fry is to meet his own tragedy, significantly and poignantly told.

DRIVING TOWARD GOAL

Hawke becomes a successful novelist, has a fling in Hollywood and in a few years wins the Pulitzer prize. He keeps driving himself unmercifully to make himself rich, confident that he can roll up a fortune by the time he reaches maturity, and then devote all his energies to writing the Great Human Comedy, American style.

But the swarming entrepreneurs close in on him, and not all of them are from New York and Hollywood. One of the major ones is a slick "binness man" from Hawke's old town, a promoter who entices him into bigger and bigger deals. And when Hawke lets himself be talked into publishing his own books, he flounders horribly into debt and drives himself more sharply to produce best sellers. He finally cracks up.

Hawke's flaw is not the superficial sin of greed. One of the characters describes him as lacking poetry — the saving grace, the balance wheel to curb his restless energy. It was Hawke's misfortune to give himself too freely to others, and the others took advantage of him.

WRITES 'TRUE NOVEL'

This is a long novel with many characters. Its people have stature, grow and change — even the minor figures are rounded and vivid. In that sense, it is a true novel in the traditional meaning, not just a hastily daubed slice of life.

Wouk knows the world of which he writes; he has won the Pulitzer prize himself. His hero may remind you a little of Thomas Wolfe, but Wouk apparently had someone like a modern - day Balzac in mind. Like his hero, Wouk has a splendid gift for storytelling. The man who wrote "The Caine Mutiny" and "Marjorie Morningstar" has created another novel on a plane that rises far above the shallow, experimental tizzies many writers are putting out these days.

Hawke will stir your emotions and your mind. You will remember him and the utterly human people around him. You will find his tragedy makes a lasting impression on you. The reading of this book is an experience not to be missed.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Service At Ouachita Library

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

A new service has been added to the many which the Ouachita Parish Public Library offers the people of the Parish. This is a telephone directory service and it is available to the patrons through the courtesy of the Southern Bell Telephone Company. They have given the Libraries directories from all sections of the country. This directory library is housed at the Headquarters Library at 1800 Stubbs Avenue in Monroe. The directories contain a world of information and are a valuable addition to the reference collection. What can you find by using an out of town directory? If you want to put in a long distance call to someone in another town or state, you can find out the area code and the telephone number of the person you are calling. If you want an up-to-date address, so that you can write a letter, the directory gives you this information. Many of the directories include maps of the cities, which are valuable if you are planning a visit to a strange city, you can use this map and locate a hotel or motel adjacent to the area in which your business is to be. If you want to purchase a product which cannot be obtained locally, the yellow pages of the out-of-town directories are gold mines of information. In the library collection there are directories for each of the burroughs of New York City; the Bronx, Brooklyn, Manhatten, Queens and Staten Island. The first four are so large that the yellow pages are printed in separate books.

The directories are arranged on the shelf first by State and then by City. A card has been made for the card catalog, under the subject "Telephone directories." Each directory has a separate card. The subject heading is on the top line. On the second line is the name of the state and on the third line is the name of the city. Many directories also include other cities, nearby and this information is listed on the card also. For instance if you want a telephone directory for Boulder, Colorado, you will find a card stating Colorado, and then the note that it includes Boulder, Canyon Creek, Lincoln, Townsend and Wolf Creek. It is necessary that you consult the card catalog, before attempting to locate the directory which you want to use.

The Southern Bell Telephone Company was most generous with the library, giving us directories from 93 different communities, but they did not feel that they could duplicate the collection already established at the Monroe Chamber of Commerce. However, they furnished us with a list of the telephone directories available there and cards have been made giving this information and interfiled with the other telephone directory cards in the main catalog. This gives us all of the information used and that the people of the Parish will find that it adds to their pleasure and information.

While we are on the subject of telephone directories, I would like to remind you that the Library also has the International Telephone directory, which gives information about telephones in foreign countries. This has proven very valuable for addresses. The reference staff of the library will be glad to look up single items of information for you, found in these directories, if you call on the telephone. If you have a list, of course it will be necessary for you to come to the library.

There are also a number of new additions to the book collection this week. Mystery readers have three new titles to choose from. They are: "Traitor's Wife" by David Mostross, "To See a Stranger" by Margaret Lynn and Homicide Trinity" by Rex Stout. The many readers who enjoy the novels of Paul Gallicao will welcome his latest one"Scruffy," which is a delightful satire, based on the legend that if the Apes ever leave Gibralter, the English will lose the rock. It is a delightful entertainment. "Tomorrow's Miracle," is the title of the latest novel by Frank Slaughter. It has it's setting in a medical mission in Guina and is the story of a devoted medical missionary.

IN ARGENTINA

Internal War Now Underway

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—When Prince Philip of Britain was in Argentina late in March, he may have touched a raw military nerve.

It happened just before the army packed President Arturo Frondizi off to exile in the current, continuing crisis.

Philip was chatting with a high-ranking Argentine general. "General," he asked, "have you ever been in a war?" The general shrugged apologetically, explaining Argentina has had no war since the one with Paraguay almost a century ago.

"Well," Philip is quoted as saying wryly, "I hope you're not going to start one now."

Argentina's army has had little to do—except for politicking—all those intervening years. Today it has found a war to fight. It considers itself at war against internal enemies. It sees those enemies as trying to reduce Argentina to chaos and then to pick up the pieces. The trouble is, the army itself also is having its own internal war.

Much of the confusion swirling about the murky maze of Argentine politics stems from the fact that the army is like no other army in the world. When Argentines say "the army," they mean the high command and senior officers. It seems less a military establishment than a select club of uniformed referees whose self-imposed mission is to keep the politicians from killing each other.

The current crisis is only beginning. There is widespread fear among those who care—and they do not seem to include many among the public—that another military showdown may be near, engendered by the military's own internal squabbles and by pressures on it from outside—the navy, the politicians, the impaient left, the extreme right, the gathering economic storm.

A majority of army officers claim to be supporters of constitutional government. But the army forced newly installed President Jose Maria Guido to annul the March 18 election results that brought Peronists victory, to suspend the constiution and rule by decree.

There are two military groups. Both are anti-Communist. Both oppose the return of dictator Juan D. Peron or Peronism. Both claim to yearn for a constitutional atmosphere in government.

But the hard-line group stands for a firm guiding hand on the presidency, to restrict its freedom of action. Strangely enough, the leader of the hard-liners, Gen. Raul Poggi, himself once was accused of having been soft on Peronism. His group includes some navy officers.

The soft-line group is headed by Gen. Enrique Rauch. It fears too much military interference and involvement with the civilian government, and indeed, that Poggi and his followers will take over, since growing sentiment for military dictatorship has been noted among some officers in recent weeks.

There is conflict, too, between army and navy. The stronger army is likely to forget its own squabbles long enough to keep the navy out of power if there should be any real threat of a naval officer coup.

There are things the military is united about. It regards the deposed president, Frondizi, as a Machiavellian schemer. It points to his early Marxist background and suspects him of plotting for a Marxist state. The army accuses him of having known that his actions regarding the March 18 elections, permitting Peronists to run and thus paving the way for their victory, was risking chaos for the country.

If the army should finally impose military dictatorship, for many officers it would be reluctantly. But there are some who would welcome military dictatorship, and the possibility of a new explosion cannot be ruled out.

There is little reflection of this, however, in the streets of Buenos Aires. The visitor gets the distinct impression that the general public displays enormous apathy about the whole thing—that it couldn't care less.

Philip Off On Another Selling Tour

By EDDY GILMORE

What does this tall, handsome, witty, intelligent and, at times, blunt husband of Queen Elizabeth II have to sell?

The answer is—Britain.

Officially, he is going to be chairman of a commonwealth study conference convening in Montreal Monday.

But he also will be selling Britain—a Britain that Philip finds complacent in a competitive world.

Just over a month ago, he returned to London after a 36,000-mile tour of South America where he averaged 500 miles a day, and just about as many handshakes and friendly greetings.

Sure of himself and a great public performer, he played a native drum in British Guiana, delivered opinions on abstract art in Chile and galloped gaucho style around Peru.

CELEBRATED

Never celebrated for unqualified praise of royalty, the Laborite Daily Mirror commented to its 12 million readers:

"By his good humor, energy and enthusiasm, he has been the best possible ambassador for Britain."

Referring to his British-selling activities in South America, the weekly British news magazine, Topic, said:

"If sheer charm and personal magnetism can do the trick, the queen's husband has the sale in the bag."

Never relaxing as a sort of self-appointed scourge to the British industry he believes in, Philip told the grand council of the Federation of British Industries a couple o f days after his South American jaunt:

"I am sorry to say this — there is no getting away from it at the moment, we (the British) have a reputation for being rather slow and old-fashioned."

Now he's on a 25-day tour that will wind up in New York June 7.

Philip is nearing his 41st birthday (June 10). In the last 15 years he has risen to international renown.

Since his engagement to the then Princess Elizabeth and his marriage to her on Nov. 20, 1947, he has brought a new lustre of realism to an ancient monarchy. Brushing aside some conventions, he has streamlined many aspects of the throne.

Starchy debutante parties have been abolished. Informal luncheons that include actors, artists, dancers, writers and businessmen take place regularly at Buckingham Palace.

The heir to the throne, Prince Charles, has gone off to a tough boarding school.

Despite the hard work and traveling Philip and the queen do, they seem to be more in love than ever before in their lives. Close friends say the minor squabbles—and some of them in public—that punctuated the early days of their marriage have ended.

Now, nearly 15 years wed, and with his blond hair thinning, Philip is the queen's prince charming and Britain's supermost super salesman.

Word Nay Means Yes In Greek

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Twice on Monday a sad-eyed Greek princess and a curly-haired Spanish prince will pronounce a Greek word that sounds like "nay" but means "yes."

Princess Sophie, Greek orthodox, and Prince Juan Carlos, Roman Catholic, must say their marriage vows twice to satisfy the rules of their churches and of Greece.

The double wedding for the royal bluebloods, whose romance is said to be the real thing and not just an arranged affair, was a solution to a major problem that faced the two in their march to the altar or altars.

Fair Sophie has had other problems too, the problems of any bride—her wedding dress, the invitation list, finding a new home for herself and her bridegroom.

In her case, as a princess, they have been magnified.

The princess, 23, ordered her shoes and wedding trousseau from Paris. That raised a howl that echoed from the cliffs of the Athenian Acropolis to the heights of Mt. Olympus.

What's wrong with Greek shoes? said local sandalmakers. What's wrong with Greek clothes? cried the garmentmakers. What's wrong with Greek hats? moaned the milliners.

Sophie made something of a concession. She ordered her wedding dress—to be a secret until the last minute—from Jean Desses, a Parisian couturier of Greek origin. Desses had it cut in Paris and sewn in Athens.

Invitations presented another problem. The Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Denis here holds no more than 1,000. The local Greek Orthodox Cathedral holds less than 3,000. But thousands of leading Greeks want to attend. The 300 members of Parliament and their families alone would fill the Roman Catholic Church. So the palace cut the invitation list drastically.

There were indications that Sophie, while preparing for her wedding, was thinking of her new home after marriage. A farmers' society asked her what she wanted as a wedding present.

"A young laurel tree," she replied, "to be planted in my garden so that it will always remind me of Greece."

Her words were taken as an indication that the young couple would make their home outside of Greece, perhaps in Spain, where Juan Carlos, 24, might one day sit on a throne being kept vacant for him by Gen. Francisco Franco.

There hasn't been a big royal wedding in Athens since 1938, when Sophie's parents, King Paul and Queen Frederika, were married.

So flags are up. Hotels are jammed with newsmen and curious tourists. A special press center set up for last week's North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting has been kept operating for the wedding.

It is taken for granted that Sophie will convert to Roman Catholicism. But no one in the palace talks about that now.

Sophie and Juan Carlos—who is learning Greek—will twice say "Nei," Greek for yes.

ALGERIA TERROR

Raoul Salan Goes To Trial Tuesday

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP) — Raoul Salan, France's most decorated soldier, goes on trial for his life Tuesday for treason against the De Gaulle regime he helped to install.

"I am ready to die," Salan has said, "but first I intend to defend my honor."

In doing this, he is certain to bring into focus his always fragile, often hostile, relations with Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

On May 15, 1958, for instance, Salan, the supreme military and civilian commander in Algeria, stepped to a balcony at the height of a revolt by European settlers. He closed his short address to a crowd of about 5,000 with the ritual phrases "Vive la France" and Vive French Algeria." The crowd massed on the square roared approval.

As the shouts faded away, Salan saluted and turned to leave. Then, he half turned back to the microphone and voiced a hasty postscript "Vive de Gaulle." The words seemed to come with difficulty.

From that moment on, De Gaulle's political star became a comet. The army was with him, or so his backers said. The Fourth Republic was doomed and soon would be dead. Salan had no love for the reeling Paris regime but he had no conviction for De Gaulle either, particularly since De Gaulle's political aims on Algeria then were unknown.

Salan had two principal aims. They were to keep the French flag flying over Algeria, and to keep the army from splitting in civil war.

There was no reward for Salan for his reluctant endorsement of De Gaulle. He was eased out of the Algerian command by De Gaulle, given two honorary posts in Paris, then retired. This was the signal for Salan to go into opposition to De Gaulle.

Now, Salan's trial opens, four years and two insurrections after he first gave De Gaulle his timid backing.

Salan and three other generals briefly seized power in Algiers in April 1961. But there was no repetition of May 1958. De Gaulle's regime in Paris was firm. Many army leaders hesitated to join a new revolt. The opposition of the army's draftees finally punctured the dream. The privates beat the generals.

Salan and Edmond Jouhaud, former chief of staff of the French air force, then went underground. They formed the Secret Army Organization which had the backing of almost all European settlers to fight Algerian independence. Their aim was the same as it had been in May 1958—to keep Algeria under tight French control. They were stripped of their generals' ranks and sentenced to death in absentia.

Jouhaud was captured, retried, and resentenced to death. Then Salan was taken and it is his turn to appear before the special high military court.

Prosecution and defense will be running on different rails during the trial.

The prosecution is basing its case solely on the generals' revolt and the activities of the Secret Army. Salan never has denied his part in either.

But Salan wants to talk about many other things, from the time of his appointment as supreme commander in Algeria on Nov. 18, 1956, to the moment of his arrest. He wants to put emphasis on an unsuccessful attempt to kill him on Jan. 17, 1957, and the uprising that brought De Gaulle to power.

Salan told the examing magistrate the attempt on his life "is linked to an important plot whose success depended on my assassination." His attorneys have hinted leading Gaullists were involved. Salan escaped the bazooka shell fired into his office when he chanced to step into another room. His aide was killed.

Witnesses in the Jouhaud trial testified De Gaulle was fully aware of the plotting that preceded the 1958 revolt and had given permission for pushing aside top military commanders if necessary.

Since he apparently has no hope of saving his life, Salan wants to rewrite the history books for a more favorable account of his acts.

Harvey Hudson went to Paris from the Chicago AP bureau in 1948 and has been covering the news in France and its neighbors ever since.

IN BAMBOO CURTAIN

Tiny Hole Through Which Talk Goes

U. S. AMBASSADOR to Warsaw John M. Cabot, left, and Red China's Wang Ping-Nan, right, meet again in Warsaw next Thursday for another in a series of conferences that began nearly seven years ago. Their 110th session in the talkathon will be held in Mysliwiecki Palace in downtown Warsaw. (AP Wirephoto)

By GENE KRAMER

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—There is a tiny hole in the bamboo curtain through which the United States and Communist China talk to each other some times.

Ambassadors of the two nations come face to face here May 17 in the 110th session in seven years.

Odds are that John M. Cabot of the United States and Wang Ping-nan of China will talk for about two hours and agree to get together again in about six weeks, same time, same place and to disclose nothing else publicly.

Their desire to continue meeting is at present the most significant thing about this contact between two huge nations that do not recognize each other officially.

Obviously, neither side wants to break it off and both apparently consider it potentially useful. The Washington-Warsaw-Peiping pipeline might become important some day, if Communist China joins the ranks of nuclear powers or if the Chinese-Soviet ideological split worsens.

Meanwhile, what goes on in tan-walled Mysliwiecki Palace in downtown Warsaw, a former royal hunting lodge, where Cabot, the tall erect Bostonian who became ambassador to Warsaw last February, meets short, slender Wang Ping-nan, veteran diplomat of the Chinese Communists?

The Americans are as inscrutable as the Chinese in their refusal to tell. Still, if next Thursday is typical, it is possible to piece together a reasonably educated guess on the proceedings.

Two black limousines, a Lincoln Continental flying the American flag and a Soviet Zis carrying the starred Red Chinese flag, roll into the palace grounds a few minutes apart. Each carries an ambassador and three aides.

They file quickly up a green-carpeted stairway to separate waiting rooms. At 2 p.m., they walk into a spacious yellow-papered meeting room hung with paintings of Italian pastoral scenes.

With silent greetings—half-nod and half-bow—the diplomats take seats facing each other about 10 feet apart on opposite sides of four mahogany tables arranged at right angles to form a hollow rectangle.

First one, then the other ambassador goes through what one Warsaw diplomat calls "playing the same old cracked phonograph records."

In other words, Wang may demand to know whether the United States is ready to end what the Communists call the illegal American occupation of Formosa. Cabot probably demands that Red China formally renounce the use of force as a condition to discussing the Formosa question, a demand that Washington says has been made in vain scores of times during the prolonged talks.

The U.S. side is believed to demand regularly release of four Americans still in Chinese prisons and perhaps occasionally asks Red China to admit American newsmen to its territory with no political conditions. The Chinese answer has always been "no" and "no."

Major Novel Story About Hunted Stag

A major novel in more ways than one, this is the story of a young writer and the hazards of his talent.

Out of the coal-bearing hills of Kentucky came this Youngblood Hawke — Arthur or "Art" to his intimates — and even while he was serving in the Pacific with the Seabees he was pouring out stories and plays.

Hawke had within him some of the suspicious cunning of the mountain people. He also had a gift for keen observation and was to become a self - starting, prolific writer. He was dollar conscious like his mother, who perennially clung to a hope that old coal leases in the hills would being a sudden fortune.

The story begins in 1946 with Hawke, still in his 20s, bringing the manuscript of his first long, rambling novel to a New York publisher. He is the greenhorn who meets the glittering Manhattan world of sophisticates and manipulators, not to mention bloodsuckers.

Right at the beginning he encounters two women who play major parts in his career. Red-haired Jeanne Green is an editor in a publishing house, the one young woman who in the long run could have saved him. Frieda Winter, concert manager, woman of the world and wife of a Wall Streeter, takes a fancy to the young author and later becomes his mistress.

There also is Karl Fry, expoet and ex-Communist who writes mystery stories, and Fry immediately senses what Hawke's fate will be. He compares him with the hunted stag (a natural genius who sooner or later will be brought down by the hounds (the money - grabbing opportunists). Later in the book Fry is to meet his own tragedy, significantly and poignantly told.

DRIVING TOWARD GOAL

Hawke becomes a successful novelist, has a fling in Hollywood and in a few years wins the Pulitzer prize. He keeps driving himself unmercifully to make himself rich, confident that he can roll up a fortune by the time he reaches maturity, and then devote all his energies to writing the Great Human Comedy, American style.

But the swarming entrepreneurs close in on him, and not all of them are from New York and Hollywood. One of the major ones is a slick "binness man" from Hawke's old town, a promoter who entices him into bigger and bigger deals. And when Hawke lets himself be talked into publishing his own books, he flounders horribly into debt and drives himself more sharply to produce best sellers. He finally cracks up.

Hawke's flaw is not the superficial sin of greed. One of the characters describes him as lacking poetry — the saving grace, the balance wheel to curb his restless energy. It was Hawke's misfortune to give himself too freely to others, and the others took advantage of him.

WRITES 'TRUE NOVEL'

This is a long novel with many characters. Its people have stature, grow and change — even the minor figures are rounded and vivid. In that sense, it is a true novel in the traditional meaning, not just a hastily daubed slice of life.

Wouk knows the world of which he writes; he has won the Pulitzer prize himself. His hero may remind you a little of Thomas Wolfe, but Wouk apparently had someone like a modern - day Balzac in mind. Like his hero, Wouk has a splendid gift for storytelling. The man who wrote "The Caine Mutiny" and "Marjorie Morningstar" has created another novel on a plane that rises far above the shallow, experimental tizzies many writers are putting out these days.

Hawke will stir your emotions and your mind. You will remember him and the utterly human people around him. You will find his tragedy makes a lasting impression on you. The reading of this book is an experience not to be missed.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Service At Ouachita Library

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

A new service has been added to the many which the Ouachita Parish Public Library offers the people of the Parish. This is a telephone directory service and it is available to the patrons through the courtesy of the Southern Bell Telephone Company. They have given the Libraries directories from all sections of the country. This directory library is housed at the Headquarters Library at 1800 Stubbs Avenue in Monroe. The directories contain a world of information and are a valuable addition to the reference collection. What can you find by using an out of town directory? If you want to put in a long distance call to someone in another town or state, you can find out the area code and the telephone number of the person you are calling. If you want an up-to-date address, so that you can write a letter, the directory gives you this information. Many of the directories include maps of the cities, which are valuable if you are planning a visit to a strange city, you can use this map and locate a hotel or motel adjacent to the area in which your business is to be. If you want to purchase a product which cannot be obtained locally, the yellow pages of the out-of-town directories are gold mines of information. In the library collection there are directories for each of the burroughs of New York City; the Bronx, Brooklyn, Manhatten, Queens and Staten Island. The first four are so large that the yellow pages are printed in separate books.

The directories are arranged on the shelf first by State and then by City. A card has been made for the card catalog, under the subject "Telephone directories." Each directory has a separate card. The subject heading is on the top line. On the second line is the name of the state and on the third line is the name of the city. Many directories also include other cities, nearby and this information is listed on the card also. For instance if you want a telephone directory for Boulder, Colorado, you will find a card stating Colorado, and then the note that it includes Boulder, Canyon Creek, Lincoln, Townsend and Wolf Creek. It is necessary that you consult the card catalog, before attempting to locate the directory which you want to use.

The Southern Bell Telephone Company was most generous with the library, giving us directories from 93 different communities, but they did not feel that they could duplicate the collection already established at the Monroe Chamber of Commerce. However, they furnished us with a list of the telephone directories available there and cards have been made giving this information and interfiled with the other telephone directory cards in the main catalog. This gives us all of the information used and that the people of the Parish will find that it adds to their pleasure and information.

While we are on the subject of telephone directories, I would like to remind you that the Library also has the International Telephone directory, which gives information about telephones in foreign countries. This has proven very valuable for addresses. The reference staff of the library will be glad to look up single items of information for you, found in these directories, if you call on the telephone. If you have a list, of course it will be necessary for you to come to the library.

Tug Sinks, Divers Seek Two Bodies

HONOLULU (AP) — Divers searched Saturday for the bodies of a tugboat skipper and a crewman who drowned Friday night after the tugboat was rammed and sunk in Kahului Harbor, Maui Island, by the Matson freighter Hawaiian Educator.

Three other men on the tug were rescued. One was hospitalized but was not seriously hurt.

The Coast Guard began an investigation of the collision which occurred just after the tugboat had turned the freighter around so it could depart.

Walter N. Soule, about 60, the tug's captain, and engineer Nobu Tokufuku were caught in the wreckage and went down with the tug.

The tug, the William Walsh II, was rammed broadside by the bow of the freighter as the 495-foot ship passed the Kahului breakwaters. The Educator was not damaged and continued to Honolulu.

Another Matson freighter, the Hawaiian Citizen, and a U.S. Navy nuclear submarine were damaged Wednesday in a night collision off San Francisco Bay.

The survivors from the tug, Gordon Wilkinson, George Wilhelm and Tatsuo Ono, eaid the tug tried to cross the Educator's bow to escape possibly being forced against the breakwater.

LSU Student Has Perfect Grade Average

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)— Nancy Revelle, a journalism student from Lake Charles, may become the ninth student in LSU's 102-year history to graduate with a perfect scholastic average.

If she keeps her perfect, straight-A average through the end of the semester, Miss Revelle will graduate "Summa Cum Laude," the university's highest distinction.

The last LSU student to graduate with a perfect average was Warren Smith of DeRidder in 1958. His major was mechanical engineering.

Castro Hints Softening Of Farm Policy

HAVANA (AP) — Indications multiplied Saturday that the Castro government is easing its Socialist farm policies in the interest of smaller farmers hit by earlier measures of the revolutionary regime.

Foreign observers cited a speech by Prime Minister Fidel Castro saying that farms poorly administered by the government would be returned to their owners if necessary.

Another sign of a softening of the line was a resolution adopted by the National Agrarian Reform Institute telling farmers they are free to slaughter cattle, hogs, sheep and chickens on their own property without requesting authority. They also may sell the meat, but not to middlemen.

The Castro speech, delivered a month ago but made public only last week, acknowledged difficulties between the government and farmers due, among other things, to intervention. This is the administration of private property by the state, a move one step away from outright nationalization.

A few days before the speech, the government had returned to private ownership at least three farms it had been administering. One of these was the property of a Belgian citizen, Jean Wittouck, run by his American son-in-law, Lawrence Lunt, of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Castro said different treatment was due to small farmers from that received by large absentee landholders who were the first to be hit by the government's land reform laws.

"Are we going to occupy a well-cultivated farm of seven caballerias—about 240 acres — so that three months later it is all lost and all the people can see that it is lost?" Castro asked. "What do we gain from these senseless extremisms?

"If we must return badly intervened farms, we'll return them."

Castro mentioned "unhappy, disgusted" farmers who feared injustices would be done to them.

"The difficult thing," he said, "is to take the revolution to agriculture without affecting production."

Open House Set For Fort Polk

FT. POLK, La. (UPI) — Ft. Polk will hold open house next Saturday in observance of Armed Forces Day.

Officials of the Southwest Louisiana Army post said the day would include displays of military equipment and rides on tanks.

Gov. Jimmie Davis has proclaimed May 19 Armed Forces Day in Louisiana. He urged a "public expression of respect for men and women who demonstrate their patriotism and devotion to the nation by service in the Armed Forces . . ."

Mother's Day Started 54 Years Ago

By FANNY J. SEILER
United Press International

GRAFTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Fifty-four years ago a soft-spoken Sunday - school teacher shipped 500 carnations from her adopted Philadelphia to a church in her native Grafton, W. Va., with the suggestion that members wear them in memory of their mothers.

Anna Jarvis also asked Sunday school teachers at the Andrews Methodist Church — now 90 years old — to observe a mother's day to honor her own mother.

This year a group known as International Mother's Day Shrine Inc., started selling carnations to help raise money to turn the little church into an international shrine. The organization hopes to acquire the church and the full city block on which it stands to get up its shrine.

Executive secretary James Fawcett, said about $3,000 had been collected since the group's organization March 8.

The Mother's Day idea had be a brain child of Anna Jarvis, mother, Mrs. Ann Reeves Jarvis, as a means of reconciling post-Civil War hatreds that plagued her community. But her "Mothers' Friendship Day" never caught on.

It was up to one of Mrs. Jarvis' 11 children to fulfill the dream while still in mourning for her mother.

Each year since the first observance at Andrews Church in 1908, held on the second anniversary of the death of Anna Jarvis' mother, special services have been conducted here.

This year, in addition to the special services, the International Mother's Day group will hold its own special service Sunday afternoon with Dr. Kenneth Plummer, professor of religion at West Virginia Wesleyan College, as guest speakr.

From the first Mother's Day observance in this small north-central West Virginia railroad town, interest in the celebration grew and two years later the governor of West Virginia proclaimed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day within the state.

But this did not fulfill the ambition of Anna Jarvis and at the age of 50 she took her campaign to Congress. In 1914 President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed the day a national observance.

Anna Jarvis continued to work for Mother's Day as she conceived it until her health failed. She died at the age of 84 in November, 1948, in a sanitorium in West Chester, Pa., embittered by th apparent commercialization of the memorial she had started. She was strongly opposed to the growing sale of candy, cards and flowers to commemorate the "day."

Tug Sinks, Divers Seek Two Bodies

HONOLULU (AP) — Divers searched Saturday for the bodies of a tugboat skipper and a crewman who drowned Friday night after the tugboat was rammed and sunk in Kahului Harbor, Maui Island, by the Matson freighter Hawaiian Educator.

Three other men on the tug were rescued. One was hospitalized but was not seriously hurt.

The Coast Guard began an investigation of the collision which occurred just after the tugboat had turned the freighter around so it could depart.

Walter N. Soule, about 60, the tug's captain, and engineer Nobu Tokufuku were caught in the wreckage and went down with the tug.

The tug, the William Walsh II, was rammed broadside by the bow of the freighter as the 495-foot ship passed the Kahului breakwaters. The Educator was not damaged and continued to Honolulu.

Another Matson freighter, the Hawaiian Citizen, and a U.S. Navy nuclear submarine were damaged Wednesday in a night collision off San Francisco Bay.

The survivors from the tug, Gordon Wilkinson, George Wilhelm and Tatsuo Ono, said the tug tried to cross the Educator's bow to escape possibly being forced against the breakwater.

LSU Student Has Perfect Grade Average

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Nancy Revelle, a journalism student from Lake Charles, may become the ninth student in LSU's 102-year history to graduate with a perfect scholastic average.

If she keeps her perfect, straight-A average through the end of the semester, Miss Revelle will graduate "Summa Cum Laude," the university's highest distinction.

The last LSU student to graduate with a perfect average was Warren Smith of DeRidder in 1958. His major was mechanical engineering.

Castro Hints Softening Of Farm Policy

HAVANA (AP) — Indications multiplied Saturday that the Castro government is easing its Socialist farm policies in the interest of smaller farmers hit by earlier measures of the revolutionary regime.

Foreign observers cited a speech by Prime Minister Fidel Castro saying that farms poorly administered by the government would be returned to their owners if necessary.

Another sign of a softening of the line was a resolution adopted by the National Agrarian Reform Institute telling farmers they are free to slaughter cattle, hogs, sheep and chickens on their own property without requesting authority. They also may sell the meat, but not to middlemen.

The Castro speech, delivered a month ago but made public only last week, acknowledged difficulties between the government and farmers due, among other things, to intervention. This is the administration of private property by the state, a move one step away from outright nationalization.

A few days before the speech, the government had returned to private ownership at least three farms it had been administering. One of these was the property of a Belgian citizen, Jean Wittouck, run by his American son-in-law, Lawrence Lunt, of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Castro said different treatment was due to small farmers from that received by large absentee landholders who were the first to be hit by the government's land reform laws.

"Are we going to occupy a well-cultivated farm of seven caballerias—about 240 acres — so that three months later it is all lost and all the people can see that it is lost?" Castro asked. "What do we gain from these senseless extremisms?

"If we must return badly intervened farms, we'll return them."

Castro mentioned "unhappy, disgusted" farmers who feared injustices would be done to them.

"The difficult thing," he said, "is to take the revolution to agriculture without affecting production."

Open House Set For Fort Polk

FT. POLK, La. (UPI) — Ft. Polk will hold open house next Saturday in observance of Armed Forces Day.

Officials of the Southwest Louisiana Army post said the day would include displays of military equipment and rides on tanks.

Gov. Jimmie Davis has proclaimed May 19 Armed Forces Day in Louisiana. He urged a "public expression of respect for men and women who demonstrate their patriotism and devotion to the nation by service in the Armed Forces . . ."

Mother's Day Started 54 Years Ago

By FANNY J. SEILER
United Press International

GRAFTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Fifty-four years ago a soft-spoken Sunday - school teacher shipped 500 carnations from her adopted Philadelphia to a church in her native Grafton, W. Va., with the suggestion that members wear them in memory of their mothers.

Anna Jarvis also asked Sunday school teachers at the Andrews Methodist Church — now 90 years old — to observe a mother's day to honor her own mother.

This year a group known as International Mother's Day Shrine Inc., started selling carnations to help raise money to turn the little church into an international shrine. The organization hopes to acquire the church and the full city block on which it stands to get up its shrine.

Executive secretary James Fawcett, said about $3,000 had been collected since the group's organization March 8.

The Mother's Day idea had be a brain child of Anna Jarvis, mother, Mrs. Ann Reeves Jarvis, as a means of reconciling post-Civil War hatreds that plagued her community. But her "Mothers' Friendship Day" never caught on.

South Korea Sends Group To Viet Nam

SEOUL (UPI)—The South Korean government disclosed Saturday that a group of high-ranking army officers has been sent to Communist-threatened South Viet Nam. But it denied reports the mission would act as military advisory group.

Defense Minister Bak Byeng Kown confirmed news of the military mission after the newspaper Kyunghyang reported it.

The newspaper said the group departed Friday night by Korean air force plane. The group is led by a major general and includes "over 10 high - ranking officers with rich experience in guerrilla fighting, and who know guerrilla tactics," the newspaper said.

According to Kyunghyang, the mission is on a two-month assignment to determine how South Korea can help train South Vietnamese troops to crush growing Communist guerrilla attacks.

The defense minister denied this, however.

"I make it clear," he said, "that the group of officers was sent not as a military advisory group for Viet Nam but was dispatched for the purpose of a routine military inspection."

He did not give any further details.

Disclosure of the military assignment came only a few days after government leaders issued a public declaration that they would give all possible help to South Viet Nam in its fight against Communist guerrillas.

Meanwhile, the formation of a "volunteer freedom brigade" to fight Communism in Asia was proposed at a conference of the Asian People's Anti - Communist League now meeting here.

The proposal was made by the Philippine delegation.

Carpenter Awaits 'Go' Sign

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Lean, handsome Malcolm Scott Carpenter is about to embark on a journey dangers and fascination of which are known to only three men—a pulsating orbit ride more than 100 miles above the earth.

If the present schedule holds, Carpenter, outfitted in a silver space suit, will ride an elevator to the 11th level of a red and white rocket service tower on Pad 14 early next Saturday morning.

He will wiggle into a cramped space capsule—which he personally has named "Aurora 7"—and sometime between 7 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. he will be shot into space by an Atlas missile.

Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. took the same dramatic steps last Feb. 20. His fabuously successful flight is now history. He circled the earth three times and became a legend instantly, a new hero the United States ecstatically embraced as a symbol of this nation's great pride.

Two other men have experienced orbital flight, the Russians Yuri A. Gagarin and Gherman S. Titov.

Glenn's flight proved that man can survive for at least short periods in the weightless environment of space, and that he can operate under stress in this strange new world.

Carpenter is to expand on the knowledge gained from Glenn's ride. What he and other astonauts learn in the next few years will ease the path which future American spacemen will take to the moon late in this decade—and eventually to Mars, Venus and other planets.

Carpenter's assignment basically is the same as Glenn's. The flight plan calls for him to whirl three times around the globe as Glenn did in four hours 56 minutes at 17,500 miles an hour.

Many changes have been introduced, some of them to correct problems which cropped up on Glenn's flight. Others give Carpenter, 37, a Navy lieutenant commander, a number of assignments—including observation of a trailing balloon, ejection of man-made luminous particles, study of liquid in weightlessness and several photographic duties.

Carpenter will try experiments Glenn was unable to carry out because of his occupation with the manual controls. Among them are observation of the stars, exercising, eating more frequently, and preplanned manual control tests.

Actually, about half the flight is planned to be automatic and half manually directed.

Industrialists Support Tariff Plan

By STERLING F. GREEN

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Strong support within the Business Council for President Kennedy's trade and tariff program was disclosed Saturday as the organization of top corporation executives wound up its spring meeting.

Presidential assistant Howard Petersen invited the 100 industrialists to prepare studies of foreign market situations and import competition to help U.S. negotiators in the bargaining of broad tariff reductions which would be authorized under legislation pending on Congress.

Petersen told reporters after the closed session that he was assuming enactment of Kennedy's trade expansion program, and added:

"I didn't try to sell the tariff proposals to these people, because I had a real sense, from my knowledge of this group, that they were already sold."

The council, made up of the heads of scores of the country's biggest corporations, never takes formal positions on public issues, but has a history of supporting freer trade and lower tariffs.

Juan Trippe, president of Pan American World Airways, Inc., disclosed that the council has had an informal committee at work on the trade expansion bill for six months. He told the council that representatives of industry, as well as of labor and farm groups, should be given an advisory role in the drafting of the U.S. bargaining position in negotiations with the European Common Market. This provision, omitted from Kennedy's proposal, has now been restored to the legislation.

Trippe said the dozen or so members of his informal task force "support in every way" the objectives of the act giving Kennedy greater power to negotiate for expanded two-way trade, but feel that proposed tax curbs on foreign-earned income are contrary to the objectives.

The council also heard reports on Kennedy's "Alliance for Progress" program of economic and social development of Latin America from Undersecretary of State George C. McGhee and the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, Edwin M. Martin.

Both appealed for greater participation by private enterprise in the self-help program for the underdeveloped countries to the south. Martin said the department was unhappy over the small response from industry to its offer of loans for firms making investments in Latin America.

Sen. Fulbright Ordered To Bed Several Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aides said Saturday that Chariman J. William Fulbright, D—Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had been ordered to bed for several days because of a ruptured blood vessel.

Lee Williams, Fulbright's administrative assistant, issued the following statement:

"Due to a ruptured blood vessel in the abdominal region, the senator's doctor has advised him to stay home for a few days. It is not considered serious but without bed rest could cause complications."

Fulbright's office had said that he was taking a few days off to rest, but Saturday's disclosure was the first information on the reason he would be away.

South Korea Sends Group To Viet Nam

SEOUL (UPI)—The South Korean government disclosed Saturday that a group of high-ranking army officers has been sent to Communist-threatened South Viet Nam. But it denied reports the mission would act as military advisory group.

Defense Minister Bak Byeng Kown confirmed news of the military mission after the newspaper Kyunghyang reported it.

The newspaper said the group departed Friday night by Korean air force plane. The group is led by a major general and includes "over 10 high - ranking officers with rich experience in guerrilla fighting, and who know guerrilla tactics," the newspaper said.

According to Kyunghyang, the mission is on a two-month assignment to determine how South Korea can help train South Vietnamese troops to crush growing Communist guerrilla attacks.

The defense minister denied this, however.

"I make it clear," he said, "that the group of officers was sent not as a military advisory group for Viet Nam but was dispatched for the purpose of a routine military inspection."

He did not give any further details.

Disclosure of the military assignment came only a few days after government leaders issued a public declaration that they would give all possible help to South Viet Nam in its fight against Communist guerrillas.

Meanwhile, the formation of a "volunteer freedom brigade" to fight Communism in Asia was proposed at a conference of the Asian People's Anti - Communist League now meeting here.

The proposal was made by the Philippine delegation.

Carpenter Awaits 'Go' Sign

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Lean, handsome Malcolm Scott Carpenter is about to embark on a journey dangers and fascination of which are known to only three men—a pulsating orbit ride more than 100 miles above the earth.

If the present schedule holds, Carpenter, outfitted in a silver space suit, will ride an elevator to the 11th level of a red and white rocket service tower on Pad 14 early next Saturday morning.

He will wiggle into a cramped space capsule—which he personally has named "Aurora 7"—and sometime between 7 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. he will be shot into space by an Atlas missile.

Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. took the same dramatic steps last Feb. 20. His fabuously successful flight is now history. He circled the earth three times and became a legend instantly, a new hero the United States ecstatically embraced as a symbol of this nation's great pride.

Two other men have experienced orbital flight, the Russians Yuri A. Gagarin and Gherman S. Titov.

Glenn's flight proved that man can survive for at least short periods in the weightless environment of space, and that he can operate under stress in this strange new world.

Carpenter is to expand on the knowledge gained from Glenn's ride. What he and other astonauts learn in the next few years will ease the path which future American spacemen will take to the moon late in this decade—and eventually to Mars, Venus and other planets.

Carpenter's assignment basically is the same as Glenn's. The flight plan calls for him to whirl three times around the globe as Glenn did in four hours 56 minutes at 17,500 miles an hour.

Many changes have been introduced, some of them to correct problems which cropped up on Glenn's flight. Others give Carpenter, 37, a Navy lieutenant commander, a number of assignments—including observation of a trailing balloon, ejection of man-made luminous particles, study of liquid in weightlessness and several photographic duties.

Carpenter will try experiments Glenn was unable to carry out because of his occupation with the manual controls. Among them are observation of the stars, exercising, eating more frequently, and preplanned manual control tests.

Actually, about half the flight is planned to be automatic and half manually directed.

Sen. Fulbright Ordered To Bed Several Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aides said Saturday that Chariman J. William Fulbright, D—Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had been ordered to bed for several days because of a ruptured blood vessel.

Lee Williams, Fulbright's administrative assistant, issued the following statement:

"Due to a ruptured blood vessel in the abdominal region, the senator's doctor has advised him to stay home for a few days. It is not considered serious but without bed rest could cause complications."

Fulbright's office had said that he was taking a few days off to rest, but Saturday's disclosure was the first information on the reason he would be away.

Industrialists Support Tariff Plan

By STERLING F. GREEN

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Strong support within the Business Council for President Kennedy's trade and tariff program was disclosed Saturday as the organization of top corporation executives wound up its spring meeting.

Presidential assistant Howard Petersen invited the 100 industrialists to prepare studies of foreign market situations and import competition to help U.S. negotiators in the bargaining of broad tariff reductions which would be authorized under legislation pending on Congress.

Petersen told reporters after the closed session that he was assuming enactment of Kennedy's trade expansion program, and added:

"I didn't try to sell the tariff proposals to these people, because I had a real sense, from my knowledge of this group, that they were already sold."

The council, made up of the heads of scores of the country's biggest corporations, never takes formal positions on public issues, but has a history of supporting freer trade and lower tariffs.

Juan Trippe, president of Pan American World Airways, Inc., disclosed that the council has had an informal committee at work on the trade expansion bill for six months. He told the council that representatives of industry, as well as of labor and farm groups, should be given an advisory role in the drafting of the U.S. bargaining position in negotiations with the European Common Market. This provision, omitted from Kennedy's proposal, has now been restored to the legislation.

Trippe said the dozen or so members of his informal task force "support in every way" the objectives of the act giving Kennedy greater power to negotiate for expanded two-way trade, but feel that proposed tax curbs on foreign-earned income are contrary to the objectives.

The council also heard reports on Kennedy's "Alliance for Progress" program of economic and social development of Latin America from Undersecretary of State George C. McGhee and the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, Edwin M. Martin.

Both appealed for greater participation by private enterprise in the self-help program for the underdeveloped countries to the south. Martin said the department was unhappy over the small response from industry to its offer of loans for firms making investments in Latin America.

ARREST FORMER NAZI

SALZBURG, Austria (UPI) — Austrian police Saturday arrested two former Nazi SS stormtroopers for alleged participation in mass executions of Jews in Poland. The men are brothers, Hans and Willi Mauer.

Styrons Lead Tribe To Third GSC Track Title

Arnold Palmer Surges Back Into First Place At Colonial Meet

Gary Player Falls Three Strokes Back

By ED FITE

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, golf's reigning king, broke the monotony of eight successive pars with a string of three birdies to charge back into the lead in the third round of the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament Saturday.

Palmer, who had floundered on the back nine of Colonial Club's demanding 7,112-yard course in the first two rounds, conquered it in fine fashion with a 34-32—66 and a five-under-par three round total of 205.

Crampton, a 26-year-old former Australian Open champion, had the day's hottest round working until his second shot on No. 18 slid off into casual water at the side of the green and he wound up with a double bogey 6 and a 33-34—67 for 208.

Player, who led Palmer by a stroke at the start of Saturday's play, birdied the first two holes and had a three-stroke lead at that point, but a bogey on No. 7 set the stage for collapse that lasted through the back nine.

He bogeyed the 11th, 14th and 17th to finish with a 34-36—70 for his 208.

Palmer played strictly par golf for the first eight holes with two-putt greens, then made what he termed his "first birdie in two days" with a 10-footer on No. 9.

"I made a couple of birdies yesterday," Palmer said, "but they were on the par 5 holes and I don't count them."

On the back side he had birdie putts of one, 15 and 10 feet and wound up with 27 putts compared with 35 Friday.

"I left myself a lot of short ones today by pitching better," he said. His short irons had given him trouble the first two rounds.

Player had 12 and 6-foot putts for birdies on Nos. 1 and 2, stymied himself behind a fairway tree for a bogey on No. 7, picked up an eight-foot birdie putt on No. 11, bogeyed No. 14 from a trap and three-putted No. 17 for his third bogey.

A flubbed two-foot putt on No. 13 for a birdie was "the turning point," Player said.

USL Takes Second; La. Tech Is Third

HAMMOND (Special) — Dave and Don Styron led Northeast to its third Gulf States Conference track championship in four years — as expected — here Saturday night, with a tremendous mile dual providing the major excitement.

Northeast, the heavy pre - meet favorite, sccored 85 and 7-10 points to easily outdistance second place Southwestern which came in with 57 points. Louisiana Tech was a close third with 54 and 11-15. Northwestern had 40 and 7-10, Southeastern 38 and 8-15 and McNeese 26 and 1-3.

Dave and Don Styron won two events each and ran on two winning relay teams as Northeast, second in 1961, dethroned Tech, the defending champions.

Don took both hurdle events, setting a new record of 13.9 in the highs, while Dave took both dashes.

The meet was the last GSC competition for the fleet - footed Overland Park, Kansas twins, who were named the GSC's most outstanding athletes in both 1959 and '60.

Northeast's 440 relay team of the Styrons, Charles McDonald, and Jay Goldsmith, won with 41.6 and the mile foursome of the Styrons, Randall Walker and John Baker set a new record of 3:14.5, breaking the mark of 3:14.7 set by the twins, Dick Hays and Jim Mouser in 1960.

In all Northeast won eight firsts and set three records. A total of eight records were set in the meet, held in the Southeastern football stadium.

The major event of the hot, sultry evening was the mile. British Import Malcolm Robinson of USL, behind until the final seconds, edged Northeast veteran Buddy Eiland by a 10th of a second to win in 4:08.3, shattering Eiland's old standard of 4:11.1.

Eiland, woo had beaten Robinson in three of four previous mile duals this spring, set the pace until the final yard. Robinson hung on his heels for the first three laps, but Eiland opened up on the last 440 and led by as much as 10 yards at one time.

Eiland's time was 4:08.4. Both runners turned in the best times of their career in the race.

Dave Styron had no trouble in either sprint. He won the 100 by about ten feet over teammate Jay Goldsmith with a 9.6 clocking. He toured the straight-away 220 in 21.4 to beat Southeastern's freshman star Mike Reed.

Randall Walker, Northeast's junior quarter - miler won the 440 in the record time of 47.4, erasing a standard of 47.5 set by Indian Dick Hays in 1960.

Tiffen Stone picked up the other Northeast first in the discus with a 151-11 toss.

Myron Brady of Southeastern turned in a sharp 1:51.4 to set a new record in the 880, breaking Eiland's year old mark of 1:52.2.

McNeese's grity oldster Briton Fred Norris won the mile and received one of the night's biggest ovations with a record clocking of 9:07.8, lowering his own mark of 9:10.7 set in 1960.

Two javeline throwers bettered the old conference mark of 214-1 and ¾ set by USL's Bob Hartquist in 1960. Southeastern's Malcolm Bech got the new record with a 220-2½ toss. Tech's Joe Cage, an ex - Neville star, heaved the spear 215-2½ to take second.

Tech pole vaulter Bob Goree provided the evening with a fitting climax when he shattered Indian John Pennel's record of 14-3 and ½, Vaulting long after most of the crowd had left Strawberry Stadium, Goree cleared 14-6 and missed three tried at 14-9.

Northeast freshman Tommy Edmondson tied for third with 14-0.

Southeastern won the 880-yard relay in 1:27.1 with Northeast finishing a dissappointing fifth.

Four athletes tied for first in the high jump and Lowell of USL took the shot put.

Northeast padded its point total with places in most of the running events. Goldsmith was second in the 100 and McDonald fourth. George Abott was third in the mile.

John Baker finished behind Walker in the 440, but teammate Claude Mercer, who came in fourth, was disqualified for running out of his lane.

Northeast did not place in the 880. Eiland passed up in the event after the grueling mile.

McDonald was fifth in the 220 while, Jack Williams came in third in the two mile, finishing about a foot behind Robinson. Bill Fryer was fourth.

In the field events Stone was fifth in the shot put, Edmondson second in the broad jump and Eugene Franklin tied for fifth in the high jump.

The victory was the ninth of the year for Northeast, giving its second unbeaten track season in three years.

SOPHOMORES LEAD VICTORY

State Ends Track Famine; Takes Conference Crown

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Mississippi State, sparked by a brood of young and hungry sophomores, ended a 30-year famine Saturday by capturing its first Southeastern Conference track title.

Southern AAU sprint champ Jim Wood thundered to victory in the 220 and Jimmy Taylor won the two mile as the Maroons upset defending titlist Auburn 45-40½.

Injury-riddled Louisiana State, perennial track power and winner of 18 SEC meets, ended a disappointing third with 39 points. Alabama was fourth with 33½, Florida had 221, Vanderbilt 19½, Georgia 15, Mississippi 9, Kentucky 6, Georgia Tech 3 and Tennessee 2.

The sophomore-dominated Maroons, thought to be a year away from the conference crown by coach Jerry Simmons, let out a rousing cheer as the public address system announced their victory.

Mississippi State won only three of the 16 events and scored only 5½ points in the field events, but running depth told the story. The Maroons' big array of eager legmen more than made up the field deficit as they nailed a host of runner-up spots.

Lexie Lednum and Taylor got second and third in the mile, respectively. Howard Wallace tied for second in the 100 and Wood finished fourth, a stride or two back.

Malcolm Balfour came through with a third in the two mile and Bill Sanford tied for second in the high jump.

Two records fell in the Deep South Carnival, held on a windless sun-scorched track with the mercury in the 80s.

Alabama's Charles Moseley uncorked a 24 foot 9¼ broad jump to break the 21-year-old record of 24 feet 2½ set by Billy Brown of LSU. Crimson Tide's mile relay team unreeled a 3:15.6 effort to break LSU's SEC mark of 3:16.5 set in 1933.

LSU was hurt badly by the loss of 1961 conference pole vault champ Joe Harris, who pulled a leg muscle as he dropped into the pit on a preliminary jump Saturday. Harris had soared 15 feet 5 this spring and figured as a cinch to win the event.

But LSU's Billy Hardin, a copy of his fabled father stole the show. The 20-year-old Baton Rouge sophomore accounted for 14½ points as he whipped to victory in two events and tied for first in a third.

Hardin, son of Glen Slats Hardin who won the NCAA 440 and the 220 hurdles in the 1933 championships, tied the meet standard as he skimmed over the low hurdles in 23 seconds.

The crew-cut Hardin upset the field in the 100 and came back 15 minutes later to finish in a dead heat with Vanderbilt's Russ Kent in the 120 high hurdles. For good measure, Hardin ran a leg on the LSU mile relay which finished fifth.

Hardin's father, a timer at the meet, looked on ith pride.

MICKEY GETS HOMER

Yankees Win 9-6; Tom Tresh Stars

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tom Tresh hit a two-run home run and drove in three runs as the league-leading New York Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians 9-6 Saturday.

The triumph increased New York's margin to 1½ games over the second-place Indians in the American League.

Right-hander Bill Stafford (3-2) was the winner but needed help near the end. Stafford worked 6 2-3 innings, allowed three runs and held the Indians to five singles. He struck out four but walked six.

New York survived a seventh inning scare as the Indians exploded for three runs and made it 8-6. Cleveland once trailed 5-0.

Cardinals Win Over Dodgers In Marathon

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Julian Javier's two-out, run-scoring single in the 15th inning Saturday night lifted the St. Louis Cardinals past Los Angeles 6-5, in a 4-hour, 58 minute marathon.

Javier hit a 3-and-2 pitch by big Dodger right - hander Don Drysdale, the seventh Dodger pitcher. The Dodgers used 20 players and the Red Birds 18. Bob Gibson pitched three-hit shutout ball through the last five innings in relief to get his fourth victory against two defeats.

The victory lifted the Cardinals back into second place in the National League and ended a four-game Dodger winning streak. It was a big shot in the arm for St. Louis, loser of six of its last eight before Saturday night.

Tom Davis smashed a pair of solo homers for the Dodgers. Julio Gotay, Cardinal shortstop, was 4-for-4, scored twice and batted in two runs.

Rookie second baseman Larry Burright's two-run homer in the ninth tied it 5-5 and there was no more scoring until the 15th. Burright was 4-for-7, giving him 11-for-21 over the last five games.

Conley, Radatz Carry Red Sox By Detroit, 5-1

DETROIT (AP)—Starting pitcher Gene Conley and Reliever Dick Radatz were a real 1-2 punch for the Boston Red Sox Saturday as they pitched and batted their way to a 5-1 verdict over the Detroit Tigers.

Conley (4-2) knocked in two runs and scored another himself in helping the Red Sox to a 3-0 lead through six innings. He ran into jam in the seventh and got a helping hand on the mound and at bat from Radatz.

Coach Bankston Signs Contract With LaGrange

WINNSBORO (Special) — Tommy Bankston, 27, of Winnsboro and a graduate student at Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe, has signed a contract with LaGrange Junior High School of Lake Charles as head coach and athletic director effective August 15, 1962.

Coach Bankston is scheduled to receive his M. S. degree from Northeast State in August.

He graduated from Winnsboro High School in 1953 and while in high school lettered four years in football, basketball and baseball. He ran from the fullback slot on the Wildcat eleven and was all - district in his senior year.

Bankston received his B. S. degree from Louisiana College at Pineville in 1957. While there he lettered four years in football and baseball. He played fullback on the football team and second base in baseball. He made all GSC in baseball in 1954-55-56, and was the third leading scorer in the GSC in 1955.

OF 20 SECONDS FLAT

Frank Budd Ties 220 Yards Mark

VILLANOVA, Pa. (UPI) — Villanova sprinter Frank Budd, holder of the world's record for 100 yards equaled the 220 yards record Saturday when he was clocked in 20 seconds flat winning the furlong in a dual meet with the Quantico Marines.

Budd, who holds the world record of 9.2 seconds for the 100, won the century in 9.3 and came back 35 minutes later to flash to his 20 seconds flat clocking for the 220.

Three watches caught him in 20 seconds while Lou Nicastro, track coach at St. Joseph's (Philadelphia) College caught him in 19.9. Wind gauges showed "a one mile per hour air movement against the runners.

Budd finished the furlong visibly "eased up" and said after the dash that he had slowed favoring a slight pull of a right thigh muscle.

The spectacular show by Budd equaled the world record in the 220 set by Dave Sime of Duke in 1956 at Sanger, Calif., and also equaled that great afternoon by the redhead.

The day Sime set the 220 mark, he also won the 100 in 9.3, exactly as Budd did in both events against the Marines.

The muscle pull Budd reported was on his right leg which shows the effects of boyhood polio. A swift examination showed no evidence of serious injury.

Budd's brilliant performance came as Villanova beat the Marines 78-62 and saw Dick Edmunds, formerly of Princeton, and Cary Weisiger, formerly of Duke, set track records.

Giants Romp To 11-0 Win Over Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The National League-leading San Francisco Giants' lusty hitting, combined with some uncertain Houston play afield and Juan Marihit pitching added up to a whopping 11-0 triumph over the new Colts Saturday night.

San Francisco, shut out for the first time this season by the Colts Friday night, jammed in four runs in the second inning and put it far out of reach with six more in the fourth. Two of the second inning runs were unearned, and a couple of Colt errors in the fourth helped run it up.

Kelly Defeats Ruston Club By 10 To 7

RUSTON (Special) — Kelly of Shreveport rallied in late innings to hand the Ruston Ramblers their first defeat 10-7 here Saturday night.

The loss dropped Ruston to 2-1 in the North Louisiana Amatuer league and kept Kelly in first on a 3-0 mark.

Ruston took a 5-0 lead in the fifth inning, but Kelly went back in front 6-5 with a big sixth inning splurge, then added three in the eighth after Ruston had tied the scored 6-6.

Joe Zaffater hit three for four for the Ramblers and drove in three runs, while Jackie Moreland got four hits in five trips.

Lane Martin started for the Ramblers, but was relieved in the sixth by Charley Fuller. Team manager Billy Henderson came on in the eighth to finish the game.

In the second game at the Southside Park, McLemore's Shopping Center scored 13 runs on 12 hits to defeat Texaco who tallied eight times on 11 hits.

Jerry Lockwood was credited with the win and struck out six opponents while Texaco's hurler, Don Carter struck eight. Wayne Marks homered for McLemore's with the bases empty to lead the team's hitting attack.

Pulp and Paper defeated Peoples Loan 7-5, in the first tilt on the Northside.

Clark and Thompson were the winning battery and Russell and Oglesbee took the loss.

Firestone downed Heard Oil Co., 4-2 in the second game. Huff and McGuire were the winning battery and Payne and Ragland were the losers.

Smith and Schaeffer were the winning battery as Bancroft Paper beat Louisiana Power and Light 4-2. Ranink and Gayes were the losing pair.

In the 8 p.m. tilt, Foremost handed Barker's Rent Alls a 12-6 loss. Downey and Ketchell took the win and Miles and Freeman took the loss.

Tech, USL Tie For All-Sports Trophy In GSC

HAMMOND (Special) — Louisiana Tech and Southwestern University tied for this year's All - Sports trophy in the Gulf States Conference, each with 30 points.

Northeast entered the spring sports program leading the race but ended up with 27½ points, good for third place. The finish was highest in history for Northeast which tied for third last year.

But the Monroe school did end up with the most championships of any GSC school, taking titles in cross country and basketball in addition to track.

Tech had won all but one of the previous trophies.

Other awards announced at the track meet included Coach of the Year honors in basketball and baseball. Northeast cage coach Lenny Fant was chosen by his fellow coaches in basketball and Southeastern's Pat Kenelly was voted the top coach in baseball.

Neville Meets Abbeville Next In State Finals

Next opponent for the Neville High baseball team will be Abbeville. Tiger Coach Charley Brown said he would contact officials at the South Louisiana school Monday to determine where and when the game of the Class AA state championship would be held.

Abbeville beat Slidell in a best of three series, coming back to win the last two games 8-4 and 1-0 after losing the opener.

Neville, the defending state champion, did much the same in a semi-final series with Menard losing to the Eagles 15-14 in the opener, but taking the last two games, 7-1, and 7-0.

Arnold Palmer Surges Back Into First Place At Colonial Meet

Gary Player Falls Three Strokes Back

By ED FITE

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, golf's reigning king, broke the monotony of eight successive pars with a string of three birdies to charge back into the lead in the third round of the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament Saturday.

Palmer, who had floundered on the back nine of Colonial Club's demanding 7,112-yard course in the first two rounds, conquered it in fine fashion with a 34-32—66 and a five-under-par three round total of 205.

While Palmer surged to the front, second day leader Gary Player and another overseas challenger, Bruce Crampton, stumbled on the back side and wound up the day three strokes behind the onrushing Palmer.

Crampton, a 26-year-old former Australian Open champion, had the day's hottest round working until his second shot on No. 18 slid off into casual water at the side of the green and he wound up with a double bogey 6 and a 33-34—67 for 208.

Player, who led Palmer by a stroke at the start of Saturday's play, birdied the first two holes and had a three-stroke lead at that point, but a bogey on No. 7 set the stage for collapse that lasted through the back nine.

He bogeyed the 11th, 14th and 17th to finish with a 34-36—70 for his 208.

Palmer played strictly par golf for the first eight holes with two-putt greens, then made what he termed his "first birdie in two days" with a 10-footer on No. 9.

"I made a couple of birdies yesterday," Palmer said, "but they were on the par 5 holes and I don't count them."

On the back side he had birdie putts of one, 15 and 10 feet and wound up with 27 putts compared with 35 Friday.

"I left myself a lot of short ones today by pitching better," he said. His short irons had given him trouble the first two rounds.

Player had 12 and 6-foot putts for birdies on Nos. 1 and 2, stymied himself behind a fairway tree for a bogey on No. 7, picked up an eight-foot birdie putt on No. 11, bogeyed No. 14 from a trap and three-putted No. 17 for his third bogey.

A flubbed two-foot putt on No. 13 for a birdie was "the turning point," Player said.

USL Takes Second; La. Tech Is Third

HAMMOND (Special) — Dave and Don Styron led Northeast to its third Gulf States Conference track championship in four years — as expected — here Saturday night, with a tremendous mile dual providing the major excitement.

Northeast, the heavy pre - meet favorite, scored 85 and 7-10 points to easily outdistance second place Southwestern which came in with 57 points. Louisiana Tech was a close third with 54 and 11-15. Northwestern had 40 and 7-10, Southeastern 38 and 8-15 and McNeese 26 and 1-3.

Dave and Don Styron won two events each and ran on two winning relay teams as Northeast, second in 1961, dethroned Tech, the defending champions.

Don took both hurdle events, setting a new record of 13.9 in the highs, while Dave took both dashes.

The meet was the last GSC competition for the fleet - footed Overland Park, Kansas twins, who were named the GSC's most outstanding athletes in both 1959 and '60.

Northeast's 440 relay team of the Styrons, Charles McDonald, and Jay Goldsmith, won with 41.6 and the mile foursome of the Styrons, Randall Walker and John Baker set a new record of 3:14.5, breaking the mark of 3:14.7 set by the twins, Dick Hays and Jim Mouser in 1960.

In all Northeast won eight firsts and set three records. A total of eight records were set in the meet, held in the Southeastern football stadium.

The major event of the hot, sultry evening was the mile. British Import Malcolm Robinson of USL, behind until the final seconds, edged Northeast veteran Buddy Eiland by a 10th of a second to win in 4:08.3, shattering Eiland's old standard of 4:11.1.

Eiland, woo had beaten Robinson in three of four previous mile duals this spring, set the pace until the final yard. Robinson hung on his heels for the first three laps, but Eiland opened up on the last 440 and led by as much as 10 yards at one time.

Eiland's time was 4:08.4. Both runners turned in the best times of their career in the race.

Dave Styron had no trouble in either sprint. He won the 100 by about ten feet over teammate Jay Goldsmith with a 9.6 clocking. He toured the straight-away 220 in 21.4 to beat Southeastern's freshman star Mike Reed.

Randall Walker, Northeast's junior quarter - miler won the 440 in the record time of 47.4, erasing a standard of 47.5 set by Indian Dick Hays in 1960.

Tiffen Stone picked up the other Northeast first in the discus with a 151-11 toss.

Myron Brady of Southeastern turned in a sharp 1:51.4 to set a new record in the 880, breaking Eiland's year old mark of 1:52.2.

McNeese's grity oldster Briton Fred Norris won the mile and received one of the night's biggest ovations with a record clocking of 9:07.8, lowering his own mark of 9:10.7 set in 1960.

Two javeline throwers bettered the old conference mark of 214-1 and ¾ set by USL's Bob Hartquist in 1960. Southeastern's Malcolm Beech got the new record with a 220-2½ toss. Tech's Joe Cage, an ex - Neville star, heaved the spear 215-2½ to take second.

Tech pole vaulter Bob Goree provided the evening with a fitting climax when he shattered Indian John Pennel's record of 14-3 and ½. Vaulting long after most of the crowd had left Strawberry Stadium, Goree cleared 14-6 and missed three tried at 14-9.

Northeast freshman Tommy Edmondson tied for third with 14-0.

Four athletes tied for first in the high jump and Lowell of USL took the shot put.

Northeast padded its point total with places in most of the running events. Goldsmith was second in the 100 and McDonald fourth. George Abott was third in the mile.

John Baker finished behind Walker in the 440, but teammate Claude Mercer, who came in fourth, was disqualified for running out of his lane.

Northeast did not place in the 880. Eiland passed up in the event after the grueling mile.

McDonald was fifth in the 220 while, Jack Williams came in third in the two mile, finishing about a foot behind Robinson. Bill Fryer was fourth.

In the field events Stone was fifth in the shot put, Edmondson second in the broad jump and Eugene Franklin tied for fifth in the high jump.

The victory was the ninth of the year for Northeast, giving it second unbeaten track season in three years.

SOPHOMORES LEAD VICTORY

State Ends Track Famine; Takes Conference Crown

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Mississippi State, sparked by a brood of young and hungry sophomores, ended a 30-year famine Saturday by capturing its first Southeastern Conference track title.

Southern AAU sprint champ Jim Wood thundered to victory in the 220 and Jimmy Taylor won the two mile as the Maroons upset defending titlist Auburn 45-40½.

Injury-riddled Louisiana State, perennial track power and winner of 18 SEC meets, ended a disappointing third with 39 points. Alabama was fourth with 33½, Florida had 22½, Vanderbilt 19½, Georgia 15, Mississippi 9, Kentucky 6, Georgia Tech 3 and Tennessee 2.

The sophomore-dominated Maroons, thought to be a year away from the conference crown by coach Jerry Simmons, let out a rousing cheer as the public address system announced their victory.

Mississippi State won only three of the 16 events and scored only 5½ points in the field events, but running depth told the story. The Maroons' big array of eager legmen more than made up the field deficit as they nailed a host of runner up spots.

Lexie Lednum and Taylor got second and third in the mile, respectively. Howard Wallace tied for second in the 100 and Wood finished fourth, a stride or two back.

Malcolm Balfour came through with a third in the two mile and Bill Sanford tied for second in the high jump.

Two records fell in the Deep South Carnival, held on a windless sun-scorched track with the mercury in the 80s.

Alabama's Charles Moseley uncorked a 24 foot 9¼ broad jump to break the 24-year-old record of 24 feet 2½ set by Billy Brown of LSU. Crimson Tide's mile relay team unreeled a 3:15.6 effort to break LSU's SEC mark of 3:16.5 set in 1938.

LSU was hurt badly by the loss of 1961 conference pole vault champ Joe Harris, who pulled a leg muscle as he dropped into the pit on a preliminary jump Saturday. Harris had soared 15 feet 5 this spring and figured as a cinch to win the event.

But LSU's Billy Hardin, a copy of his fabled father stole the show. The 20-year-old Baton Rouge sophomore accounted for 14½ points as he whipped to victory in two events and tied for first in a third.

Hardin, son of Glen Slats Hardin who won the NCAA 440 and the 220 hurdles in the 1933 championships, tied the meet standard as he skimmed over the low hurdles in 23 seconds.

The crew-cut Hardin upset the field in the 100 and came back 15 minutes later to finish in a dead heat with Vanderbilt's Russ Kent in the 120 high hurdles. For good measure, Hardin ran a leg on the LSU mile relay which finished fifth.

Hardin's father, a timer at the meet, looked on ith pride.

MICKEY GETS HOMER

Yankees Win 9-6; Tom Tresh Stars

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tom Tresh hit a two-run home run and drove in three runs as the league-leading New York Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians 9-6 Saturday.

The triumph increased New York's margin to 1½ games over the second-place Indians in the American League.

Right-hander Bill Stafford (3-2) was the winner but needed help near the end. Stafford worked 6 2-3 innings, allowed three runs and held the Indians to five singles. He struck out four but walked six.

New York survived a seventh inning scare as the Indians exploded for three runs and made it 8-6. Cleveland once trailed 5-0.

Cardinals Win Over Dodgers In Marathon

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Julian Javier's two-out, run-scoring single in the 15th inning Saturday night lifted the St. Louis Cardinals past Los Angeles 6-5, in a 4-hour, 58 minute marathon.

Javier hit a 3 and 2 pitch by big Dodger right - hander Don Drysdale, the seventh Dodger pitcher. The Dodgers used 20 players and the Red Birds 18. Bob Gibson pitched three-hit shutout ball through the last five innings in relief to get his fourth victory against two defeats.

The victory lifted the Cardinals back into second place in the National League and ended a four-game Dodger winning streak. It was a big shot in the arm for St. Louis, loser of six of its last eight before Saturday night.

Tom Davis smashed a pair of solo homers for the Dodgers. Julio Gotay, Cardinal shortstop, was 4-for-4, scored twice and batted in two runs.

Rookie second baseman Larry Burright's two-run homer in the ninth tied it 5-5 and there was no more scoring until the 15th. Burright was 4-for-7, giving him 11-for-21 over the last five games.

Coach Bankston Signs Contract With LaGrange

WINNSBORO (Special) — Tommy Bankston, 27, of Winnsboro and a graduate student at Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe, has signed a contract with LaGrange Junior High School of Lake Charles as head coach and athletic director effective August 15, 1962.

Coach Bankston is scheduled to receive his M. S. degree from Northeast State in August.

He graduated from Winnsboro High School in 1953 and while in high school lettered four years in football, basketball and baseball. He ran from the fullback slot on the Wildcat eleven and was all - district in his senior year.

Bankston received his B. S. degree from Louisiana College at Pineville in 1957. While there he lettered four years in football and baseball. He played fullback on the football team and second base in baseball. He made all GSC in baseball in 1954-55-56, and was the third leading scorer in the GSC in 1955.

Conley, Radatz Carry Red Sox By Detroit, 5-1

DETROIT (AP)—Starting pitcher Gene Conley and Reliever Dick Radatz were a real 1-2 punch for the Boston Red Sox Saturday as they pitched and batted their way to a 5-1 verdict over the Detroit Tigers.

Conley (4-2) knocked in two runs and scored another himself in helping the Red Sox to a 3-0 lead through six innings. He ran into jam in the seventh and got a helping hand on the mound and at bat from Radatz.

Little Boys Baseball

In the second game at the Southside Park, McLemore's Shopping Center scored 13 runs on 12 hits to defeat Texaco who tallied eight times on 11 hits.

Jerry Lockwood was credited with the win and struck out six opponents while Texaco's hurler, Don Carter struck eight. Wayne Marks homered for McLemore's with the bases empty to lead the team's hitting attack.

Pulp and Paper defeated Peoples Loan 7-5, in the first tilt on the Northside.

Clark and Thompson were the winning battery and Russell and Oglesbee took the loss.

Firestone downed Heard Oil Co., 4-2 in the second game. Huff and McGuire were the winning battery and Payne and Ragland were the losers.

Smith and Schaeffer were the winning battery as Bancroft Paper beat Louisiana Power and Light 4-2. Ranink and Gayes were the losing pair.

In the 8 p.m. tilt, Foremost handed Barker's Rent Alls a 12-6 loss. Downey and Ketchell took the win and Miles and Freeman took the loss.

OF 20 SECONDS FLAT

Frank Budd Ties 220 Yards Mark

VILLANOVA, Pa. (UPI) — Villanova sprinter Frank Budd, holder of the world's record for 100 yards equaled the 220 yards record Saturday when he was clocked in 20 seconds flat winning the furlong in a dual meet with the Quantico Marines.

Budd, who holds the world record of 9.2 seconds for the 100, won the century in 9.3 and came back 35 minutes later to flash to his 20 seconds flat clocking for the 220.

Three watches caught him in 20 seconds while Lou Nicastro, track coach at St. Joseph's (Philadelphia) College caught him in 19.9. Wind gauges showed a one mile per hour air movement against the runners.

Budd finished the furlong visibly "eased up" and said after the dash that he had slowed favoring a slight pull of a right thigh muscle.

The spectacular show by Budd equaled the world record in the 220 set by Dave Sime of Duke in 1936 at Sanger, Calif., and also equaled that great afternoon by the redhead.

The day Sime set the 220 mark, he also won the 100 in 9.3, exactly as Budd did in both events against the Marines.

The muscle pull Budd reported was on his right leg which shows the effects of boyhood polio. A swift examination showed no evidence of serious injury.

Budd's brilliant performance came as Villanova beat the Marines 78-62 and saw Dick Edmunds, formerly of Princeton, and Cary Weisiger, formerly of Duke, set track records.

Giants Romp To 11-0 Win Over Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The National League-leading San Francisco Giants' lusty hitting, combined with some uncertain Houston play afield and Juan Marichal pitching added up to a whopping 11-0 triumph over the new Colts Saturday night.

San Francisco, shut out for the first time this season by the Colts Friday night, jammed in four runs in the second inning and put it far out of reach with six more in the fourth. Two of the second inning runs were unearned, and a couple of Colt errors in the fourth helped run it up.

Kelly Defeats Ruston Club By 10 To 7

RUSTON (Special) — Kelly of Shreveport rallied in late innings to hand the Ruston Ramblers their first defeat 10-7 here Saturday night.

The loss dropped Ruston to 2-1 in the North Louisiana Amatuer league and kept Kelly in first on a 3-0 mark.

Ruston took a 5-0 lead in the fifth inning, but Kelly went back in front 6-5 with a big sixth inning splurge, then added three in the eighth after Ruston had tied the scored 6-6.

Joe Zaffater hit three for four for the Ramblers and drove in three runs, while Jackie Moreland got four hits in five trips.

Lane Martin started for the Ramblers, but was relieved in the sixth by Charley Fuller. Team manager Billy Henderson came on in the eighth to finish the game.

Tech, USL Tie For All-Sports Trophy In GSC

HAMMOND (Special) — Louisiana Tech and Southwestern University tied for this year's All - Sports trophy in the Gulf States Conference, each with 30 points.

Northeast entered the spring sports program leading the race but ended up with 27½ points, good for third place. The finish was highest in history for Northeast which tied for third last year.

But the Monroe school did end up with the most championships of any GSC school, taking titles in cross country and basketball in addition to track.

Tech had won all but one of the previous trophies.

Other awards announced at the track meet included Coach of the Year honors in basketball and baseball. Northeast cage coach Lenny Fant was chosen by his fellow coaches in basketball and Southeastern's Pat Kenelly was voted the top coach in baseball.

Neville Meets Abbeville Next In State Finals

Next opponent for the Neville High baseball team will be Abbeville. Tiger Coach Charley Brown said he would contact officials at the South Louisiana school Monday to determine where and when the game of the Class AA state championship would be held.

Abbeville beat Slidell in a best of three series, coming back to win the last two games 8-4 and 1-0 after losing the opener.

Neville, the defending state champion, did much the same in a semi-final series with Menard losing to the Eagles 15-14 in the opener, but taking the last two games, 7-1, and 7-0.

UNANIMOUS DECISION

Johnson Retains Title With Win Over Jones

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold Johnson speared Doug Jones with an accurate jab and shook up the challenger with quick counter flurries Saturday night to hold his ever-growing share of the world light heavyweight title on a unanimous decision in 15 rounds. The bout was marred by fighting after the bell in at least three rounds.

Johnson played his usual cat-and-mouse game, stabbing with a left while waiting for an opening to throw those quick combinations.

Jones, a 2-1 underdog, kept wading in under constant counter fire, but he didn't have enough experience to cope with his 33-year-old opponent.

Referee Dave Beloff scored it 74-61, Judge Nick Spane saw it 71-63 and Judge Zack Clayton had it 73-64, all in favor of the Philadelphia veteran. The AP card for Johnson was 70-62.

They fought after the bell in the fifth and again in the seventh. Then in the 11th when Johnson battered Jones to the ropes and started to throw heavy punishment at him, they kept going for several seconds after the bell rang.

Referee Beloff said "both boys were over anxious. They just didn't hear the bell. After awhile I stepped in between them to be sure. Certainly, I heard the bell."

At ringside it seemed that they must have fought for at least five seconds after the bell in the 11th. The fans jeered. When Referee Beloff stopped the action promptly after the 12th, the customers cheered.

This was Johnson's third defense of the title he won by stopping Jesse Bowdry in Miami Beach Feb. 7, 1961. He stopped Von Clay in Philadelphia last April and won a split decision over Eddie Cotton in Seattle last Aug. 29.

The National Boxing Association recognized Johnson as champ when he beat Bowdry as they had stripped Archie Moore of his title a few months earlier. New York finally took the title away from Moore this past winter and agreed to recognize the Johnson-Jones winner as his successor. The European Boxing Union said it would go along. So did Massachusetts. That left ancient Archie champ only in California.

If Johnson was upset by his managerial troubles and pending court appearances, he didn't look that way in the ring. He was the master boxer with the stinging, sometimes flicking jabs. Jones kept moving in, trying to get his right home, but Johnson landed those quick counter bursts.

There were no knockdowns in the 15 rounds. The closest thing to it came after the bell rang to end the 11th. They kept on banging away with Johnson on the attack and Jones pinned against the ropes near a neutral corner.

Ollie Hackman, Jones' co-manager and former Army buddy, became so excited he jumped into the ring between rounds and complained to the referee.

Johnson and his 25-year-old opponent from New York each weighed 171½ pounds, well under the class limit of 175 pounds.

Johnson obviously knew he couldn't lose unless he was knocked out and boxed cautiously in the last two rounds.

The champ had a slight cut over his left eye and another cut on the side of his cheek. Jones' left eye was closing fast from Johnson's right hand punches.

At no stage of the one-sided fight was Johnson ever trailing on the official cards. He won the first three rounds on all cards and proceeded to pile it up down the stretch. Referee Beloff gave Jones only one round, the seventh. He called the 10th even.

BREAKS ONE-MINUTE BARRIER

Parnelli Jones Wins Pole Position With Record Run

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Parnelli Jones, king of the high-banked sprint car tracks, broke through the one-minute barrier at the old 2½-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway Saturday and won the pole position for the 46th 500-mile race with a record qualifying run of 150.370 miles per hour.

All four of his laps were under a minute and the best, 59.71 seconds, worked out to a record 150.729 m.p.h.

Beside Jones in the three-car front row May 30 will be Rodger Ward of Indianapolis, the 1959 winner, who qualified for his 11th start at 149.371, and young Bobby Marshman, Pottstown, Pa., who averaged 149.349 for the 10-mile test.

The 2-year-old record qualifying average of 149.056, by Jim Hurtubise of Lennox, Calif., was bettered by five of the 19 drivers who qualified. Hurtubise wrecked his car Friday but hopes to run next weekend.

Veteran Len Sutton, Portland, Ore., turned the 10 miles in 149.328 and A. J. Foyt Jr., Houston, Tex., last year's 500 winner, averaged 149.074.

The partial field, to be completed in trials Sunday and next weekend, averaged 147.769. The full 33-car field last year averaged 145.302.

Ten of Saturday's qualifiers were faster than Eddie Sachs' pole record of 147.481 last year. Sachs of Coopersburg, Pa., hoped for a third straight pole victory but lost a wheel in a practice run. He escaped injury but could not get up satisfactory speed after repairs.

Jim McElreath, Arlington, Tex., and road racer Dan Gurney, Costa Mesa, Calif., were the most impressive newcomers. McElreath did 149.025 in a conventional Offenhauser-powered car. Gurney got a surprising 147.886 from a novel rear-engine car, built around a Buick stock block by Mickey Thompson, Long Beach, Calif.

GREEN TICKET SECOND

Jaipur Takes Win At Aqueduct Run

NEW YORK (AP) — George Widener's Jaipur, heavy favorite of a crowd of 50,105, drew away from the pace-setting Green Ticket in the final one-eighth of a mile Saturday at Aqueduct and won the $58,600 Withers Mile with complete authority.

The dark bay son of Nasrullah-Rare Perfume, by Eight Thirty, who was kept out of the Kentucky Derby a week ago by his owner, is expected to clash with Decidedly, the Derby winner, in the $150,000 - added Preakness at Baltimore next Saturday.

Seven 3-year-olds contested the 87th running of the Withers, and Jockey Willie Shoemaker steered Jaipur to a one-length victory over Mrs. Adele L. Rand's Green Ticket, a noted sprint star.

Green Ticket, winner of the Swift Stakes at Aqueduct on opening day March 20, took second by three quarters of a length over Greentree Stable's Cyrano.

Cyrano, who was unbeaten in three starts until this cool sunny afternoon, was making his first stakes start. He ran a creditable race as he nosed out Charles W. Engelhard's Nassau Hall for third money. Nassau Hall, who had beaten Green Ticket decisively April 28 in the Delaware Valley Stakes at Garden State Park, was the 5-2 second choice Saturday.

Ada L. Rice's Daddy R. was fifth, followed by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Lucky Uncle and the Parlam Stable's Western Warrior was seventh and last. Duc d'Or and Grid Iron Hero were withdrawn from the race.

Jaipur was timed in 1:35 3-5 over a fast track, just two-fifths of a second slower than the Withers record set a year ago by Hitting Away.

The winner returned $3.50, $2.50 and $2.20. Green Ticket, who started at 12 to 1, paid $6.40 and $3.20, and Cyrano returned $2.60 to show.

"He didn't come out of the gate real sharp, like he did last time," said Shoemaker, referring to Jaipur's victory over several top Derby horses in the Gotham Stakes here April 7.

Mets Win 2 For 1st Time From Braves

NEW YORK (AP)—Ninth inning home runs by Hobie Landrith and Gil Hodges gave the New York Mets a dramatic 3-2 and 8-7 double header sweep over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday.

Craig Anderson, pitching in relief, received credit for both triumphs to mark the first time the Mets had ever won two games in one day.

DESPITE CANTRELL

Gators Top State To Get SEC Title

By VAN SAVELL

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) —Mississippi State's Johnny Cantrell drove in five runs with two home runs and a single, but Florida won its third Southeastern Conference baseball crown 8-7 Saturday with a two-run eighth inning rally.

A triple by Tom Moore and C. W. Price's double pushed across the tying and winning runs for Florida with two out in the eighth. Jim Biggart, the Gators' fourth pitcher, was credited with the victory—his seventh against no defeats.

Thirty players cracked the two lineups as coaches shuttled pitchers and infielders in the middle innings. Biggart and Price switched positions twice in the sixth.

Florida picked up one run in the second on a double steal with Ron Birchall scoring. The Gators added three more in the third off Maroon starter Guy Parker with singles by Moore and catcher Len Scheinhoft, a double by starting hurler Jim Elliott and a double steal with Moore scoring.

The Gators uilt the lead to 6-0 off reliefer Lloyd Langston in the fourth on a double by Don Ringgold, scoring Bernie Haskins who had singled, and then Ringgold stole home after moving to third on an infield out.

Cantrell hit a booming home run high over the 370-foot mark for State's first run in the fourth. In the fifth, he hit a two-run homer over the same spot off Gator relief pitcher Eddie Clark.

The Maroons broke loose for four runs in the sixth inning and went ahead 7-6 on a two-run single by Cantrell.

Ron Norton was safe on an error, went to third on Jim Handley's single to center and scored on a sacrifice fly by Larry Adams. Bill Etheridge lined a double to left, scoring Handley and Wayne Meadows walked before Cantrell's single.

Biggart finished the sixth for Florida, after giving up two runs on two hits. He set State down with only one single through the last three frames.

Gentile Homers To Pace Orioles Over Senators

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jim Gentile, who was picked off base to blunt an Oriole rally in the sixth inning, hit a homer in the eighth for the winning run in a 3-2 Baltimore victory over the Washington Senators Saturday night.

The leadoff homer by Gentile, his seventh, came on the first pitch from losing hurler Pete Burnside.

Baltimore's Steve Barber, on a weekend pass from Ft. Bragg, N.C., continued his amazing success as a once-a-week pitcher. He went the route for the third time as he upped his record to 4-1.

The Senators scored their two runs in the sixth inning, when the Orioles made three errors.

UNANIMOUS DECISION

Johnson Retains Title With Win Over Jones

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold Johnson speared Doug Jones with an accurate jab and shook up the challenger with quick counter flurries Saturday night to hold his ever-growing share of the world light heavyweight title on a unanimous decision in 15 rounds. The bout was marred by fighting after the bell in at least three rounds.

Johnson played his usual cat-and-mouse game, stabbing with a left while waiting for an opening to throw those quick combinations.

Jones, a 2-1 underdog, kept wading in under constant counter fire, but he didn't have enough experience to cope with his 33-year-old opponent.

Referee Dave Beloff scored it 74-61, Judge Nick Spane saw it 71-63 and Judge Zack Clayton had it 73-64, all in favor of the Philadelphia veteran. The AP card for Johnson was 70-62.

They fought after the bell in the fifth and again in the seventh. Then in the 11th when Johnson battered Jones to the ropes and started to throw heavy punishment at him, they kept going for several seconds after the bell rang.

Referee Beloff said "both boys were over anxious. They just didn't hear the bell. After awhile I stepped in between them to be sure. Certainly, I heard the bell."

At ringside it seemed that they must have fought for at least five seconds after the bell in the 11th. The fans jeered. When Referee Beloff stopped the action promptly after the 12th, the customers cheered

This was Johnson's third defense of the title he won by stopping Jesse Bowdry in Miami Beach Feb. 7, 1961. He stopped Von Clay in Philadelphia last April and won a split decision over Eddie Cotton in Seattle last Aug. 29

The National Boxing Association recognized Johnson as champ when he beat Bowdry as they had stripped Archie Moore of his title a few months earlier. New York finally took the title away from Moore this past winter and agreed to recognize the Johnson-Jones winner as his successor. The European Boxing Union said it would go along. So did Massachusetts. That left ancient Archie champ only in California.

If Johnson was upset by his managerial troubles and pending court appearances, he didn't look that way in the ring. He was the master boxer with the stinging, sometimes flicking jabs. Jones kept moving in, trying to get his right home, but Johnson landed those quick counter bursts

There were no knockdowns in the 15 rounds. The closest thing to it came after the bell rang to end the 11th. They kept on banging away with Johnson on the attack and Jones pinned against the ropes near a neutral corner.

Ollie Hackman, Jones' co-manager and former Army buddy, became so excited he jumped into the ring between rounds and complained to the referee.

Johnson and his 25-year-old opponent from New York each weighed 171½ pounds, well under the class limit of 175 pounds.

Johnson obviously knew he couldn't lose unless he was knocked out and boxed cautiously in the last two rounds.

The champ had a slight cut over his left eye and another cut on the side of his cheek Jones' left eye was closing fast from Johnson's right hand punches.

At no stage of the one-sided fight was Johnson ever trailing on the official cards. He won the first three rounds on all cards and proceeded to pile it up down the stretch. Referee Beloff gave Jones only one round, the seventh. He called the 10th even.

BREAKS ONE-MINUTE BARRIER

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Parnelli Jones, king of the high-banked sprint car tracks, broke through the one-minute barrier at the old 2½-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway Saturday and won the pole position for the 46th 500-mile race with a record qualifying run of 150.370 miles per hour.

All four of his laps were under a minute and the best, 59.71 seconds, worked out to a record 150.729 m.p.h.

Beside Jones in the three-car front row May 30 will be Rodger Ward of Indianapolis, the 1959 winner, who qualified for his 11th start at 149.371, and young Bobby Marshman, Pottstown, Pa., who averaged 149.349 for the 10-mile test.

The 2-year-old record qualifying average of 149.056, by Jim Hurtubise of Lennox, Calif., was bettered by five of the 19 drivers who qualified. Hurtubise wrecked his car Friday but hopes to run next weekend.

Veteran Len Sutton, Portland, Ore., turned the 10 miles in 149.328 and A. J. Foyt Jr., Houston, Tex., last year's 500 winner, averaged 149.074.

The partial field, to be completed in trials Sunday and next weekend, averaged 147.769. The full 33-car field last year averaged 145.302.

Ten of Saturday's qualifiers were faster than Eddie Sachs' pole record of 147.481 last year. Sachs, of Coopersburg, Pa., hoped for a third straight pole victory but lost a wheel in a practice run. He escaped injury but could not get up satisfactory speed after repairs.

Jim McElreath, Arlington, Tex., and road racer Dan Gurney, Costa Mesa, Calif., were the most impressive newcomers. McElreath did 149.025 in a conventional Offenhauser-powered car. Gurney got a surprising 147.886 from a novel rear-engine car, built around a Buick stock block by Mickey Thompson, Long Beach, Calif.

GREEN TICKET SECOND

Jaipur Takes Win At Aqueduct Run

NEW YORK (AP) — George Widener's Jaipur, heavy favorite of a crowd of 50,105, drew away from the pace-setting Green Ticket in the final one-eighth of a mile Saturday at Aqueduct and won the $58,600 Withers Mile with complete authority.

The dark bay son of Nasrullah-Rare Perfume, by Eight Thirty, who was kept out of the Kentucky Derby a week ago by his owner, is expected to clash with Decidedly, the Derby winner, in the $150,000 - added Preakness at Baltimore next Saturday.

Seven 3-year-olds contested the 87th running of the Withers, and Jockey Willie Shoemaker steered Jaipur to a one-length victory over Mrs. Adele L. Rand's Green Ticket, a noted sprint star

Green Ticket, winner of the Swift Stakes at Aqueduct on opening day March 20, took second by three quarters of a length over Greentree Stable's Cyrano.

Cyrano, who was unbeaten in three starts until this cool sunny afternoon, was making his first stakes start. He ran a creditable race as he nosed out Charles W. Engelhard's Nassau Hall for third money. Nassau Hall, who had beaten Green Ticket decisively April 28 in the Delaware Valley Stakes at Garden State Park, was the 5-2 second choice Saturday.

Ada L. Rice's Daddy R. was fifth, followed by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Lucky Uncle and the Parr Jam Stable's Western Warrior was seventh and last. Duc d'Or and Grid Iron Hero were withdrawn from the race.

Jaipur was timed in 1:35 3-5 over a fast track, just two-fifths of a second slower than the Withers record set a year ago by Hitting Away.

The winner returned $3.50, $2.50 and $2.20. Green Ticket, who started at 12 to 1, paid $6.40 and $3.20, and Cyrano returned $2.60 to show.

"He didn't come out of the gate real sharp, like he did last time," said Shoemaker, referring to Jaipur's victory over several top Derby horses here April 7.

Gentile Homers To Pace Orioles Over Senators

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jim Gentile, who was picked off base to blunt an Oriole rally in the sixth inning, hit a homer in the eighth for the winning run in a 3-2 Baltimore victory over the Washington Senators Saturday night.

The leadoff homer by Gentile, his seventh, came on the first pitch from losing hurler Pete Burnside.

Baltimore's Steve Barber, on a weekend pass from Ft. Bragg, N.C., continued his amazing success as a once-a-week pitcher. He went the route for the third time as he upped his record to 4-1.

The Senators scored their two runs in the sixth inning, when the Orioles made three errors.

Mets Win 2 For 1st Time From Braves

NEW YORK (AP)—Ninth inning home runs by Hobie Landrith and Gil Hodges gave the New York Mets a dramatic 3-2 and 8-7 double header sweep over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday.

Craig Anderson, pitching in relief, received credit for both triumphs to mark the first time the Mets had ever won two games in one day.

Cubs Take Win From Phils, 9-8

CHICAGO (UPI) — Billy Williams' sacrifice fly in the eighth inning drove in Lou Brock with the winning run as the Chicago Cubs outslugged the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-8, Saturday.

Brock had reached third on errors by Roy Sievers and Billy Klaus after opening the inning with a single off loser Jack Baldschun.

LINDA HATTON (left) and Margie Adams are two of Ogden's all-time great basketball stars. Linda, who has been named to the all-state squad the last two years, is a member of the 1962 graduating class. Margie, who is a junior, was an all-state choice this past season and will be counted on to spark the Ogden sextet next year.

AFTER THIRD ROUND

Wright Now Tied For Golfing Lead

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Long hitting Mickey Wright, forced to play three holes with one shoe off because of a painful blister, grimly shot a 4-over-par 76 Saturday to tie for the third round lead of the 33rd annual women's Western golf open.

Ruth Jessen, perky blonde from Seattle, Wash., and vetern Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., seeking her seventh Western title, and Miss Wright, of Dallas, Tex., were tied at the start of Saturday's round.

Miss Jessen's putter went sour and she also shot a four over 76.

Miss Berg skied to a 78.

"I just hit wicked wild shots all day," she said.

When the rounds were completed under a 93 - degree sun, Miss Wright and Miss Jessen were tied at 219, followed by Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., and Mary Lena Faulk, of Sea Island, Ga., at 220.

Miss Berg and Jackie Pung of Daly City, Calif., were tied at 221.

"It was just too painful to keep the shoe on," she said, as she hobbled off the 18th green. "Ive never played with a shoe off and it really bugged me."

Miss Wright started strong, but she bogied the 4th hole when she missed the green and the 6th when she hooked her second shot to the left of the green.

She birdied the 7th hitting the par five in two, but three putted the ninth to make the turn in 38.

On the back side she bogied 11 when her tee shot hit a trap, birdied the 12th with a 12 foot putt, and bogied the 17th when she three putted for another 38.

Mickey Wright 69-74-76—219
Ruth Jessen 71-72-76—219
Barbara Romack 76-71-73—220

Tallulah Sixth In State Class A Track Meet

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — University High of Baton Rouge, cracking a state record in a relay event, won the Louisiana class A track title Friday.

The Baton Rouge squad piled up 49½ points while runnerup Mansfield had 36. Landry Memorial took third with 25½, followed by Port Allen with 23 and Oakdale 19.

Port Allen's Ronnie Register set a record with a 15-second clocking in the high hurdles and also established a new standard in the low hurdles with a 19.9 effort.

Tallulah earned sixth place honors in the meet with 17 points. The Trojans points came from a first in the 220 and third in 100 by Chapman Lee, third in the 440 by Bill Gilfoil, fifth in the 440-relay and fourth in the 880-relay.

Farmerville racked up 14 points. Joey Barron got a fourth in the 100, Billy Rich was second in the javelin, and both the 440 and 880 relay team came in fourth.

LaSalle and Winnfield each earned two points. Delhi, Ferriday, and Winnsboro, other Northeast La. entries failed to score.

Gary Gubner May Try 2 Events In Olympic Trials

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sports of all sorts:

Gary Gubner, New York University's sophomore shot put sensation, still is tinkering with the idea of trying to make the 1964 U.S. Olympic team as both a weight thrower and a weight lifter.

In his first varsity track season, the 260-pounder has set 12 consecutive meet records—including a world indoor mark of 64-11¾—and goes for No. 13 in a local collegiate meet Saturday. . .As a weight lifter, his best competitive performance to date was good enough to have won a third place medal in the '60 Olympics at Rome.

Jimmy Nichols, noted one-armed pro, again addressed a special meeting of the President's Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped at Washington this week. . .Jimmy's theme: "It's not what you lost that counts but what you have left."

A recent change in the baseball rules for the nation's high schools permits the use of white rubber bases instead of the traditional canvas stipulated by the pros. . .That "foot in the door" would have delighted old Bill Klem, famed umpire of an earlier day, who fought for years after his retirement by the National League to have the majors adopt his brand of rubber bases. Klem insisted they would reduce ankle injuries for both base-runners and fielders.

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness posts a warning for little leaguers and other youngsters playing baseball this spring: "Don't wear your regular eyeglasses or sunglasses on the field—Get the shatter-proof kind"...Reports of serious eye injuries, caused by shattering glasses, already are coming in... big leaguers wear contacts or rugged, shatter-resistant specs.

Horses for courses: Doug Ford, fastest player in pro golf, has won the Indianapolis "500" Festival golf championship the only two times it has been played... Nine holes of the course, where the third annual affair will be held May 21-27, are inside and nine outside the famed Indy race track where the 500-mile auto race is held each Memorial Day.

Les Bingaman, Detroit Lions coaching assistant, has gone on a diet and is down to 300 pounds... Yep, that's 300. . .Less used to play guard for the Lions at 350 and up.

Whimsical Whitey Ford continues to keep the Yankees loose with his wit as well as his pitching. ..Hector Lopez, noted for his uncertain fielding, recently made a spectacular, sure-handed running catch to retire the side and came racing into the dugout with a wide smile on his face. ..Ford was quoted as saying: "At just what point, Hector, did you realize you had misjudged the ball?"

Jacky Cupit, pro golf's Rookie of the Year in '61 had a rugged time getting back on the beam this season.. ."I laid off for six weeks last November and December and I'll never do it again. I just haven't been tournament sharp."

Juan Manuel Fangio, five time world auto racing champ, comes out of retirement at Lime Rock, Conn., June 7 to drive in a race for small British sedans. ..One of his opponents was expected to be Stirling Moss until that noted Briton had his recent crackup... It was Moss who persuaded Fangio to appear at Lime Rock. Above for Saturday AMs may 12

PINSON, POST HOMER

Reds Earn 4th; Whip Pirates, 9-2

CINCINNATI (AP)—Vada Pinson and Wally Post powered home runs Saturday night as the surging Cincinnati Reds clobbered the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-2, and moved into fourth place in the National League.

Pinson's 10th homer over the right center field wall came in the second after Don Blasingame had drawn a walk. The Reds added an insurance run in the third on Eddie Kasko's single and Frank Robinson's double before going on a hitting spree in the eighth.

Cincinnati batted around in the eighth, getting six runs and five hits, including homers by Post and Johnny Edwards.

Diomedes Olivo, the fourth Pirate pitcher to see action, ended the inning by retiring Jim O'Toole and Zimmer.

The Pirates got their first run in the first inning when Bill Virdon singled to right, took third on Dick Groat's safety, and scored as Roberto Clemente forced Groat.

LINDA HATTON (left) and Margie Adams are two of Ogden's all-time great basketball stars. Linda, who has been named to the all-state squad the last two years, is a member of the 1962 graduating class. Margie, who is a junior, was an all-state choice this past season and will be counted on to spark the Ogden sextet next year.

AFTER THIRD ROUND

Wright Now Tied For Golfing Lead

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Long hitting Mickey Wright, forced to play three holes with one shoe off because of a painful blister, grimly shot a 4-over-par 76 Saturday to tie for the third round lead of the 33rd annual women's Western golf open.

Ruth Jessen, perky blonde from Seattle, Wash., and vetern Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., seeking her seventh Western title, and Miss Wright, of Dallas, Tex., were tied at the start of Saturday's round.

Miss Jessen's putter went sour and she also shot a four over 76.

Miss Berg skied to a 78.

"I just hit wicked wild shots all day," she said.

When the rounds were completed under a 93-degree sun, Miss Wright and Miss Jessen were tied at 219, followed by Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., and Mary Lena Faulk, of Sea Island, Ga., at 220.

Miss Berg and Jackie Pung of Daly City, Calif., were tied at 221.

"It was just too painful to keep the shoe on," she said, as she hobbled off the 18th green. "I've never played with a shoe off and it really bugged me."

Miss Wright started strong, but she bogied the 4th hole when she missed the green and the 6th when she hooked her second shot to the left of the green.

She birdied the 7th hitting the par five in two, but three putted the ninth to make the turn in 38.

On the back side she bogied 11 when her tee shot hit a trap, birdied the 12th with a 12 foot putt, and bogied the 17th when she three putted for another 38.

Tallulah Sixth In State Class A Track Meet

The Baton Rouge squad piled up 49½ points while runnerup Mansfield had 36. Landry Memorial took third with 25½, followed by Port Allen with 23 and Oakdale 19.

University High set a mark in the 880-yard relay with a 1:31.8 clocking.

Port Allen's Ronnie Register set a record with a 15-second clocking in the high hurdles and also established a new standard in the low hurdles with a 19.9 effort.

Tallulah earned sixth place honors in the meet with 17 points. The Trojans points came from a first in the 220 and third in 100 by Chapman Lee, third in the 440 by Bill Gilfoil, fifth in the 440-relay and fourth in the 880-relay.

Farmerville racked up 14 points. Joey Barron got a fourth in the 100, Billy Rich was second in the javelin, and both the 440 and 880 relay team came in fourth.

LaSalle and Winnfield each earned two points. Delhi, Ferriday, and Winnsboro, other Northeast La. entries failed to score.

BOTH IN WEIGHTS

Gary Gubner May Try 2 Events In Olympic Trials

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sports of all sorts:

Gary Gubner, New York University's sophomore shot put sensation, still is tinkering with the idea of trying to make the 1964 U.S. Olympic team as both a weight thrower and a weight lifter.

In his first varsity track season, the 260-pounder has set 12 consecutive meet records — including a world indoor mark of 64-11¾ — and goes for No. 13 in a local collegiate meet Saturday. As a weight lifter, his best competitive performance to date was good enough to have won a third place medal in the '60 Olympics at Rome.

Jimmy Nichols, noted one-armed pro, again addressed a special meeting of the President's Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped at Washington this week. Jimmy's theme: "It's not what you lost that counts but what you have left."

A recent change in the baseball rules for the nation's high schools permits the use of white rubber bases instead of the traditional canvas stipulated by the pros. That "foot in the door" would have delighted old Bill Klem, famed umpire of an earlier day, who fought for years after his retirement by the National League to have the majors adopt his brand of rubber bases. Klem insisted they would reduce ankle injuries for both base-runners and fielders.

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness posts a warning for little leaguers and other youngsters playing baseball this spring: "Don't wear your regular eyeglasses or sunglasses on the field — Get the shatter-proof kind". Reports of serious eye injuries, caused by shattering glasses, already are coming in... big leaguers wear contacts or rugged, shatter-resistant specs.

Horses for courses: Doug Ford, fastest player in pro golf, has won the Indianapolis "500" Festival golf championship the only two times it has been played... Nine holes of the course, where the third annual affair will be held May 21-27, are inside and nine outside the famed Indy race track where the 500-mile auto race is held each Memorial Day.

Les Bingaman, Detroit Lions coaching assistant, has gone on a diet and is down to 300 pounds... Yep, that's 300... Less used to play guard for the Lions at 350 and up.

Whimsical Whitey Ford continues to keep the Yankees loose with his wit as well as his pitching. Hector Lopez, noted for his uncertain fielding, recently made a spectacular, sure-handed running catch to retire the side and came racing into the dugout with a wide smile on his face. Ford was quoted as saying: "At just what point, Hector, did you realize you had misjudged the ball?"

Jacky Cupit, pro golf's Rookie of the Year in '61 had a rugged time getting back on the beam this season. "I laid off for six weeks last November and December and I'll never do it again. I just haven't been tournament sharp."

Juan Manuel Fangio, five time world auto racing champ, comes out of retirement at Lime Rock, Conn., June 7 to drive in a race for small British sedans. One of his opponents was expected to be Stirling Moss until that noted Briton had his recent crackup... It was Moss who persuaded Fangio to appear at Lime Rock. Above for Saturday AMs may 12

Reds Earn 4th; Whip Pirates, 9-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Vada Pinson and Wally Post powered home runs Saturday night as the surging Cincinnati Reds clobbered the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-2, and moved into fourth place in the National League.

Pinson's 10th homer over the right center field wall came in the second after Don Blasingame had drawn a walk. The Reds added an insurance run in the third on Eddie Kasko's single and Frank Robinson's double before going on a hitting spree in the eighth.

Cincinnati batted around in the eighth, getting six runs and five hits, including homers by Post and Johnny Edwards.

Diomedes Olivo, the fourth Pirate pitcher to see action, ended the inning by retiring Jim O'Toole and Zimmer.

THE FISHING LICENSE

The Louisiana Wildlife Federation is expected to sponsor a bill in the Legislature again calling for the $1 universal fishing license.

This measure has been defeated before, but is scheduled for introduction when the Legislature convenes Monday.

At present, only those fishermen who use artificial bait are required to purchase a $1 fishing license. Proceeds from the sale of license go to the operation of the state game program.

The reason for a $1 universal fishing license as advocated by the federation is an objective view. Under the federal Dingell - Johnson Act, federal funds are allocated to the states on the basis of revenue submitted to the federal government from the sale of fishing licenses.

Since Louisiana requires that only the artifical lure fisherman must be licensed, the state loses thousands of dollars in federal funds that could be used to operate the state game program.

It is estimated that only one out of eight fishermen fish with artifical lures. If this is true, then we are getting only an eighth of the revenue that we could be entitled to.

Operating the state wildlife department is costly and funds are always needed. If the fishermen would support a $1 universal fishing license, then you can rest assured that the Legislature would adopt the bill.

Opposition to the bill has been based in the past on the "pore ole canepole fisherman."

Because of this, the bill has been modified to exempt canepole anglers who fish from the bank within the parish in which they live.

The theory behind this is that if a fisherman can afford to travel outside his parish to fish, or can afford to own or rent a boat, then he can afford to purchase a license for only a dollar.

This is not a tax. It's merely a means of increasing revenue to finance a better wildlife program. Certainly the sportsman should assume the responsibility of having a good program in Louisiana, since the future of fishing and hunting depends on how we the people manage our affairs.

You can rest assured that those people who oppose the universal license will let their representatives and senators know how they feel. If you favor it, speak up too.

FUTURE COVERAGE

Since the Legislature will open its 60 - day regular session Monday, we will be in Baton Rouge for the next two months.

During that time coverage of outdoor activities in Northeast Louisiana will continue in the Morning World and News Star.

Sports editor Paul Martin, with the assistance of staffer Howard Page, will compile and write the Friday fishing column, The Fisherman's Corner. So your weekend guide for fishing in this area will still be available.

In addition, we have arranged for four or five guest columnists during the next two months for the Sunday column. From Baton Rouge, we'll file an outdoor column every other week keeping you posted on wildlife legislation.

Our guests columnists will include the following:

John Blanchard, public relations director for International Paper Co. at Bastrop, who has written an interesting column on backwoods lakes in this area.

Nelson Cox, director of the Arkansas Fish & Game Commission, whose column will concern the future of the mallard duck. He is one of the best sources on mallards.

Kenneth E. Biglane, executive director of the Louisiana Stream Control Commission, whose subject will be pollution in the Ouachita River and other sources in the Monroe area. This will be a very timely column.

Joe L. Herring, chief education biologist of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, who will give you an inside picture of the commission's new education program on conservation in the state schools.

Jim Davis, fisheries biologist of the Monroe district, whose column will background the fisheries work in Bussey Lake at Bastrop. He too will give you an inside look at why Bussey has become the fishing rave of the area.

You can see that a lot of interesting reading is ahead. Don't miss a column.

THE FISHING CONTEST

The fishing season is in full swing now, although bass fishing has not been all that good. Bream have really been biting lately, and of course the white perch started several weeks ago.

But at any rate, fishing should hit its peak during the month of May with a big month in June, then taper off as the summer gets hotter.

In line with this thinking, the Ouachita Wildlife Unit will launch its annual fishing contest May 27. Prizes will be awarded to winners in each of the three divisions — bass, bream and spec.

You'll have to be a member of the wildlife club to compete, since it's really membership that the club is trying to boost. So join now before the contest starts.

Details of the contest are being worked out and will be announced later. There will be designated places for fishermen to weigh and record their catches for the contest.

And at Tallulah, a similiar contest is being sponsored by the Madison Parish Wildlife Unit. The Madison contest will run from May 15 to July 15.

First, second and third prizes will be given in three categories for bass, bream and white perch.

LITTLE MAN'S CORNER

It's fishing weather and the little men made news afield.

Raymond Doss, manager of the Lake Bruin State Park in Tensas Parish, reported late this week that the bream are really biting in Bruin. He says the bream are the largest ever.

White perch and bass aren't doing so well in Bruin, but fishing for catfish is good. Bream are biting crickets and worms and if you fly fish, use the black and white popping bugs.

If you've never paid a visit to the Bruin Park, then you've missed out. It's a real credit to Tensas.

Locally, Sid Simmons and Dr. Jim Henry had a pretty good day with the bass in Black Bayou. Bream are biting best there with C. L. Hinton, H. C. Mills and Riley Williams having good luck. Pete Boyd continues to catch white perch.

Two Northeast students, Cecil Kaufman and Rabbit Harris landed a string of 25 bream in Mosquito Lake in Catahoula Parish.

And here's a word to the wise. Charlie Miller, who lives at the Lafourche Canal bridge on highway 15 near Monroe, estimates that he and his family have killed seven or eight rattlesnakes so far this spring.

He killed one recently swimming in the canal. This one went 5½ feet with 12 rattles.

Lafourche Canal, known in some circles as the Passman River, produces more than just rattlers too. Mel Duncan of Monroe recently landed two tremendous catfish in the canal.

He caught a 41 - pound catfish on a trotline and a 53 - pound catfish on a swinging limb. Duncan has caught 10 catfish that weighed over 38 pounds since he took up the hobby.

And from Saline Lake, Mrs. Roy Collins says the water in the lake is about six inches above normal. She says the white perch are biting best with bream and bass fishing just fair.

Mrs. I. H. Garland caught 67 bluegills in Clear Lake. In Tensas, bass are hitting in Clark's Bayou. R. E. Fulton and H. E. Spruill landed a nice string.

And in East Carroll, Old River produced the limit of white perch for A. L. Hawkins, Epps. Earl Bankston, Forest, John Jones, Forest, Glen Parks, Darnell, Lee Welch, Darnell, Johnny White, Oak Grove, Mattie Morse and Hattie Johnston of Bastrop.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wells landed a beautiful string of white perch in Gassoway. Howard and Felix Brown got the limit.

Franklin Golfer Leads Tourney

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Billy Capps of Franklin, La., Friday took a one-stroke advantage in the quest for the $1,000 first prize in the Magic City Open Golf tournament with a two-under-par 69.

Capps shot 34-35 against par of 35-36 on the 6,760-yard Altadena Valley Golf Club course. Close behind him after the first round of the three-day, 54-hole event, were half a dozen contestants who were on the board at 70 or 71.

KIDS HARD DEALERS

Sharpest Traders Not All Managers

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not all the smart baseball traders are running major league ball clubs these days.

Now they're also swapping endorsed ball gloves out our way and it takes three used "Duke Sniders" or two "Willie Mays" to get one "Roger Maris" mitt. Roger, of course, is a local hero. Elsewhere, the odds may be different.

These kids tend to forget that a used "Duke Snider" still is a pretty fair proposition, what with the old Duke of the Dodgers still hitting home runs at the tag end of a career dating back to 1948 when Maris was just a schoolboy.

Snider opened the season in seventh place on the all - time home run list with 384 and he figures to get into the "400 club" easily before he's through. Maris hit 61 last year, okay, but that only got him up to 158 for a lifetime so for gosh sakes let's don't get dazzled.

We had it simple in the old days when the only mitts that came into the local sporting goods store were "Smokey Joe Woods" and we not only didn't know who he was but didn't care.

Today, the stores are loaded. Even rookies like "Tom Haller" of the Giants are on ball gloves. You still get "Bill Dickey" on a catcher's mitt, "Jackie Robinson" on a fielder's mitt, and "Joe DiMaggio" on some shoes. There's even a "Stan Lopata" catcher's mitt still around long after that journeyman National League catcher retired but of course Stan is marked down somewhat.

Tito Francona, Warren Spahn, Joe Cunningham, Ed Bailey, Norm Siebern, Vern Law, Whitey Ford, Yogi Berra, Dick Stuart, Al Dark, Jim Bunning, Jim Hegan, Rocky Colavito, Vada Pinson, Moose Skowron, Don Drysdale and Frank Bolling are among the scores represented in the shop windows, on the shelves and in the catalogs.

So also are the likes of Marv Breeding, Chuck Cottier, Charlie Lau and Bob Rodgers, who have yet to set the majors afire.

This passion for sporting goods endorsements may have started with the golf industry although the baseball bat people weren't far behind if they were behind at all.

In golf, all the old-time pros also were busy club-makers who turned out sets for their private customers. The mass producers went along with the endorsement practice when they get into high gear and among the names still active are "Bobby Jones" and "Walter Hagen."

Today, major manufacturers maintain a long list of "consultants"—one equipment maker has more than 200 ball players in that capacity—and, as publicity warrants, the consultant list is slated for mitt, mask, bat, or shoe endorsements.

It makes for good retailing, presumably. But a guy has to take along a "who's who in baseball" to be sure the price is right on the mitt that junior wants.

Shoot Is Set At Pine Hills For May 27

The sound of several shotgun blasts will be heard today at the Pine Hills Gun Club, as members get in practice rounds before the club shoot May 27.

Field captain, "Dick" Dickenhoust has urged a good turnout of members for today's practice rounds.

The club's annual shoot and party is slated to weeks from today at the club location at Bancroft's Camp on Chenier Lake.

According to club officials, a handicap committee will handicap shooters to give them a chance to win both the skeet and trap trophies hich will be awarded.

In addition to plans for the club Challenge Cup shoot, members of the board of directors are scheduled to meet Tuesday at at 7:30 p.m. to consider nominations of new board members.

Bert Williams shattered 91 out of 100 targets last week to turn in the highest trap score at the club. Ross Graves blasted 66 of 75 skeet targets to register the best total in the skeet division.

Other scores for the past week include:

Skeet scores: Bob Talton 61x75; Harry Frazer 48x50; Jim Steele, III 44x50; M. E. Kidd 41x50; C. G. Pearce, Jr. 36x50; H. B. Spurlock 39x50 and J. D. Taylor 36x50.

FOR 67-68 SEASON

Big 10 Coaches Set Grid Slates

CHICAGO (UPI) — Big Ten football coaches make their first attempt to prepare 1967-68 schedules this week, but even if they're successful, the effort might not stand up.

The coaches will be at bat prematurely in another round of the conference shell game over schedule policy which began five years ago.

Thus the coaches will convene Thursday in the opening session of the conference spring meeting at Purdue and try to draw up schedules which will give each team seven conference games, three of them at home.

But they won't be sure until Friday that that's the format the faculty representatives want hem to follow.

Of course, they'll be working on an educated guess that the seven game program will be approved, but all of their efforts could be upset by later faculty action.

The puzzle began in 1957 when the faculty approved a rule establishing a progression of conference games eventually requiring a complete round robin schedule of nine league games for each team.

Meanwhile, en route to the round robin, the teams would have played eight conference games in 1967-68.

However, in later actions the faculty temporarily upheld the progression, had this action overruled, then failed to reach an agreement on a proposal to stop the progression and require seven games annually.

Finally, there was agreement to freeze the progression at seven conference games, and the way was cleared for preparation of the schedules.

But because the legislation is a "substantive change" in policy, conference rules give the faculties of member schools the right to change their vote on the subject. Should one faculty oppose, a revote by the conference is necessary.

Guess What. Somebody objected, and still favors the progression to eight games in 1967-68 and the round robin in 1969 and thereafter.

So there'll be another vote by the faculty, which convenes Friday, on whether they should continue the freeze at seven games, or continue advancing toward the round robin.

"All the coaches can do is proceed on the expectation of what the vote will be," conference commissioner Bill Reed said. "If they're wrong, well, we might not get a schedule anyhow."

The football schedules were the main item on the agenda for the meeting. No action was likely on the conference proposal to the Athletic Association of Western universities to sign a new Rose Bowl contract, since the AAWU has not yet responded to the Big Ten proposal made last December.

FRED MORRIS 190 lb. tackle and ace linebacker from Holly Ridge has been chosen to play in the Louisiana High School Coaches All-Star game in Baton Rouge on August 2.

Sharpest Traders Not All Managers

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not all the smart baseball traders are running major league ball clubs these days.

Now they're also swapping endorsed ball gloves out our way and it takes three used "Duke Sniders" or two "Willie Mays" to get one "Roger Maris" mitt. Roger, of course, is a local hero. Elsewhere, the odds may be different.

These kids tend to forget that a used "Duke Snider" still is a pretty fair proposition, what with the old Duke of the Dodgers still hitting home runs at the tag end of a career dating back to 1948 when Maris was just a schoolboy.

Snider opened the season in seventh place on the all - time home run list with 384 and he figures to get into the "400 club" easily before he's through. Maris hit 61 last year, okay, but that only got him up to 158 for a lifetime so for gosh sakes let's don't get dazzled.

We had it simple in the old days when the only mitts that came into the local sporting goods store were "Smokey Joe Woods" and we not only didn't know who he was but didn't care.

Today, the stores are loaded. Even rookies like "Tom Haller" of the Giants are on ball gloves. You still get "Bill Dickey" on a catcher's mitt, "Jackie Robinson" on a fielder's mitt, and "Joe DiMaggio" on some shoes. There's even a "Stan Lopata" catcher's mitt still around long after that journeyman National League catcher retired but of course Stan is marked down somewhat.

Tito Francona, Warren Spahn, Joe Cunningham, Ed Bailey, Norm Siebern, Vern Law, Whitey Ford, Yogi Berra, Dick Stuart, Al Dark, Jim Bunning, Jim Hegan, Rocky Colavito, Vada Pinson, Moose Skowron, Don Drysdale and Frank Bolling are among the scores represented in the shop windows, on the shelves and in the catalogs.

So also are the likes of Marv Breeding, Chuck Cottier, Charlie Lau and Bob Rodgers, who have yet to set the majors afire.

This passion for sporting goods endorsements may have started with the golf industry although the baseball bat people weren't far behind if they were behind at all.

In golf, all the old-time pros also were busy club-makers who turned out sets for their private customers. The mass producers went along with the endorsement practice when they get into high gear and among the names still active are "Bobby Jones" and "Walter Hagen."

Today, major manufacturers maintain a long list of "consultants"—one equipment maker has more than 200 ball players in that capacity—and, as publicity warrants, the consultant list is slated for mitt, mask, bat, or shoe endorsements.

It makes for good retailing, presumably. But a guy has to take along a "who's who in baseball" to be sure the price is right on the mitt that junior wants.

Shoot Is Set At Pine Hills For May 27

The sound of several shotgun blasts will be heard today at the Pine Hills Gun Club, as members get in practice rounds before the club shoot May 27.

Field captain, "Dick" Dickenhoust has urged a good turnout of members for today's practice rounds.

The club's annual shoot and party is slated to weeks from today at the club location at Bancroft's Camp on Chenier Lake.

According to club officials, a handicap committee will handicap shooters to give them a chance to win both the skeet and trap trophies hich will be awarded.

In addition to plans for the club Challenge Cup shoot, members of the board of directors are scheduled to meet Tuesday at at 7:30 p.m. to consider nominations of new board members.

Bert Williams shattered 91 out of 100 targets last week to turn in the highest trap score at the club. Ross Graves blasted 66 of 75 skeet targets to register the best total in the skeet division.

Other scores for the past week include:

Skeet scores: Bob Talton 61x75; Harry Frazer 48x50; Jim Steele, III 44x50; M. E. Kidd 41x50; C. G. Pearce, Jr. 36x50; H. B. Spurlock 39x50 and J. D. Taylor 36x50.

FOR 67-68 SEASON

Big 10 Coaches Set Grid Slates

CHICAGO (UPI) — Big Ten football coaches make their first attempt to prepare 1967-68 schedules this week, but even if they're successful, the effort might not stand up.

The coaches will be at bat prematurely in another round of the conference shell game over schedule policy which began five years ago.

Thus the coaches will convene Thursday in the opening session of the conference spring meeting at Purdue and try to draw up schedules which will give each team seven conference games, three of them at home.

But they won't be sure until Friday that that's the format the faculty representatives want hem to follow.

Of course, they'll be working on an educated guess that the seven game program will be approved, but all of their efforts could be upset by later faculty action.

The puzzle began in 1957 when the faculty approved a rule establishing a progression of conference games eventually requiring a complete round robin schedule of nine league games for each team.

Meanwhile, en route to the round robin, the teams would have played eight conference games in 1967-68.

However, in later actions the faculty temporarily upheld the progression, had this action overruled, then failed to reach an agreement on a proposal to stop the progression and require seven games annually.

Finally, there was agreement to freeze the progression at seven conference games, and the way was cleared for preparation of the schedules.

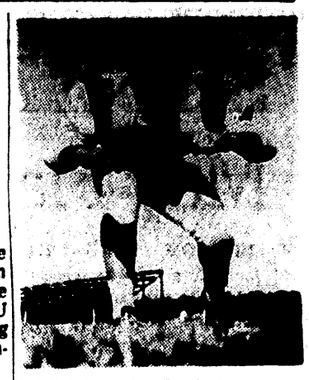
But because the legislation is a "substantive change" in policy, conference rules give the faculties of member schools the right to change their vote on the subject. Should one faculty oppose, a revote by the conference is necessary.

Guess What. Somebody objected, and still favors the progression to eight games in 1967-68 and the round robin in 1969 and thereafter.

So there'll be another vote by the faculty, which convenes Friday, on whether they should continue the freeze at seven games, or continue advancing toward the round robin.

"All the coaches can do is proceed on the expectation of what the vote will be," conference commissioner Bill Reed said. "If they're wrong, well, we might not get a schedule anyhow."

The football schedules were the main item on the agenda for the meeting. No action was likely on the conference proposal to the Athletic Association of Western universities to sign a new Rose Bowl contract, since the AAWU has not yet responded to the Big Ten proposal made last December.



FRED MORRIS 190 lb. tackle and ace linebacker from Holly Ridge has been chosen to play in the Louisiana High School Coaches All-Star game in Baton Rouge on August 2.

SUPPORT IS SOUGHT

School Aid Fight May Flare Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fight for federal aid to schools, which blazed spectacularly on several fronts last year, has quited to a sort of guerrilla warfare that is beginning to show some prospects of success.

With little outward assistance from the administration and congressional leaders, a House subcommittee is rounding up support in hopes of fanning the sparks into a full-scale offensive in the next Congress.

Directing the low-keyed campaign is Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey, D-W. Va. The aim is to win the support of educators and the general public for a bill Bailey has introduced, and have them get their congressmen to vote for it.

The core of Bailey's bill is a proposal to channel federal funds directly to a state's educational agency for use solely as the state decides. He calls it "a states rights education bill" and sees it as the answer to opponents who say federal aid means federal control.

Should the money be used to aid parochial schools or pay teachers' salaries? Those questions, on which more than one federal school aid bill has foundered in the past, would be left to each state to decide under Bailey's bill.

The appeal of such an approach to some who have opposed previous bills was demonstrated last week when Rep. Dale Alford, D-Ark., an ardent segregationist, gave the bill a ringing endorsement.

The bill also has won the support of the heads of every state public school system, and through their Washington representative, Dr. Edgar Fuller, executive secretary of the council of chief state school officers, they are actively pushing it.

At a series of public hearings over the past few months Bailey has had school chiefs from Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Wyoming testify how badly the money is needed.

Another session will be held Tuesday with Michigan, Oregon and Tennessee being added to the list.

Ralph Bunche Not To Run For Senate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U.N. Undersecretary Ralph J. Bunche said Saturday he definitely would not consent to become a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Bunche, an American Negro, added in a statement, "This position is firm and irreversible."

There had been published reports that New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner suggested to President Kennedy the Democrats run Bunche against Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., next November.

On two previous occasions Bunche had stated that he had no political ambitions but had not specifically ruled out a senatorial race.

His statement was what he called a clarifying followup.

Bunch, whose province here is special political affairs, said no one in official position had indicated to him that he was being considered as a possible Democratic senatorial candidate.

"I have sought to avoid the position of seeming to consider something that has not been offered," he said.

"In view, however, of the many reports referring to me in the context of a candidacy I feel it advisable to make my position on this subject quite clear.

"Should it be that my name has been or is being discussed in responsible quarters for a position of such great importance and responsibility as U.S. senator, I would be deeply appreciative and would consider that in itself to be a very fine tribute.

"Nevertheless my position in such a case would be that I definitely would not consent to become a candidate. This position is firm and irreversible.

DEVELOP HOVERCRAFT

MOSCOW (UPI)—Tass reported Saturday the Soviet Union had developed a hovercraft capable of carrying 38 passengers in a spacious cabin. Such craft ride over land and water on a cushion of air. Tass said the 12-ton craft, 57 feet long and 21 feet wide, would be commissioned this summer.

Algerian Official, Others Slain By Terrorist Gunmen

By RODNEY ANGOVE

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — A regional official in Bone was assassinated by a Secret Army Organization commando Saturday and European gunmen in Algiers killed seven Moslem, including a woman.

The official, Raymond Vignal, about 35, was deputy to the regional governor, in charge of information. A killer waited for him on a street near his home as he returned for lunch. He was killed by pistol bullets at the wheel of his car, official sources said. He had received menacing letters from the secret army.

In Algiers, a Moslem woman was shot and her body was found partly burned.

Police reported the arrest of a 23-year-old gunman who had just wounded a Moslem in the head with pistol shots. He was run down and captured after the shooting in Bab el Oued, working-class Algiers suburb.

One of the victims of another shooting was a Moslem serving in the French police force.

As European terrorists picked off Moslems at random in Algiers, Moslem bands kidnaped four Europeans, killed one European who resisted, and wounded another, police informants said.

Among the kidnap victims were the director of a department store warehouse, and a 19-year-old European youth. In all cases, the Moslems drove up to them in cars or panel trucks.

As terror bore deeper into the patience of the Moslem community, an economic blow was landed by the Algiers administration of the French social security, family allowance and pension service.

The administration said it could no longer meet its regular payments because of "the disappearance of nearly all the resources, provoked by the economic and social crisis now going on throughout Algeria."

It said employers were making practically no payments as required by law.

The Moslems depend heavily on such payments because a great number have been terrorized and stay away from their jobs.

All Moslems employed in commerce and industry receive the same social benefits as any other employes in France, including payments for each child, partial reimbursement for medical care, pensions and social security payments.

Spanish Mine Strikers Get Church Support

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Spain's striking miners and industrial workers got a boost Saturday from an organ of the Roman Catholic Church and there were indications Gen. Francisco Franco may try to settle the walkouts by granting better wages.

Some 70,000 men—mostly coal miners in Asturias Province and workers in industrial areas around Bilboa in the Basque country of the north remained on strike in an unusual wave of labor trouble for Spain.

But there was no indication that the work stoppages were spreading, and some government sources expressed the hope the movement had reached its crest.

The Roman Catholic weekly magazine Eclesia, official publication of the Spanish Catholic Action, defended the workers' right to strike as a natural and Christian right.

Sources in Bilbao said Basque Catholic priests had been actively supporting the walkout of industrial workers from nearly a dozen important factories.

After a residence of several years in Hattiesburg, Mississippi, JOAN and DONALD CALDWELL have returned to Monroe and are living on Valencia street. Joan was welcomed home at a beautiful Spring coffee given by DOLL RANSOM, JOELLE JOHNSTON and JO ANN PIPES in the Ransom home. Guests were invited to call last Friday morning between the hours of ten and twelve.

Magnolias used with their own foliage decorated the entrance hall where the hostesses stood with their honoree to greet arrivals. Joan was wearing a white pique sheath with a corsage of red carnations.

Unusually lovely flowers were seen throughout the house. Pink peonies in a lavish arrangement decorated the living room. On the dining table, specimen roses in varying shades of pink filled a silver bowl, while the same blooms were used on the buffet. Those who alternated in pouring and serving were ALICE WADDILL, LUCILLE CARROLL, RUTH PIPES, VIRGINIA PIERCE, and DOT FULLER.

In the panelled den, a low bowl of pansies was placed on the coffee table. On the television and centering the refreshment table were masses of amaryllis. SUSAN WOODS, TOMMY SUE SARTOR, MOE CARTER, PAT SANDERS and ALICE BURFORD served in this room. Over one hundred ladies called during the appointed hours.

Here as houseguests of the CLARK BOYCES were DR. and MRS. ALBERT McQUOWN of Baton Rouge. They arrived last week end for an informal visit before beginning of the Medical Society's convention the first of this week. On Saturday night the Boyces entertained with a cocktail party at home honoring their visitors. The honoree wore for her party a sheath of gray and white organza. . . . The Boyce home on Buie drive was filled with spring flowers in lavish mass arrangements. In the living room were roses in varying shades of pink-to-red. The dining room was decorated with more roses and a pyramid of Louisiana iris. About forty guests called to meet the McQuowns.

The Paragon Ballroom has never looked lovelier than at noon Tuesday when it was scene of a luncheon and style show attended by members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Louisiana Medical Society and their guests. A red brick wall enclosed the circular dance floor, where white wrought iron furniture and a sundial placed in a bed of calladium leaves created the atmosphere of a Southern garden scene. Hibiscus blooms floated in the fountain placed beneath two large magnolia trees in the background.

At the head table, where BETTY SCHONLAU presided as toastmistress, centerpiece was a large tiered white china compote holding a pyramid of painted daisies, chrysanthemums, and Dutch iris. The same blooms were used with gladioli and carnations in arrangements which decorated the piano and individual tables.

Betty, wearing an orange suit with roller of matching straw, introduced MRS. GLENN SCOTT, JR., of Ponchatoula; and MRS. W. W. HUBBARD of Nashville, Tenn., special guests of the Auxiliary. . . . Entertainment of the day was a style show, narrated by BESS COURTMAN, with accompaniment at the piano by MARTHA SCOTT. Models showed dresses from their personal wardrobes, described in verse by CAROL RAPHAEL.

In keeping with the show theme of "First Ladies," Bess first called on Frances Scott, outgoing president of the Auxiliary, who was wearing a mauve pink eyelet, lined with silk organza. Her hat was of pressed flowers in shades of pink, blue, green, and violet.

Others at the head table included LOUISE PEEK of Baton Rouge in a costume of turquoise silk linen with matching chiffon; bodice underlaid with turquoise flowers on white chiffon; and PEGGY RIGGS of Shreveport, all in yellow, with yellow Milam straw and yellow orchid corsage. . . . LIBBY WILLIS of Alexandria chose a pink silk linen shirtwaist with hat of white silk organza trimmed in white patent.

A surprise feature of the show was the presentation of extra "first ladies," including KAY CURRIER of Placquemine as Jackie Kennedy; PAT BLANCHARD as Cleopatra; and JEAN DICKENHORST, a gold lame "Oscar" with a gift for Frances Scott.

With a blue silk linen sheath, DOROTHY FLAKE of Shreveport wore a shiny roller in the exact shade of blue. . . . JUDY WORTHEN's after-five dress with billowing skirt of white voile printed in black dots, was topped with a fitted black linen bodice. . . . A white silk organza sheath, embroidered with daisies in white, yellow, and black, was the choice of MIMI HENRY of Farmerville. . . . ANN DUGAS of Marion wore a cocktail dress of white Chantilly lace over beige with waist-hugging long torso and full skirt of white organza. . . . CORRE LYNN GARRETT of Bastrop modelled a theatre suit of aqua silk with matching lace overblouse, and dyed to match lace shoes. . . . Over a sheath of white Arnel, PAULINE SMITH wore a coat of blue and white cotton waffle pique, lined with white.

For more informal occasions, MARY LOU WINTERS of Columbia showed slim jim pants striped in aqua and beige with a sleeveless crop top, very full and buttoned down the side. . . . Deep gold undertones with multiple colors highlighted LAVERNE BODRON's capri pants, worn with a hooded jacket blouse and flats of matching material. . . . Bess herself was in "red, white, and blue, with hip-hung pockets and no waistline in view."

Door prizes, donated by local merchants, were won by RUTH COHENOUR of Shreveport; JOSEPHINE MOSS of Lake Charles, CHERIE LONG, MRS. J. T. BRIERRE of New Orleans, IRENE KEELING, JERRY McINTYRE of Homer, CLAIRE BROWN, EDITH CAUSEY of Columbia, and FLORENCE MOSELEY of Baton Rouge.

At Wednesday night's Turf Party, door prizes were awarded also: this time to race winners. Our out of towners were heard to remark that this was indeed a clever party. Decorations included a race track laid out in the young people's lounge, which was hung with pennants in racing colors. Supper was served in the main ballroom, where fresh flowers were used with figures of horses and horseshoes on each table. The club's famous roast beef and shrimp salad highlighted the menu.

Arriving guests received printed racing forms, listing five scheduled races by horses with wild names ridden by improbable jockeys. Track officials as given in the form included SAMPY SAMPOGNARO, JACKIE TOM JACKSON, ROY ARTY KELLY, and announcer STERO GEORGE ELLIS. Bookies were PERKY MARX, WILLIE COOKSTON, and HARRY THE HORSE HAMMONDS. Jockeys wore caps matching the colors of their wooden horses, and the racing form carried a notice that the jockey club was not responsible for broken bones or slipped discs obtained while mountng hobby horses. Winners of the five races and their "mounts" were HENSON COON on "Pretty EZy"; CHARLOTTE HAMILTON riding "Go-Go," defeated convention chairman MARY LEE MILAM on "Slip-a-Disc" Henry Hammonds won on "Hi Finger"; CHE CHE LILES, "Boozie"; and DR. DAN FOURRIER of Baton Rouge, "Speedy." Jockeys received door prizes donated by local merchants, while "owners" had temporary possession of a horseshoe of red carnations.

Our Mother's Day poem is by Edith G. Schay:

Was she called beautiful? I cannot say.
To me she seemed to tower like a hill,
To move like poplar leaves where light winds play,
To glow like red blooms on a window sill.
A flower reaches downward for its stock
Of sustenance; a tree is rooted deep;
A hill, however high, is ribbed with rock;
All Aprils rise from winter's stonelike sleep.

If you see beauty in a hill, rock-boned,
Or red verbenas dust can never dull,
Or poplar trees that bitter winds have honed,
Then she who gave me birth was beautiful.
I cannot say; I only know, at length,
How brave her blooming was, how deep her strength!

HOSTESSES, Mrs. Ben Johnston, Mrs. Richard H. Pipes, and Mrs. Clark Ransom, are pictured with Mrs. Donald Caldwell and Mrs. Ford Pipes, seated, at a coffee in the Ransom home to honor Mrs. Caldwell, who has just returned to Monroe with her husband, to establish a home after several years in Hattiesburg, Miss.

Cultura Club Installs At Old South Banquet

An Old South Banquet was held by the Cultura Book Club Tuesday evening, May 8 at Highland Park Country Club at which time officers for the 1962-63 year were installed. Members and guests were greeted on arrival by the hostesses, Mrs. Robroy Young and Mrs. Charles Welch.

Mrs. Kenneth Adams gave the invocation and following dinner the Ouachita Parish High School Ensemble, directed by Mrs. Jerry Thomas, presented several selections. Mrs. Walter Silmon, chairman of the style show, gave a report on expenses and profit of the annual event. A check, representing proceeds from the style show was presented to Mrs. L. E. Hayden III, teacher from the Cerebral Palsy School, and special guest for the evening. After accepting the check, as a gift from the club to the school, Mrs. Hayden expressed appreciation and thanks for gifts given the school during the past several years.

Mrs. Welch, outgoing president, installed the new officers, who included Mrs Henry Camp, president; Mrs. Gene Williams, vice-president; Mrs. Sue Beasley, secretary; Mrs. Conley Hogan, treasurer; Mrs. Thomas Mitchell, parliamentarian and historian and Mrs. Robroy Young, reporter. Each officer was compared to a musical instrument in a symphony and given a replica of the instrument as a symbol of the responsibilities of her office.

After a brief talk by the new president on plans for the new year the meeting adjourned with the Club Collect. Members present were Mrs. Kenneth Adams, Mrs. Bill Armstrong, Mrs. Sue Beasley, Mrs. Bob Branch, Mrs. Joe Carter, Mrs. Harold Crew, Mrs. Gene Hardin, Mrs. James Henderson, Mrs. Dale Hendricks, Mrs. Conley Hogan, Mrs. Harry Linder, Mrs. Donald Logan, Mrs. Thomas Mitchell, Mrs. Charles Oxford, Mrs. Lake Oxford, Mrs. Wood Sers, Mrs. Bud Shepard, Mrs. Walter Silmon, Mrs. Tommy Spurlock, Mrs. Charles Welch, Mrs. Ralph Whitlock, Mrs. Gene Williams, Mrs. Robroy Young.

MRS. CERRE BORN DIBOLL JR.

Joanna Lipp, Mr. Diboll Exchange Vows Saturday

The marriage of Miss Joanna Lipp to Cerre Born Diboll Jr. was solemnized Saturday, May 12 in the First Methodist Church at Winnsboro. The bride, who has resided in New Orleans for several years, is the daughter of Mrs. Marion Trousdale Lipp of Winnsboro and Mr. Lipp of Monroe and Washington D. C. Mr. Diboll is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cerre Born Diboll of New Orleans.

The Rev. Fred Schwendimann, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony at 5:30 p.m. in a setting of white gladioli, stock and emerald palms. Cathedral tapers illuminated the altar and windows of the sanctuary.

Mrs. C. L. Moore Jr. played appropriate organ music and accompanied Mrs. Cecil Rhodes of Shreveport, who sang 'Whither Thou Goest," and "The Lord's Prayer," at close of the service.

The bride, who entered the sanctuary on the arm of her father wore a traditional wedding gown of silk peau de soie in pale ivory shade. The bodice front and scoop neckline was lavishly embellished with reembroidered Alencon lace with seed pearls and cut crystals. The lace and pearl appliques continued in a panel on each side and across the bottom of the skirt, creating an apron effect. The taut bodice, princess style, fastened in back with self covered buttons and was finished with long sleeves ending in points over the hands. The skirt draped from the sides into a full bustled back and fell into a court train. Her short veil of silk illusion was held in place by a seed pearl crown, which was worn by the bride's sister, Mrs John Thomas Womble, at her wedding. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid.

BRIDAL PARTY

Mrs. Womble of Winnsboro, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Miss Martha Anna Lipp, a cousin, of Oak Grove, Mrs. Brown McLemore Jr., of Gilbert and Mrs. John Fletcher Leonard of New Orleans.

They wore identical frocks of lavender peau de soie. The short skirt featured controlled fullness and fitted bodices with tiny straps were topped with sheer sleeveless overblouses of matching shade. Tiny leaves formed their bandeaux headdresses, to which halo veils were attached. They wore matching lavender silk slippers and short white kid gloves. Mrs. Womble's bouquet was of pale pink sweetheart roses and other attendants carried nosegays of deep purple stephanotis.

Donald Wright Diboll of New Orleans, served as best man for his brother. Groomsmen-ushers included John Thomas Womble of Winnsboro; Frank C. Toye, Robert H. Kammer Jr., Elmo J. Fischer, Warren P. Whaley, Richard P. Colomes, and Charles E. LeCorgne, all of New Orleans.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony Mrs. Lipp was hostess at a reception in the church parlors, against a background of flower arrangements, greenery and lighted candles.

Mrs. Lipp received in a soft blue lace dress with matching jacket and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Diboll who assisted was wearing a lemon yellow embroidered silk organza frock with a corsage of beige cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Joe Wells Robertson, grandmother of the bride, also received in a rose colored lace dress with a corsage of white roses.

MISS CARRIE LYNN LAND

Miss Land Is Betrothed To David Ivan Carlson

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mason Land of Pocahontas, Miss., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Carrie Lynn, to David Ivan Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan F. Carlson of Monroe.

The wedding will be solemnized June 2 at 4 p.m. in Capitol Street Methodist Church Chapel, Jackson, Mississippi, with Rev. Roy C. Clark officiating.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Van M. Scott of Morgan City, Miss., and the late Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Land of Lodi, Miss. She graduated from Clinton high school where she was valedictorian of her class and attended Mississippi College for two years. She is presently a junior in the University of Mississippi School of Nursing at Jackson.

Mr. Carlson is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Carlson, Bressemer, Pa., and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Dorris of Providence, Ky.

He received his B.S. degree from Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., where he was a member of A.E.D., national premedical honor society. He is now a senior at the University of Mississippi School of Medicine and will receive his degree in medicine June 10.

BRIDAL PARTY

Mrs. Womble of Winnsboro, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Miss Martha Anna Lipp, a cousin, of Oak Grove, Mrs. Brown McLemore Jr., of Gilbert and Mrs. John Fletcher Leonard of New Orleans.

They wore identical frocks of lavender peau de soie. The short skirt featured controlled fullness and fitted bodices with tiny straps were topped with sheer sleeveless overblouses of matching shade. Tiny leaves formed their bandeaux headdresses, to which halo veils were attached. They wore matching lavender silk slippers and short white kid gloves. Mrs. Womble's bouquet was of pale pink sweetheart roses and other attendants carried nosegays of deep purple stephanotis.

Donald Wright Diboll of New Orleans, served as best man for his brother. Groomsmen-ushers included John Thomas Womble of Winnsboro; Frank C. Toye, Robert H. Kammer Jr., Elmo J. Fischer, Warren P. Whaley, Richard P. Colomes, and Charles E. LeCorgne, all of New Orleans.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony Mrs. Lipp was hostess at a reception in the church parlors, against a background of flower arrangements, greenery and lighted candles.

Mrs. Lipp received in a soft blue lace dress with matching jacket and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Diboll who assisted was wearing a lemon yellow embroidered silk organza frock with a corsage of beige cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Joe Wells Robertson, grandmother of the bride, also received in a rose colored lace dress with a corsage of white roses.

MISS CARRIE LYNN LAND

Miss Land Is Betrothed To David Ivan Carlson

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mason Land of Pocahontas, Miss., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Carrie Lynn, to David Ivan Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan F. Carlson of Monroe.

The wedding will be solemnized June 2 at 4 p.m. in Capitol Street Methodist Church Chapel, Jackson, Mississippi, with Rev. Roy C. Clark officiating.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Van M. Scott of Morgan City, Miss., and the late Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Land of Lodi, Miss. She graduated from Clinton high school where she was valedictorian of her class and attended Mississippi College for two years. She is presently a junior in the University of Mississippi School of Nursing at Jackson.

Mr. Carlson is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Carlson, Bressemer, Pa., and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Dorris of Providence, Ky.

He received his B.S. degree from Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., where he was a member of A.E.D., national premedical honor society. He is now a senior at the University of Mississippi School of Medicine and will receive his degree in medicine June 10.

Wedding Plans Are Completed

Plans have been completed by Miss Mary Nelson Moss of Waterproof and John T. Wilson III of Wichita Falls, Texas, for their wedding which will take place June 2. The ceremony will be performed in the Presbyterian Church at Waterproof at 5:30 p.m. with Rev. C. E. Pickens and Rev. John Bradshaw, officiating clergymen.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Moss Jr., of Waterproof and her fiance is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John T. Wilson of Wichita Falls.

Miss Moss, who will be given in marriage by her father, has chosen her cousin, Miss Anne Davis of Greenville, Miss., as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Carol Schuchs of Ferriday; Miss Lynda Yates of Jackson, Miss., Mrs. Fred Liebkemann III of New Orleans, all classmates of Miss Moss at Newcomb college in New Orleans; Miss Gail Wilson, Wichita Falls, Tex., sister of the future bridegroom and Miss Kay Fleming of Columbus, Miss.

Mr. Wilson has selected his twin brothers, Ben and Bill Wilson of Wichita Falls, as his best men. Groomsmen will be Larry Moss, brother of the bride-elect, of Waterproof; Richard Mackey and Robert Mackey, both of Tulsa, Okla., and John Murfee of Amory, Miss. The latter three are classmates of the prospective bridegroom at Tulane University school of Medicine.

Serving as ushers will be Edward Pennington of Ackerman, Miss., Robert Treuting of Pittsburg, Pa., Sam Barranco of Lake Wales, Fla., Evan Davis, cousin of the bride-to-be, Greenville, Miss., all of whom are students at Tulane University.

Miss Carolyn James of Waterproof will be pianist and will accompany the soloist, Miss Julia Gregory of Versailles, Ky.

MISS ELAINE BINFORD'S forthcoming marriage to David Reppond is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Everett Binford of Marion. Mr. Reppond is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Reppond, also of Marion. The couple will exchange wedding vows on May 27.

Swimwear Has More Coverage

The relaxed shape in swimwear, which was launched last year, is emphasized this year. Bloused bodices, soft shirring, drawstring waistlines provide a sportswear look, some influenced by tennis dresses, outstanding in lightweight knits and spandex. Tennis dress styles are important in crisp fabrics like Arnel sharkskin.

More coverage is the newest direction in swimwear, according to Women's Wear Daily. Necklines are on the rise; cutouts are at the back, sides or front, sometimes effecting a two-piece look. Backs are scooped out to the waist, and V-necklines plunge to new depths.

Two-piece swimsuits are slated to start the season with a big bang, not-too-brief styles with slightly lowered waistlines. Knits again are outstanding as well as crisp piques.

Swimwear Has More Coverage

The relaxed shape in swimwear, which was launched last year, is emphasized this year. Bloused bodices, soft shirring, drawstring waistlines provide a sportswear look, some influenced by tennis dresses, outstanding in lightweight knits and spandex. Tennis dress styles are important in crisp fabrics like Arnel sharkskin.

More coverage is the newest direction in swimwear, according to Women's Wear Daily. Necklines are on the rise; cutouts are at the back, sides or front, sometimes effecting a two-piece look. Backs are scooped out to the waist, and V-necklines plunge to new depths.

Two-piece swimsuits are slated to start the season with a big bang, not-too-brief styles with slightly lowered waistlines. Knits again are outstanding as well as crisp piques.

Oriental Theme Prevails At AOPI, Sigma Tau Gamma Annual Rose Ball

An Oriental atmosphere prevailed at the Hotel Frances roof Saturday night, May 5, when the Lamba Tau Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority in cooperation with Beta Nu Chapter of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity staged the annual Rose Ball, which was highlighted by a pagoda theme.

Members and guests entered the ballroom over a camel-back bridge fashioned after those near Peiping, China which cross the Lotus Lakes. The guest scroll was placed on a table decorated with spring flowers located near the bridge. Beyond the bridge, a "coolie," Bill Trice, and his ricksha provided an Eastern background for picture taking.

One corner of the ballroom was transformed into an Oriental rock garden featuring a tiered fountain with lotus blossoms floating in the water.

The bandstand was decorated with a white Chinese junk flying red sails on one side and the seals of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity and Alpha Omicron Pi sorority prominently displayed in the center. A white chinaberry tree, its bare branches adorned with tiny oriental umbrellas, completed the decorations in the center of the room.

Artificial cherry blossoms and lighted candles in crystal holders decorated the tables. The punch bowl placed on a table, covered with a red cloth was surrounded by cherry blossoms. Japanese lanterns and prisms suspended from the ceiling completed the setting.

COMMITTEE

Miss Carol Slakter of Monroe, was chairman of the decorations committee for the formal ball. She was assisted by Miss Ann Ellen Harter, president of Alpha Omicron Pi at Northeast Louisiana State College; Miss Murray Burfford, Miss Lee Ann Lewis, Miss Diane LaGrange, Miss Sarah Jordan and other members of the sorority together with members of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity.

Presidents of the two Greek organizations are Miss Ann Allen Harter of Lexington, Ky. and Tassos Chronopoulos of Athens, Greece.

Music for dancing was provided by the Capris from Pineville.

Feature of the evening was the traditional grand march with Dr. Beryl Franklin acting as master of ceremonies. Mr. Chronopoulos presented the "White Rose" of 1962, Miss Sonya Bowden, chosen for the honor by members of Sigma Tau Gamma to reign over the evening's festivities.

FAVORS

An added highlight of the intermission period was the presentation of favors, crystal pitchers with a pagoda and AOPi insignia to the fraternity activities and crystal goblets with Sigma Tau Gamma seal to AOPi actives.

Special guests for the evening were Mrs. Eleanore McCurdy, Shreveport, national advisor to the collegiate chapter of AOPi, and her husband, Dr. Robert McCurdy and Mrs. Lucie W. McCutcheon, collegiate district XI director of AOPi from Austin, Texas.

Faculty and alumnae present included Dr. and Mrs. George T. Walker, Miss Alma Lufcy, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Collins, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Hammond, Dr. and Mrs. Aaron Seamster, Mr. and Mrs. James O. CAR Convention Report Features Local Meeting

Reports from the 67th national convention of the Children of the American Revolution, held recently in Washington, D.C., highlighted the May 5 meeting for the Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society. Scene of the occasion was the home of Sally Breard on Pargoud Boulevard with Kay Adams and Susan Sperry as co-hostesses.

It was announced that the local society was rated best on radio and television coverage at the convention exhibit. Convention details were given by the eight members who attended with Mrs. Sherod McLean and Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Jr.

Penny Nichols, who conducted the meeting, called upon Sally Pierce for the invocation, Kay Adams to lead the Pledge of Allegiance, and Sally Breard to lead the Creed. A discussion was held on the program given recently for the Lions Club. Plans were also made to give another program May 22 to the North Monroe Lions Club. Arden Anders read a paper on Patriotic Education, and Alice Goorley gave a report on the conservation of wild flowers. Following the installation of the new officers by Mrs. Harry Lemert of Ft. Miro D.A.R., the meeting was closed with a benediction by Sally Pierce.

Present were Sally Breard, Lillian Shaw, Susan Sperry, Kathy McSherry, Kay Jones, Susan Alexander, Mrs. G. M. Marx, Mrs. Harry Lemert, Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Christine Moore, Martha Coker, Kaye Adams, Susan Johns, Arden Anders, Sally Pierce, Laura Griffith, Derylin Morris, Robert Goorley, Dick Goorley, Cynthia Leigh, Ann Edmondson, Sage Redding, Alice Goorley, Mrs. McLean, Penny Nichols, Ginny Nichols, Lou Lemert, Mimi Peat, Vee Marshall and Elaine Spencer.

Former Monroyan Is Wed

Miss Jane Dearing of Fresno, Calif., became the bride of Charles Bradley Kramer of Pebble Beach, Calif., formerly of Monroe on Friday, May 4 at 5 p.m. in the Carmel Mission Basilica at Carmel, Calif. White flowers and tall tapers decorated the historic church.

William Helm of Fresno, cousin of the bride, escorted her to the altar. She wore a gown of white Chantilly lace embroidered in iridescent sequins, with short, full skirt and fitted torso, with which she wore a silk organdy stole appliqued in matching lace. A tiny cap of lilies of the valley held her short veil in place and she carred an arrangement of white orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Elizabeth Minturn Kimble, the bride's only attendant, wore a peacock blue silk brocade frock and carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

James Herbert Kramer of Pebble Beach, was best man for his brother and ushers were Frank Helm of Fresno; Henry Walrond of Bakersfield, cousins of the bride; John B. Cella II of Fresno; Dr. Paul Olson of Los Angeles and Charles Pettibone of Cleveland, Ohio.

After a reception at the Beach Club the couple departed for a wedding trip in the Hawaiian Islands. Upon their return they will be at home in Pebble Beach.

Mrs. Kramer is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Milton Matthews Dearing. A graduate of Stanford University, she was affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and has served as president of the Kappa Alumnae of Fresno and of the Unit of the Guide Dogs for the Blind Inc. She is a member of the University-Sequoia Sunnyside Club.

Mr. Kramer is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Felix Kramer of Monroe. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and is a member of Zeta Psi fraternity. Now retired, he is a former executive vice president of the Kales - Kramer Investment Company of Detroit, Mich., president and treasurer of the Industrial Fabricators Company of Los Angeles and a vice-president and treasurer of the American Stamping and Manufacturing Company of Los Angeles. He is affiliated with the Beach club in Pebble Beach and the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the local auxiliary.

Junkanoo Festival

How would you like to be the smartest stitch in your sewing circle? Well, read on, and if someone asks you what a "junkanoo" is — you'll know. It is an ancient Bahamian Mardi Gras type of festival full of exotic music and chants that rise to fever pitch. The parade is held on December 26th and repeated on New Year's Day with brilliance and pageantry. If you are lucky enough to be lounging on the pale sands of Nassau next Christmas week just turn over (you'll be well done anyway by that time) and give an eye to the festivities.

Former Monroyan Is Wed

Miss Jane Dearing of Fresno, Calif., became the bride of Charles Bradley Kramer of Pebble Beach, Calif., formerly of Monroe on Friday, May 4 at 5 p.m. in the Carmel Mission Basilica at Carmel, Calif. White flowers and tall tapers decorated the historic church.

William Helm of Fresno, cousin of the bride, escorted her to the altar. She wore a gown of white Chantilly lace embroidered in iridescent sequins, with short, full skirt and fitted torso, with which she wore a silk organdy stole appliqued in matching lace. A tiny cap of lilies of the valley held her short veil in place and she carred an arrangement of white orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Elizabeth Minturn Kimble, the bride's only attendant, wore a peacock blue silk brocade frock and carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

James Herbert Kramer of Pebble Beach, was best man for his brother and ushers were Frank Helm of Fresno; Henry Walrond of Bakersfield, cousins of the bride; John B. Cella II of Fresno, Dr. Paul Olson of Los Angeles and Charles Pettibone of Cleveland, Ohio.

After a reception at the Beach Club the couple departed for a wedding trip in the Hawaiian Islands. Upon their return they will be at home in Pebble Beach.

Mrs. Kramer is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Milton Matthews Dearing. A graduate of Stanford University, she was affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and has served as president of the Kappa Alumnae of Fresno and of the Unit of the Guide Dogs for the Blind Inc. She is a member of the University-Sequoia Sunnyside Club.

Mr. Kramer is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Felix Kramer of Monroe. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and is a member of Zeta Psi fraternity. Now retired, he is a former executive vice president of the Kales - Kramer Investment Company of Detroit, Mich., president and treasurer of the Industrial Fabricators Company of Los Angeles and a vice president and treasurer of the American Stamping and Manufacturing Company of Los Angeles. He is affiliated with the Beach club in Pebble Beach and the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

CAR Convention Report Features Local Meeting

Reports from the 67th national convention of the Children of the American Revolution, held recently in Washington, D.C., highlighted the May 5 meeting for the Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society. Scene of the occasion was the home of Sally Breard on Pargoud Boulevard with Kay Adams and Susan Sperry as co-hostesses.

It was announced that the local society was rated best on radio and television coverage at the convention exhibit. Convention details were given by the eight members who attended with Mrs. Sherod McLean and Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Jr.

Penny Nichols who conducted the meeting, called upon Sally Pierce for the invocation. Kay Adams to lead the Pledge of Allegiance, and Sally Breard to lead the Creed. A discussion was held on the program given recently for the Lions Club. Plans were also made to give another program May 22 to the North Monroe Lions Club. Arden Anders read a paper on Patriotic Education, and Alice Goorley gave a report on the conservation of wild flowers. Following the installation of the new officers by Mrs. Harry Lemert of Ft. Miro D.A.R., the meeting was closed with a benediction by Sally Pierce.

Present were Sally Breard, Lillian Shaw, Susan Sperry, Kathy McSperrin, Kay Jones, Susan Alexander, Mrs. G. M. Mayo, Mrs. Harry Lemert, Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Christine Moore, Martha Coker, Kaye Adams, Susan Johns, Arden Anders, Sally Pierce, Laura Gruttel, Dexter Morse, Robert Goorley, Dick Goorley, Cynthia Lergh, Ann Edmondson, Sage Redding, Alice Goorley, Mrs. McLean, Penny Nichols, Ginny Nichols, Lou Lemert, Mimi Peat, Vee Marshall and Elaine Spencer.

Mrs. Gossett was appointed patriotic instructor and Mrs. Griffis, Mrs. Olive Primm, Mrs. Maude Hampton and Mrs. Overby, were appointed color bearers.

Mrs. Cowan was presented a past district president pin by Mrs. Bagwell.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the local auxiliary.

Junkanoo Festival

How would you like to be the smartest stitch in your sewing circle? Well, read on, and if someone asks you what a "junkanoo" is — you'll know. It is an ancient Bahamian Mardi Gras type of festival full of exotic music and chants that rise to fever pitch. The parade is held on December 26th and repeated on New Year's Day with brilliance and pageantry. If you are lucky enough to be lounging on the pale sands of Nassau next Christmas week just turn over (you'll be well done anyway by that time) and give an eye to the festivities.

MRS. EDWIN LEO RITTER JR.

Miss Antoinette Gardner Is Bride Of Mr. Ritter

St. Joseph Catholic Church was scene of the ceremony at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 5, which united in marriage Miss Antoinette Florann Gardner and Edwin Leo Ritter Jr. Rev. M. G. Hannon officiated at the double ring ceremony and Rev. George Martinez translated the wedding blessing in English.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Gardner, 3012 Lee Ave., and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ritter Sr., 3203 Harrison St.

White gladioli in bronze baskets decorated the altar and similar arrangements were used on side altars. Mrs. H. H. Price, organist, accompanied Miss Lena Sciara, who sang "Ava Maria," and "On This Day," and rendered appropriate bridal music throughout the Mass.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an Elegante' design gown of Swiss embroidered sheer. The scuptured bodice was accented with a Sabrina neckline and shirred cap sleeves and the multi-tiered skirt was overlaid with a shepardess drape which extended into a bustle effect in back. The back of the skirt featured a waterfall cascade of five tiers on a chapel train. Her veil of illusion was attached to a crown of seed pearls and she carried a white lace fan, surmounted with stephanotis and a yellow-throated white orchid.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Evy Lee Ritter, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Stephanie Menuet, Miss Ann Mathieu, Miss Jolene Ticheli, Miss Mona Ticheli and flower girl was Miss Elizabeth Ticheli. They were dressed identically in frocks of lily yellow embroidered sheer, styled with bateau necklines, petite cap sleeves and bouffant skirts caught up in back with bows to accent the overlay of the skirt. They were matching eyelash veils attached to braid coronets, encrusted with pearls.

James C. Ritter attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Tommy Gardner, brother of the bride; Gary Wall, Morris Bullock, Kenneth McDonald III and Frankie Jungina. Serving as ushers were Bruce Groom, Frank Ticheli, Raymond Sweet and Gary Futch. Gary Coates McDonald acted as ringbearer.

Mrs. Gardner chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of white pique with all over embroidery of blue and beige flowers. She wore beige accessories and a beige orchid corsage. Mrs. Ritter, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dusty rose linen dress trimmed with matching lace flowers, rose accessories and a rose orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

A reception was held at 11 a.m. in St. Joseph's Hall. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth over yellow and centered with an arrangement of yellow and white flowers. An anniversary candle graced the table where Mrs. K. F. McDonald Jr., sister of the bridegroom, presided at the guest book. Mrs. A. E. Embanato and Mrs. H. H. Alderman served the yellow and white wedding cake and presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Frank Jungina and Mrs. Raymond Sweet.

For a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast the bride was wearing a blue knitted summer suit, with white trim and white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 1808 Cole Avenue in Monroe.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Frank Tuminello, Mrs. Bob Moseley, Lisa and Nicky, Mrs. B. L. Moseley, Camden, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Merritt, Carol and Brad, Bastrop; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Russo, Camden; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Danna, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Scroggin and Renei, of El Dorado, Ark., Mrs. Joe Zabie, Helena, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Irby Gaudin, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Durocher, Franklin, La., Mr. and Mrs. K. F. McDonald Jr., Kenneth 3rd and Gary Coates of Mangham.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, parents of the bride, entertained at a dinner at high noon for the bridal party and out of town guests and friends.

New Prints Offer Color In Variety

It almost goes without saying that in a season of fashion where the emphasis is on a truly feminine look, pretty prints become an important part of the scene.

Truly picturesque prints give feeling to the prevailing feminine mood.

For spring, there's news in the dark - tones and smoky grounds that give an almost oriental mood and feeling to the colors they are used with. This is especially true in silks and in many chiffons.

Abstracts, in stylized handlings and modern - in - mood prints, are being shown in combinations of black and white.

In late day and evening wear particularly, the prettiest prints come into their own.

They add motion and femininity to chiffons, organzas and crepe. Silky - touch cottons too, take on gay printed matter.

Fashions says it in print with new, more individualized handlings. There are blooming florals — especially lovely in flowering peach and apricot tones. They are sparked with spring and leaf greens to give them more depth and perspective.

Backgrounds, for many of the signature prints from leading mills, are often shown on ivory and natural ground rather than the more classic whites.

In casual wear, prints are more apt to be bold abstracts . . . nautical signal flag ideas . . . stripings and others.

All in all, the young, fresh look of new fashions is expressed in print for the bright airy look of the season.

Pucci Shirts Grow Longer

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

International uniform among those who can afford it, is the silk shirt as made by Italy's Emilio Pucci. Besides their beautiful cut, their prints, usually designed by Pucci himself, are their big talking point.

Now the Marchese has come out with new versions of his silk shirt. They're much longer, thigh length, feature border prints with a Hindu look, and have optional sashes.

Their dashing convertible Italian collars and cuffed sleeves haven't changed. Nor have the mixtures of colors, such as lilac, pink and white for summer versions.

At an average price of $65 each, few women will buy the originals. But Pucci ideas always reach the mass market. So look for less expensive versions of the gay, longer shirt, in synthetics with the silk look, and bright, glowing American prints.

Kohlrabi

Know how to prepare kohlrabi —that delicious but neglected vegetable? Remove the leaves and pare the bulb-like part. Kohlrabi is usually sliced or diced before cooking.

Jr. Girls Unit Plans Mother's Day Observance

Members of the Junior Girls Unit of Rodney J. Hobbs Auxiliary 1309 completed plans to honor their mothers on Sunday, May 13 when they met Saturday, May 5 in the Post Home. Miss Rita Simmons, president, conducted the meeting.

The program was presented by Jane Gauthier who gave a talk on Memorial Day, which will be celebrated May 30. Ann Tyler discussed "Why we celebrate Mother's Day."

After the meeting the members made wreaths of Buddy Poppies, which will be placed on graves of deceased veterans on Memorial Day.

The Advisory Council of Rodney J. Hobbs Ladies Auxiliary 1309 attended the meeting.

Patios Add Comfort

An outdoor patio, that Shangri-La beyond the threshold, is the perfect place for outdoor summertime entertainment. Whether you're grilling hamburgers for the family, entertaining friends or just lazing away the hours—you want the setting to be perfect in both charm and comfort. More and more housewives are discovering that their flooring material adds much to the setting. Pattern, texture and color all are possible to achieve with the many-hued, durable ceramic tile now available for patio floors.

Embry-Gilliam Vows Read In Home Ceremony

Miss Sammie Jo Gilliam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Gilliam of Baskin, became the bride of Albert Lee Embry Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Embry of Monroe, on April 27.

Rev. Paul Mixon, pastor of the Baskin Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Rosetta Duchesne at Baskin.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Miss Valda Gilliam, served as maid of honor and best man for Mr. Embry was Buddy McDaniel.

Jr. Girls Unit Plans Mother's Day Observance

Members of the Junior Girls Unit of Rodney J. Hobbs Auxiliary 1809 completed plans to honor their mothers on Sunday, May 13 when they met Saturday, May 5 in the Post Home. Miss Rita Simmons, president, conducted the meeting.

The program was presented by Jane Gauthier who gave a talk on Memorial Day, which will be celebrated May 30. Ann Tyler discussed "Why we celebrate Mother's Day."

After the meeting the members made wreaths of Buddy Poppies, which will be placed on graves of deceased veterans on Memorial Day.

The Advisory Council of Rodney J. Hobbs Ladies Auxiliary 1809 attended the meeting.

Patios Add Comfort

An outdoor patio, that Shangri-La beyond the threshold, is the perfect place for outdoor summertime entertainment. Whether you're grilling hamburgers for the family, entertaining friends or just lazing away the hours—you want the setting to be perfect in both charm and comfort. More and more housewives are discovering that their flooring material adds much to the setting. Pattern, texture and color all are possible to achieve with the many-hued, durable ceramic tile now available for patio floors.

MISS LAURA ESTELA DE LOS SANTOS

Mr. Carlisle To Claim Bride In Monterrey

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Laura Estela de los Santos to Edwin Alonzo Carlisle of Pioneer, is made today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Refugio de los Santos of Monterrey, Mexico. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwin Carlisle of Pioneer.

The wedding will be solemnized in the Union Church of Monterrey on May 27.

Miss de los Santos, a graduate of Ing. Miguel F. Martinez College of Monterrey, is a teacher in the Simon de la Garza Malo School.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and Tau Beta Pi honor societies. He is now doing graduate work in chemical engineering at the University of Oklahoma, Norman.

Paradise Relish

This relish is especially good with chicken or turkey and it makes a delightful glaze for ham. It requires two cups of sugar, one-half cup lemon juice, one-half teaspoon salt, five to six bananas. Combine sugar, lemon juice and salt in saucepan and boil for five minutes. Peel bananas and slice into sugar syrup, stirring constantly until mixture boils again. Reduce heat to just boiling. Cook until mixture thickens (15 to 20 minutes) stirring occasionally. Refrigerate. Makes 2 cups.

Blue With White, Red Is Classic Color Scheme

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: Will you suggest a color to paint a low wooden credenza and console table to go in my foyer? The area is quite dark and is painted soft blue, as are the rooms it connects. Wood pieces are mahogany with some pieces in red maple. What colors should I use the blues and mahogany?

A: Blue with white and red is a classic, eternally fresh color scheme. Why not paint the crendenza a bright, true blue with low table in cherry red or white? Red will offset the tones or maple and mahogany woods. Accessories of this color would be a good idea throughout the rooms. Choose a print of white and dark blue for curtains, perhaps a chair. Rugs and other upholstered pieces might be in blues and white.

Q: My living and dining room are painted sandalwood and carpet is shell beige. Draperies are printed linen with scenic design in sepia, chartreuse and deep green on natural. Furniture is all traditional mahogany. I want a new Duncan Phyfe sofa in front of the window. What colors would you suggest for these?

A: Chairs in the deepest sepia brown of your draperies would have most impact, show to best advantage against the print. White or natural color fabric would be a good idea for your sofa, although pale sky blue or apricot would be more adventurous choices. If the sofa is white, use chartreuse, sky blue in accents, accessories.

Q: I would like to use braided rugs in my living - dining room. Should I have an oval or square one in the seating group area with smaller ones in other places? Would a neutral tweedy rug in the seating group combine with small braided ones?

A: Square shape will probably work better with sofa and chairs; the rectangular shape will also allow the circular rugs or ovals used elsewhere to assume greater importance. Choise of tweed or braided rug is personal, either would look well, although again, remember that a large rug in neutral color will make small rugs in rich colors look the richer by contrast.

Q: What color wallpaper and rug will make my living room look larger? Sofa and chair are brown; odd chair, aqua.

A: Any very light shade is helpful in creating impression of size in a room. White or a cool tint of aqua or green are better choices than warm colors which "advance." A slightly darker shade of the same or a blending color would be best choice for rug.

Monroe Activity In Civil War Topic Of Talk

Frank C. Breese Jr. was guest speaker for the Miro Book club when it met Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. R. L. Wood on Park Avenue.

Mrs. Neal McHenry introduced Mr. Breese, who spoke on the Civil War, with special emphasis on the activity in the Monroe vicinity during that period. Mr. Breese began research on the material approximately 12 years ago, upon learning of the omission of much of Ouachita Parish's activity from Louisiana's part in the Civil War. He hopes to complete his research for the Ouachita Parish Civil War Centennial in 1964.

Mr. Breese has been nominated, constituted and appointed committee member of the Ouachita Parish Civil War Centennial.

A copy of the original map by William Everard Marshall, civil engineer, year 1858 showing land owners at that time was displayed to the members. Copy of the map was made by W. I. Neel, June 2, 1930.

Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon by Mrs. Wood, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Atkinson. Those present were the guest, Mr. Breese and members, Mrs. A. V. Breard, Miss Catherine Livaudais, Mrs. J. T. Pugh, Mrs. B. L. Mulhern, Mrs. George Temple, Mrs. A. L. Peters, Mrs. J. W. Musselwhite, Mrs. Neal McHenry, Mrs. F. L. Smith, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. H. V. Fluker and Mrs. C. R. Tidwell.

Bananas Mixes

Mashed bananas incorporated into commercial mixes give a flavorful mellow flavor. To mash or whip bananas, slice them on a plate and mash with a fork, or use a rotary egg beater or electric mixer until smooth and creamy.

Twin Elegance

Twin elegance can be yours if you have a lavatory with two wash basins surrounded by a countertop surfaced with a durable material such as ceramic tile. Soap and cosmetic stains, dust and dirt all yield quickly when tile is wiped with a damp cloth. Tile is now available in more than 200 shades, plus a wide variety of sizes and patterns.

MISS BOBBIE ROGERS

Bobbie Rogers, Fiance Plan June Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rogers, 1606 South First, Monroe, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their niece, Miss Bobbie Rogers to Loyd Wayne Shaw Jr., of Tupelo, Mississippi. He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Shaw Sr., of Booneville, Mississippi.

The June wedding will be solemnized in the First United Pentecostal Church, Monroe, with Rev. L. W. Shaw Sr., officiating at the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. G. E. Chance.

Miss Rogers and her fiance are both graduates of the Tupelo Bible Institute, Tupelo, Miss. They plan to establish a home in Monroe following their marriage.

Furniture Units Move Outdoors

What used to be called "summer furniture," "outdoor furniture" or "porch" furniture loses its label of season or placement as rattan, wrought iron and rugged woods move from outdoors to indoors and vice versa with equal ease and beauty.

Today's so-called "summer furniture" rightly takes the nomer of "indoor-outdoor" or "casual" furniture as it graces patios, terraces, lanais or summer cottages as well as it adapts itself to family rooms, living areas, dinettes and dens.

The move of the Orient and Hawaii are brought to mind by the more sophisticated new pieces. But American fashion plus function are in evidence in pastic table tops, interesting combinations of wood with rattan, stainless steel or lacquered brass draw pulls.

Scandinavian countries and Italy have contributed to the form and size of much of this new "casual" furniture.

Slim and low lines, similar to much of our most modern indoor wood furniture have been adapted to the newest rattan and metal furniture to take the place of the curlyques of the past.

Marinate Fish

Professional cooks often like to marinate fish before it is fried in lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper.

Summer Sportswear Is Gay, Chic

Women's summer sportswear for 1962 keeps an overdue promise of visual pleasure for the male population and for women, the job of feeling and looking like a woman. Playwear is not only feminine and chic but fun—delightfully frou frou and gay even for the most casual use.

Curves are curvier with the hip hugging pant, the newest thing to reach a playwear tidal wave of popularity. And with the low slung pants comes the need for new designs in tops. Here too, fashion brings the female form back from obscurity with two versions for the bare midriff advocates — the very short cropped tops and the shirt which ties in front just under the bust. In addition there is the new extra long shirt which may actually be a leotard thereby precluding any possibility of the shirt riding up.

For the most casual activity, the knee knocker jean is a bright star in the fashion firmament and even shorts have evolved to a Jamaica or extra length. Nary a Bermuda to be seen and no wonder with the accent on femininity.

Ruffles are rampant in both short cropped tops and longer overblouses. Collars are a rarity. And in fabric styling, patterns and stripes hold the fashion limelight.

Colorwise, red, white and blue is everywhere. This may or may not mean flag colors for there are infinite variations from darkened tones of these colors to creamy light ones.

In fabric itself, denim is enjoying a booming renaissance, duck shows up in exciting new styling for boating devotees. And last but far from least is the revolution of the "sweatshirt," newly become a glamorous overblouse in wonderfully feminine colors and patterns.

MISS JOYE HINTON

June 23 Vows Planned By Area Couple

June 23 is the date chosen for their wedding by Miss Joyce Hinton and Howard Fellows Jr., both of Morgan City, whose forthcoming marriage is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hinton of Downsville. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fellows Sr., of Pineview, Georgia.

The ceremony will take place at 8 p.m. in the Mt. Ararat Baptist Church.

The bride - elect was graduated from Downsville High School and Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe. She is presently employed as physical education teacher at Berwick High School.

Mr. Fellows graduated from Abraham Baldwin Junior College at Tifton, Georgia. He is presently associated with an oil company in Morgan City.

Take-It-Easy Table Fashions Made At Home

With the arrival of the first warm days, start preparing some take-it-easy table fashions for informal summer meals.

You can make a variety of colorful place mats and napkins at practically no expense from cotton feed and flour bags. Dye heavy osnaburg bags (the type used as chicken feed containers) any color you like and cut rectangles approximately 12 inches wide by 18 inches long. Fringe the edges and you have attractive, machine-washable place mats. You might select a gay striped bag fabric in a co-ordinating color for napkins. The edges of the napkins can be fringed also.

Easy Dressing

The Roquefort cheese salad dressing often served in restaurants is made from mayonnaise and French dressing plus the cheese. Try this combination for a professional tasting dressing!

MISS SYBLE JEAN GILBERT

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Gilbert of Farmerville, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Syble Jean, to Melvin Silmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Silmon, also of Farmerville.

The wedding will be an event of June 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sardis Baptist church, west of Farmerville. The Rev. Patrick Bufkin will perform the double ring ceremony.

Miss Gilbert has chosen her sister, Mrs. Bobby R. Russell of Huttig, Ark., to serve as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Sharon Odom and Miss Sue Spears.

Craig Grant of Monroe, nephew of the future bridegroom, will serve as ringbearer and candlelighters will be Ronny and Michael Russell of Huttig, nephew of the bride-elect.

Serving Mr. Silmon as best man will be Vaughn Grant of Monroe, his brother-in-law. Groomsmen-ushers will be John Wayne Redden, Ernest Auger Jr. and Jerry Daniel.

Garden Study Club Works On Corsages

May meeting of the Garden Study Club was held Friday in the home of Mrs. W. G. Haynes Sr., in West Monroe.

Mrs. John Lewis, new president, conducted the business session, following which arrangements brought by the members were discussed and color slides made. A short workshop on corsage making was conducted by Mrs. Lewis.

In the late afternoon Mrs. Haynes served refreshments to Mrs. G. F. Becker, Mrs. Henson Coon Sr., Mrs. A. L. Dickerson, Mrs. Morris Harrison, Mrs. R. B. Henry, Mrs. C. T. Johnson, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. J. H. Scogin Jr., Mrs. J. F. Stone Sr. and Mrs. C. H. Tait.

JUNE 8 IS the date chosen for their wedding by Miss Linda Louise Toney and Allen Pierce Kelley, whose engagement is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Toney of Sterlington. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kelley of Strong, Arkansas.

ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Felicia Dian Turner to Lloyd Wayne Whittington, son of Mrs. Minace Whittington of Gilbert, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Turner of Andrews, Tex. The wedding will take place June 17 in the First Baptist Church of Andrews, Tex.

Fashion Wise Avoid Clutter In Costume

Fashion is more than buying beautiful clothes. It's knowing what to put with them to get a complete look.

A white coat, for instance, is a smashing idea. But it can be ruined by the wrong hat, the use of black for gloves, handbag and shoes. It wants a quiet hat, accessories in beige or taupe.

A delightfully glittery dress is news for summer evenings. But leave off those dangle earrings, the hairbows. Avoid plastic bags and shoes. Plain silk pumps are the ticket, discreet earrings, neat white gloves, a coiffure which needs no adornment.

MISS BOBBIE ROGERS

MISS JOYE HINTON

Bobbie Rogers, Fiance Plan June Wedding

Mr and Mrs Henry Rogers 1606 South First, Monroe, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their niece, Miss Bobbie Rogers to Loyd Wayne Shaw Jr of Tupelo, Mississippi. He is the son of Rev and Mrs L W Shaw Sr, of Booneville, Mississippi

The June wedding will be solemnized in the First United Pentecostal Church Monroe with Rev L W Shaw Sr officiating at the ceremony, assisted by the Rev G E Chance

Miss Rogers and her fiance are both graduates of the Tupelo Bible Institute, Tupelo, Miss They plan to establish a home in Monroe following their marriage

Furniture Units Move Outdoors

What used to be called "summer furniture" "outdoor furniture" or "porch" furniture loses its label of season or placement as rattan, wrought iron and rugged woods move from outdoors to indoors and vice versa with equal ease and beauty

Today's so-called "summer furniture" rightly takes the honor of "indoor-outdoor" or "casual" furniture as it graces patios, terraces, lanais or summer cottages as well as it adapts itself to family rooms, living areas, dinettes and dens.

The move of the Orient and Hawaii are brought to mind by the more sophisticated new pieces But American fashion plus function are in evidence in pastic table tops, interesting combinations of wood with rattan, stainless steel or lacquered brass draw pulls

Scandinavian countries and Italy have contributed to the form and size of much of this new "casual" furniture

Slim and low lines, similar to much of our most modern indoor wood furniture have been adapted to the newest rattan and metal furniture to take the place of the curlyques of the past

Summer Sportswear Is Gay, Chic

Women's summer sportswear for 1962 keeps an overdue promise of visual pleasure for the male population and for women, the job of feeling and looking like a woman Playwear is not only feminine and chic but fun delightfully frou frou and gay even for the most casual use

Curves are curvier with the hip hugging pant, the newest thing to reach a playwear tidal wave of popularity And with the low slung pants comes the need for new designs in tops Here too, fashion brings the female form back from obscurity with two versions for the bare midriff advocates – the very short cropped tops and the shirt which ties in front just under the bust In addition there is the new extra long shirt which may actually be a leotard thereby precluding any possibility of the shirt riding up

For the most casual activity the knee knocker jean is a bright star in the fashion firmament and even shorts have evolved to a Jamaica or extra length Nary a Bermuda to be seen and no wonder with the accent on femininity

Ruffles are rampant in both short cropped tops and longer overblouses Collars are a rarity And in fabric styling, patterns and stripes hold the fashion limelight

Colorwise, red, white and blue is everywhere This may or may not mean flag colors for there are infinite variations from darkened tones of these colors to creamy light ones

In fabric itself, denim is enjoying a booming renaissance, duck shows up in exciting new styling for boating devotees And last but far from least is the revolution of the "sweatshirt," newly become a glamorous overblouse in wonderfully feminine colors and patterns.

Marinate Fish

Professional cooks often like to marinate fish before it is fried in lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper.

June 23 Vows Planned By Area Couple

June 23 is the date chosen for their wedding by Miss Joyce Hinton and Howard Fellows Jr, both of Morgan City, whose forthcoming marriage is announced today by her parents, Mr and Mrs Walter Hinton of Downsville The future bridegroom is the son of Mr and Mrs. Howard Fellows Sr, of Pineview, Georgia

The ceremony will take place at 8 p m in the Mt Ararat Baptist Church

The bride elect was graduated from Downsville High School and Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe. She is presently employed as physical education teacher at Berwick High School.

Mr. Fellows graduated from Abraham Baldwin Junior College at Tifton, Georgia. He is presently associated with an oil company in Morgan City

Take-It-Easy Table Fashions Made At Home

With the arrival of the first warm days, start preparing some take-it-easy table fashions for informal summer meals

You can make a variety of colorful place mats and napkins at practically no expense from cotton feed and flour bags Dye heavy osnaburg bags (the type used as chicken feed containers) any color you like and cut rectangles approximately 12 inches wide by 18 inches long. Fringe the edges and you have attractive, machine-washable place mats You might select a gay striped bag fabric in a co-ordinating color for napkins. The edges of the napkins can be fringed also

Easy Dressing

The Roquefort cheese salad dressing often served in restaurants is made from mayonnaise and French dressing plus the cheese Try this combination for a professional tasting dressing!

MISS SYBLE JEAN GILBERT

Engagement Announced

Mr and Mrs Melvin A Gilbert of Farmerville, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Syble Jean, to Melvin Silmon, son of Mr and Mrs Clifford Silmon, also of Farmerville.

The wedding will be an event of June 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sardis Baptist church, west of Farmerville The Rev. Patrick Buffkin will perform the double ring ceremony

Miss Gilbert has chosen her sister, Mrs. Bobby R Russell of Huttig, Ark., to serve as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Sharon Odom and Miss Sue Spears

Craig Grant of Monroe, nephew of the future bridegroom, will serve as ringbearer and candlelighters will be Ronny and Michael Russell of Huttig, nephew of the bride-elect

Serving Mr Silmon as best man will be Vaughn Grant of Monroe, his brother-in-law Groomsmen-usher will be John Wayne Reed, Ernest Auger Jr and Jerry Daniel

Garden Study Club Works On Corsages

May meeting of the Garden Study Club was held Friday in the home of Mrs. W G Haynes Sr., in West Monroe

Mrs John Lewis new president, conducted the business session, following which arrangements brought by the members were discussed and color slides made A short workshop on corsage making was conducted by Mrs Lewis

In the late afternoon Mrs. Haynes served refreshments to Mrs. G F Becker, Mrs Henson Coon Sr., Mrs V L Dickerson, Mrs Morris Harrison, Mrs R B Henry, Mrs C T Johnson, Mrs Lewis Mrs J H Scogin Jr Mr J F Stone Sr and Mrs C H Teel

JUNE 8 IS the date chosen for their wedding by Miss Linda Louise Toney and Allen Pierce Kelley, whose engagement is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Toney of Sterlington. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kelley of Strong, Arkansas.

ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Felicia Dian Turner to Lloyd Wayne Whittington, son of Mrs. Minace Whittington of Gilbert, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Turner of Andrews, Tex. The wedding will take place June 17 in the First Baptist Church of Andrews, Tex.

Fashion Wise Avoid Clutter In Costume

Fashion is more than buying beautiful clothes. It's knowing what to put with them to get a complete look

A white coat, for instance, is a smashing idea But it can be ruined by the wrong hat, the use of black for gloves, handbag and shoes It wants a quiet hat, accessories in beige or taupe.

A delightfully glittery dress is news for summer evenings But leave off those dangle earrings, the hairbows Avoid plastic bags and shoes Plain silk pumps are the ticket, discreet earrings, neat white gloves, a coiffure which needs no adornment.

Light Brigade Is Going At Strong Pace

NEW YORK (UPI)—Remember the "Light Brigade" of dance band fame in the 1930's and 40's?

Well, it still is going strong, but with a more egghead kind of popular music—stereo for listening, not fox-trotting.

And therein lies a story of success, failure and then successs again for Enoch Light, the leader of the band.

Light, at 55, is the chief creator of Command Records, a subsidiary of Grand Award Records, Inc. It has five best-selling albums in circulation and also turns out music in a classical vein.

In the heyday of dance bands, the old Light Brigade was one of the top ten groups in the country. Light was known as the "ambassador of jazz" for his musical missionary work in Paris, and then toured the United States and made hit records, earning up to $2,500 a week.

But then the end of the dance band craze and a near-fatal automobile accident plunged Light into obscurity for a time. He went on the road selling "kiddie" records for $75 a week and plugging hit tunes. For ten years, he worked at his job, all the while studying the music business.

When he felt he was ready, in 1955, he found several backers and started Grand Awards Records in half of an office in midtown Manhattan. After building Grand Awards to one of the top labels, he sold out to ABC-Paramount in 1959, at a seven-figure price, but continued to manage the production of Command Records. Now his interest is turning to stereo and recording on film instead of tape.

His once relatively modest-size dance band is now a 65-member Light Brigade, which records popular music for listening, not dancing.

Light, a native of Canton, Ohio, led a dance band in high school and then went on to Ohio State University, the University of Pittsburgh, and finally Johns Hopkins University, where he won his degree at the age of 19. During his time in Baltimore, he led an orchestra called the Blue Jays, which was so successful he abandoned his plan to become a doctor and decided to stick to music.

As a child, he had studied violin and today he has one of the largest collections of violins in the country. He has continued his interest in classical music, along with popular tunes, and records considerable "long hair" material.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A great many 35mm camera fans take pictures guided by simple rules of focusing and exposure and are pleased with their results. If the subject is satisfactory, the exposure fairly accurate and the focus reasonably sharp, the effort is usually rated successful.

This average state of photographic well - being is not good enough, some experts have concluded. "The old standards of photographic quaiity no longer suffice for contemporary needs," they say. "This applies particularly to the sharpness of pictures."

NEW BOOK

And so we have a new book of photographic figures — numbers, digits, distances and f-stops in precise tables!

It's the "Official Depth-of-Field Tables for 35mm Cameras," compiled by the Amphoto editorial board with the assistance of an electronic data processing machine (Amphoto Publ., N. W., $12.50).

The authors charge that the variety of depth-of-field tables normally encountered are generally inadequate. Some are engraved on lenses and cameras, others are on data sheets supplied by lens and camera manufacturers. They vary greatly in consistency and reliability and many are hopelessly imprecise, we are told.

To remedy the situation, they organized a task force to investigate 29 lenses of different focal lengths at 23 apertures and at 14 different distance settings. These lenses for 35 mm cameras ranged from he extreme wide angle of 21 mm to 1,000 mm telephotos; the apertures from a wide-open f-.95 to a closed-down f-45 and the distance from one and a half feet to infinity.

EXPERTS

The experts soon decided that two sets of tables were needed. One set for the average amatuer photographer who projects his 35mm color slides for a living-room audience or whose biggest black-and-white enlargement is no bigger than 11 by 14 inches. A second, far more critical set of depth - of - field tables was planned for advanced amateur or professional photographers whose pictures may be enlarged to mural size or whose color pictures might be shown to large audiences or required for fine-screen engraving.

VIEWING DISTANCE

The experts also had to determine a more critical viewing distance and a measurable calculation for sharpness and unsharpness. To avoid confusion about "circles of confusion" we'll skip to the point where the optical expert on the team supplied the basic formulas. These were translated by a staff of computer processing experts into a doce to be fed into the electronic computer.

When the wheels stopped whirring, there were more than 37,-300 computations, each exact to the tenth of an inch, say the publishers. And these accurate figures comprise the two sets of depth-of-field tables—one for general use and one for critical work for each lens in the 35mm arsenal.

Even with these impressive and precise tables handsomely printed and impressively bound in a book, it is quite likely that 35 mm camera fans will continue to be guided by the good old simple rules of focusing. You might lose a figure (glamor) in the time it takes to find the figure (mathematical)!

RADIOACTIVE

New Type Clock Good 'Yardstick'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Radioactive "clocks" have given man a new sense of his own antiquity.

They have provided "a new sort of yardstick," says Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, "by which we can measure how fast and how far we have come in our ascent from the swamps and the caves of our remote ancestors."

Radioactive materials decay at known rates. By measuring the quantity left in once living matter, it is possible to fix the time when this matter ceased to absorb radioactive materials in the ordinary processes of life.

Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, said radioactive dating had enabled the British anthropologist, Prof. L. S. B. Leakey, to determine when certain ancestors of man lived, made tools and hunted game.

In the Olduvai gorge of Tanganyika, East Africa, Leakey found remains of an apelike creature which had "learned the fundamental art of making crude tools of flint."

Scientists using radioactive dating techniques established "that these early men hunted and lived and died over 600,000 years ago," Seaborg said.

More recently some other bones found by Leakey have been dated as being at least 1,750,000 years old. This comes close to doubling the previously estimated age of man's ancestors.

Only this spring, Leakey reported discovery in Kenya of another possible ancestor of modern human beings. This creature, "more manlike than apelike," was 14 million years old, according to the radioactive evidence.

"It is humbling," Seaborg said, "to recognize that our span of recorded history is only about one thousandth of the entire length of time that men, or manlike creatures, have walked on the face of the earth.

"Yet today we are getting ready to cross the void, taking our handful of tools with us, to explore yet other worlds in space."

Atomic methods are helping to expose faked paintings and to discover the natural causes of decay which threatened some of the greatest masterpieces of art.

They also have established the age of some of man's most mysterious works. The massive Stonehenge monuments in England were erected, it has now been determined, about 1,500 B.C.

The code of Hammurabi, the great law-giver of ancient Babylon, was carved on stone slabs nearly 3,700 years ago.

Curtain Call

By B. B. STRON

"Come Blow Your Horn," is currently in rehearsal at Strauss Playhouse for presentation within the next few weeks. Frances Yeldell has been added to the cast in the roll of "Aunt Gussie."

We think the Monroe Little Theatre is very fortunate indeed to be able to present "Come Blow Your Horn," while it is still running on Broadway. In fact an item in the New York Times revealed that they gave their 500th performance last week.

The group traveling to Jackson, Mississippi last week to see "Bye Bye Birdie," reported a wonderful time. Robert Evans joined the group after having appeared on a panel in Baton Rouge, and an old friend of the Monroe Little Theatre, who is now attending Millsaps College in Jackson, in the person of Jimmy Leverette, met the group and attended the performance with them.

PREPARATION

Mrs. Slade (Jane) Brown of Orange, Texas, tells us that their Little Theatre Group is preparing to do "Bye Bye Birdie" and they want to rent our costumes. The Beaumont Little Theatre has just done "Birdie."

Mary and Sidney Gill were in Shreveport for the weekend, and saw their presentation of "Send Me No Flowers," commenting that it was excellent.

Pat Peyton has just returned from attending the opera in Dallas.

The Annual Meeting of the Monroe Little Theatre was held Monday night at the Strauss Playhouse. The following new Board members were elected to a term of three years: Mrs. R. C. White, Jr., Mrs. Robert H. Evans, Miss Lallage Feazel, Mrs. Harold Woods, Jr., Henry Haas Jr.

They replace Robert H. Evans, Scherck Bogen, Mrs. C. C. Boardman, Mrs. Bernard Biedenharn and Mrs. J. Hunter Thatcher, who have just completed a three-year term.

PLAYS

Julius Cahn, summer theatre coordinator, announced the plays to be presented in conjunction with Northeast Louisiana State College as follows: "Inherit the Wind," "The Clown and His Circus," and "Anniversary Waltz."

Watch this column for the announcement of the opening date of "Come Blow Your Horn."

Stamp News

This is the time of the year when the birds are on the wing—and this is noticeable on postage stamps too.

Last week's column featured a new set of bird stamps from British Honduras. This week Ethiopia's birds are flying high—philatelically speaking.

The new set of six stamps just issued by Ethiopia is the first in that country's history and postal authorities hope to repeat the popularity of their recently issued first Sport and Olympic Winner stamps. The bird stamps are also Ethiopia's first printed by multicolor photagravure (by Courvoisier of Switzerland).

The 5 cent depicts a Hornbill, 15 cent Barbet, 30 cent Bataleur Eagle, 50 cent Barbet, and $1 Emerald Cuckoo. Each stamp also bears an oval portrait of King Haile Selassie.

Still on the "wing motif" comes a report via the World Wide Philatelic Agency that Western Germany has issued a new set of four multicolored stamps featuring butterflies. The new set inaugurates an annual series called "Youth Stamps." Each stamp will have a surtax for raising youth charity funds.

The 7 pfenning plus 3 p shows an "Appolo Butterfly." The 10 plus 3 p illustrates the "Mourning Cloak." The 20 p plus 10 p depicts a "Small Fox." The 40 p plus 20 p highlights a male "Tiger Swallowtail."

Also issued by West Germany is a new 20 Pfenning Red Commemorative stamp honoring the 2,000th anniversary of the city of Mainz. An early view of the town is the main design. Mainz today is the capital of the state of Rheinland — Pfalz. It is well known as a university city.

Reform Plan In Brazil In Rough Sailing

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) President Joao Goulart's constitutional reform project is running into rough waters. Critics view it as a route back to Brazil's strongman presidential system.

The system was scrapped last year in favor of parliamentary government during the crisis following the resignation of President Janos Quadros. The move was made in an effort to prevent Goulart, feared by conservatives as a leftist, from gaining full executive power.

Goulart's plan would give the Congress to be elected in October constituent powers. He said in a May Day speech that only a revised constitution could make possible sweeping social and economic reforms to help Brazil's impoverished millions.

He urged that presidential authority be revitalized, giving it necessary limits and defined responsibilities.

The storm that greeted the proposal has caused Prime Minister Tancredo Neves to begin beating the congressional bushes to see just how much actual support he can find for the plan.

A measure of the opposition is seen in the words of Guanabara State Deputy Aliomar Baleeiro of the National Democratic Union who called it a diabolical plan. He said Goulart wanted personal power—pure, simple and semi-dictatorial.

On the other hand, the Rio paper O Globo said it found nearly unanimous support for the plan, with certain limitations, among Social Democratic party congressmen in Brasilia. The Social Democratic party is the country's strongest party.

NEW BOOK

And so we have a new book of photographic figures — numbers, digits, distances and f-stops in precise tables!

It's the "Official Depth-of-Field Tables for 35mm Cameras," compiled by the Amphoto editorial board with the assistance of an electronic data processing machine (Amphoto Publ., N. W., $12.50).

The authors charge that the variety of depth-of-field tables normally encountered are generally inadequate. Some are engraved on lenses and cameras, others are on data sheets supplied by lens and camera manufacturers. They vary greatly in consistency and reliability and many are hopelessly imprecise, we are told.

To remedy the situation, they organized a task force to investigate 29 lenses of different focal lengths at 23 apertures and at 14 different distance settings. These lenses for 35 mm cameras ranged from he extreme wide angle of 21 mm to 1,000 mm telephotos; the apertures from a wide-open f-.95 to a closed-down f-45 and the distance from one and a half feet to infinity.

EXPERTS

The experts soon decided that two sets of tables were needed. One set for the average amatuer photographer who projects his 35mm color slides for a living-room audience or whose biggest black-and-white enlargement is no bigger than 11 by 14 inches. A second, far more critical set of depth - of - field tables was planned for advanced amateur or professional photographers whose pictures may be enlarged to mural size or whose color pictures might be shown to large audiences or required for fine-screen engraving.

VIEWING DISTANCE

The experts also had to determine a more critical viewing distance and a measurable calculation for sharpness and unsharpness. To avoid confusion about "circles of confusion" we'll skip to the point where the optical expert on the team supplied the basic formulas. These were translated by a staff of computer processing experts into a doce to be fed into the electronic computer.

When the wheels stopped whirring, there were more than 37,300 computations, each exact to the tenth of an inch, say the publishers. And these accurate figures comprise the two sets of depth-of-field tables—one for general use and one for critical work for each lens in the 35mm arsenal.

Even with these impressive and precise tables handsomely printed and impressively bound in a book, it is quite likely that 35 mm camera fans will continue to be guided by the good old simple rules of focusing. You might lose a figure (glamor) in the time it takes to find the figure (mathematical)!

RADIOACTIVE

New Type Clock Good 'Yardstick'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Radioactive "clocks" have given man a new sense of his own antiquity.

They have provided "a new sort of yardstick," says Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, "by which we can measure how fast and how far we have come in our ascent from the swamps and the caves of our remote ancestors."

Radioactive materials decay at known rates. By measuring the quantity left in once living matter, it is possible to fix the time when this matter ceased to absorb radioactive materials in the ordinary processes of life.

Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, said radioactive dating had enabled the British anthropologist, Prof. L. S. B. Leakey, to determine when certain ancestors of man lived, made tools and hunted game.

In the Olduvai gorge of Tanganyika, East Africa, Leakey found remains of an apelike creature which had "learned the fundamental art of making crude tools of flint."

Scientists using radioactive dating techniques established "that these early men hunted and lived and died over 600,000 years ago," Seaborg said.

More recently some other bones found by Leakey have been dated as being at least 1,750,000 years old. This comes close to doubling the previously estimated age of man's ancestors.

Only this spring, Leakey reported discovery in Kenya of another possible ancestor of modern human beings. This creature, "more manlike than apelike," was 14 million years old, according to the radioactive evidence.

"It is humbling," Seaborg said, "to recognize that our span of recorded history is only about one thousandth of the entire length of time that men, or manlike creatures, have walked on the face of the earth.

"Yet today we are getting ready to cross the void, taking our handful of tools with us, to explore yet other worlds in space."

Atomic methods are helping to expose faked paintings and to discover the natural causes of decay which threatened some of the greatest masterpieces of art.

They also have established the age of some of man's most mysterious works. The massive Stonehenge monuments in England were erected, it has now been determined, about 1,500 B.C.

The code of Hammurabi, the great law-giver of ancient Babylon, was carved on stone slabs nearly 3,700 years ago.

Curtain Call

By B. B. STRON

"Come Blow Your Horn," is currently in rehearsal at Strauss Playhouse for presentation within the next few weeks. Frances Yeldell has been added to the cast in the roll of "Aunt Gussie."

We think the Monroe Little Theatre is very fortunate indeed to be able to present "Come Blow Your Horn," while it is still running on Broadway. In fact an item in the New York Times revealed that they gave their 500th performance last week.

The group traveling to Jackson, Mississippi last week to see "Bye Bye Birdie," reported a wonderful time. Robert Evans joined the group after having appeared on a panel in Baton Rouge, and an old friend of the Monroe Little Theatre, who is now attending Millsaps College in Jackson, in the person of Jimmy Leverette, met the group and attended the performance with them.

PREPARATION

Mrs. Slade (Jane) Brown of Orange, Texas, tells us that their Little Theatre Group is preparing to do "Bye Bye Birdie" and they want to rent our costumes. The Beaumont Little Theatre has just done "Birdie."

Mary and Sidney Gill were in Shreveport for the weekend, and saw their presentation of "Send Me No Flowers," commenting that it was excellent.

Pat Peyton has just returned from attending the opera in Dallas.

The Annual Meeting of the Monroe Little Theatre was held Monday night at the Strauss Playhouse. The following new Board members were elected to a term of three years: Mrs. R. C. White, Jr., Mrs. Robert H. Evans, Miss Lallage Feazel, Mrs. Harold Woods, Jr., Henry Haas Jr.

They replace Robert H. Evans, Scherck Bogen, Mrs. C. C. Boardman, Mrs. Bernard Biedenharn and Mrs. J. Hunter Thatcher, who have just completed a three-year term.

PLAYS

Julius Cahn, summer theatre coordinator, announced the plays to be presented in conjunction with Northeast Louisiana State College as follows: "Inherit the Wind," "The Clown and His Circus," and "Anniversary Waltz."

Watch this column for the announcement of the opening date of "Come Blow Your Horn."

Stamp News

This is the time of the year when the birds are on the wing—and this is noticeable on postage stamps too.

Last week's column featured a new set of bird stamps from British Honduras. This week Ethiopia's birds are flying high—philatelically speaking.

The new set of six stamps just issued by Ethiopia is the first in that country's history and postal authorities hope to repeat the popularity of their recently issued first Sport and Olympic Winner stamps. The bird stamps are also Ethiopia's first printed by multicolor photagravure (by Courvoisier of Switzerland).

The 5 cent depicts a Hornbill, 15 cent Barbet, 30 cent Bataleur Eagle, 50 cent Barbet, and $1 Emerald Cuckoo. Each stamp also bears an oval portrait of King Haile Selassie.

Still on the "wing motif" comes a report via the World Wide Philatelic Agency that Western Germany has issued a new set of four multicolored stamps featuring butterflies. The new set inaugurates an annual series called "Youth Stamps." Each stamp will have a surtax for raising youth charity funds.

The 7 pfenning plus 3 p shows an "Appolo Butterfly." The 10 plus 3 p illustrates the "Mourning Cloak." The 20 p plus 10 p depicts a "Small Fox." The 40 p plus 20 p highlights a male "Tiger Swallowtail."

Also issued by West Germany is a new 20 Pfenning Red Commemorative stamp honoring the 2,000th anniversary of the city of Mainz. An early view of the town is the main design. Mainz today is the capital of the state of Rheinland — Pfalz. It is well known as a university city.

Reform Plan In Brazil In Rough Sailing

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) President Joao Goulart's constitutional reform project is running into rough waters. Critics view it as a route back to Brazil's strongman presidential system.

The system was scrapped last year in favor of parliamentary government during the crisis following the resignation of President Janos Quadros. The move was made in an effort to prevent Goulart, feared by conservatives as a leftist, from gaining full executive power.

Goulart's plan would give the Congress to be elected in October constituent powers. He said in a May Day speech that only a revised constitution could make possible sweeping social and economic reforms to help Brazil's impoverished millions.

He urged that presidential authority be revitalized, giving it necessary limits and defined responsibilities.

The storm that greeted the proposal has caused Prime Minister Tancredo Neves to begin beating the congressional bushes to see just how much actual support he can find for the plan.

A measure of the opposition is seen in the words of Guanabara State Deputy Aliomar Baleeiro of the National Democratic Union who called it a diabolical plan. He said Goulart wanted personal power—pure, simple and semi-dictatorial.

On the other hand, the Rio paper O Globo said it found nearly unanimous support for the plan, with certain limitations, among Social Democratic party congressmen in Brasilia. The Social Democratic party is the country's strongest party.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

New Idea Is Used In Arrangements

By MRS JOHN TOLAR

Dr. John Wright, horticulture professor from Louisiana Tech at Ruston, presented a very unusual flower arrangement T.V. and Garden Center show last week.

A new idea was presented, the use of two similar containers or twin containers in an arrangement carrying the theme and line through both containers. This is a new idea that will created interest, just something different from the usual thing, Dr. Wright explained.

Roses could well be the theme for this show since three out of four of the arrangements featured the lovely Queen Elizabeth rose. Maybe the thought of roses and Mother's Day happened to coincide so appropriately at this time. The Queen Elizabeth roses were grown by Mrs. M. L. Johnson, of Monroe.

DELICATE DOCK

Dr. Wright used a delicate roadside dock (light green into rose tints) for his line material in the first arrangement. The two interesting containers for this design were one tall light pink cylinder vase and a large light pink bowl. Both were of the same texture of ceramic. The dock line was placed high in the cylinder container. Followed by the pink roses, smaller ones at the top on into the larger open roses at the base of the design. For a filler he used the variegated or the Golden Honeysuckle. One long piece hung low and tied in the smaller arrangement made in the low bowl. This arrangement contained rose buds, one full open rose and the leaves and Golden Honeysuckle as a filler. A perfect picture for the large table before the window in the den or living room.

Next, two identical vases, pink square vertical types were used for a most unusual design using all Queen Elizabeth roses with their foliage. This was a vertical design — starting with the buds on long stems for the tallest placement in the tall upright vase, followed by the open roses into the full blown roses at the base of the design. The second vase was placed on its side by the upright placed container. In a needle cup holder Dr. Wright placed one large rose with its foliage on top of the lower overturned vase thus tying in the vertical line of the design.

The third "two container design" featured roses with iris buds and their foliage in a tall light pink Usabata container and a low round bowl similar in texture and color. The iris formed the line followed by the rose buds and the larger blossoms of the pink Queen Elizabeth roses with their foliage in the Usabata. A similar design, much smaller and lower was placed in the low round bowl, thus tying in the two containers to form one over-all design, such a clever way to use two similar containers without making "twin designs."

DIFFERENT

The last arrangement was entirely different in flower material — yet, the twin or two container idea still prevailed. Dr. Wright used the red (Johnsonia) amaryllis to form a massed vertical line in a very modern black compote container. The second container, similar to the first, yet much smaller was placed on its side resembling a wheel and set beside the larger container. Into this Dr. Wright placed two amaryllis with light green dock. For filler in the larger arrangement he used the golden privet hedge. This formed a very pleasing color combination, red and yellow complimentary colors. This proved very striking and modern in design.

Thanks to Dr. Wright for this lovely show and the clever use of two containers in a design. We always seek something new and different in our flower arranging. By the way, Dr. Wright will be our feature arranger on the morning T.V. show all this week at 7:45 a.m. Be sure to watch for him. You'll enjoy it, Monday through Friday.

Dr. Wright has just given me the date for the next flower show school (3) Sept. 27, 28, 29. So, mark this down and plan right now to attend. I also have a schedule on the peaches and posies show that we all look forward to each year at this time. The Lincoln Garden Council presents this wonderful show at the Student Center at Louisiana Tech, Ruston, June 21, 3:00 to 9:00. The Peach Festival chairman is Mrs. Clarence E. Faulk and the Flower Show chairman is Mrs. Wilbur McDonald.

This week be sure to watch for our next T.V. and Garden Center Show Wednesday noon which will be presented by members of the Jonesboro - Hodge Garden club. They will feature top awards arrangements from their Tenth Annual Flower Show. The theme of this show was "One's Self." This is sure to be a real treat, so be watching.

Garden Hints, If you have not already done so, be sure to prune spring flowering shrubs such as spirea, flowering almond, and quince. Divide your violets into single clumps and reset in a fertile spot. Spray Cape Jasmine, camellias and ligustrum to control white fly and scale. A good spray is an oil emulsion (malathion).

There are still a lot of seed that you can plant now such as sweet alyssum, periwinkle, moonflower, sunflower, portulaca, tithoma, marigolds, cosmos, zinnia, balsam,and African golden daisy.

Watch roses for leaf spot and dust when foliage is dry with sulphur. Cut bloom stalks from native iris, unless you are saving seed. Time now to plant bulbs, tubers, and rhyzomes, examples are: Lycoris (radiata, alba, squamegeria, aurea), iris (cristata, kaempferi, Louisiana, Stylosa), tuberoses, dahlias, hosta and day lilies.

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Small comfort to the homeowner stuck with the annual trim painting chores, but the day is not far off when gutters and shutters and the like won't need painting.

Chemical research has caught up with this old problem of home maintenance. In the not-too-distant future many of the materials in the average home will be maintenance free.

Sheldon Cady, architectural authority for Allied Chemical Company's Barrett Division, a leading producer of chemically based building materials, estimates that nearly one-third of materials used for building homes in the 1970's will be found in "test tubes."

Cady says the potentialities of plastics in building still are largely unexplored although plastics and chemically based materials already have contributed to advancements such as various types of wall, ceiling and flooring tiles; plastic roofing materials; foamed plastic for thermal insulation and for use as a lath base for plaster on masonry walls; sandwich building panels; cold water piping and vapor barriers.

New Mark

Cady noted that although plasticized vinyls have been widely used for many years, the unplasticized rigid vinyl market is just being developed.

"Gutters and shutters, for example, have been developed from rigid polyvinyl chloride," Cady said. "They're lightweight, nonflammable, won't support combustion. They can be made in a wide variety of colors, are unaffected by rain or ordinary weather stains, can be washed clean with a garden hose, and they never have to be painted."

Other potential basic building materials Cady envisions from continuing polyvinyl chloride development, are downspouts, piping, weatherstripping, ducts for heating and air conditioning, window slides and storm doors.

COMPREHENSIVE

ROME (AP) — Arrangements for the English language publication of the most comprehensive work on Christian saints to appear in more than 300 years has been announced by the Pope John XXIII Institute of the Pontifical Lateran University.

It said that the 12-volume encyclopedia, the "Bibliotheca Sanctorum," will be published in English by Hawthorn Books Inc. of New York, over a period of about 10 years, with the first volume appearing in 1963.

The institute was established for research into the lives of the saints, the first undertaking of such scope since the 17th Century. It is under supervision of the Most Rev. Msgr. Pietro Palazzini, secretary of the Vatican's Sacred Congregation of Rites and noted theologian. The first volume in Italian appeared in 1961.

Special Day For Mothers

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

This is one of our most special days, a day dedicated to the ones who are the greatest, mothers.

Kate Douglas Wiggin wrote the most beautiful sentence about mother which stands out as one of my favorites, so I want to repeat it. Quote, "Most of all the other beautiful things in life come by twos and threes, by dozens and hundreds, Plenty of roses, stars, sunsets, rainbows, brothers and sisters, aunts and cousins, but only one mother in the whole world." So Happy Mothers Day to all you mothers who read my column, may your day be a perfect one.

GARDENING

There are so many jobs to do in our garden in May. There is pruning, planting, mulching, fertilizing or just about anything you want to do, and if our garden is to be pretty during these next few months, we need to be busy. We surely need to put plenty of mulch in those flower beds. Although we are having plenty of rain now, this summer will probably be different and mulch will help to conserve the moisture, so will take less of our time watering. Also, mulch keeps down weeds and grasses, therefore, saves time.

Prune the wiegela as soon as the flowers fade. Rambler roses of the cluster type should be pruned after the flowers have faded. Cut the old canes back to the ground, leaving only the new ones.

If you have not planted your annuals do so now. If you sow seed of annuals in the bed when they come up thin them to distance recommended on the package so that the plants will have room to grow. If you do not want to sow the seed, your nurseryman will have the plants. The annuals which we call the hot weather annuals that are best to plant now are zinnia, balsam, portulaca, sweet alyssum, vinca, salvia, marigold, snow on the mountain and celosia.

Now is the time to fertilize trees and other plants in the the yard according to our horticulturists. In general the recommendations for applying fertilizer to trees is to measure the tree trunk one foot above the ground and then divide this figure in half to obtain the number of pounds of fertilizer. In other words a tree six inches in diameter would need three pounds of complete fertilizer. Our horticulturists also recommend placing the fertilizer in holes about four inches deep under the area covered by the tree limbs.

Lawns, too, can be fertilized now, so that spring rains will carry the plant food into the root zone.

DRESS REVUE

Congratulations to all the Home Demonstration Club members who entered the casual dress contest last week. Everyone of you was a winner, although not declared so by the judge, because you gained more information on construction which will give you a better looking dress the next time. So, a big thanks to each of you who entered.

The three top winners were: Adult, first place, Mrs. Danny Sullivan of McGuire Club; second place, Mrs. Charles Guready of Progressive Club, and Mrs. Floyd Kent taking third place. Mrs. Kent is from Thrifty Homemaker Club.

Winners in the little girls dresses 1-5 were: First, Julie Lovett; second, Kay Roberts; third; Jacquita Smith; Boys 1-5, first, Bobby Sharp, second, Fred Lowery; third, Andy Coon; girls 6-11, first, Debra Lynn Fowler, second, Peggy Williams; third, Becky White; Girls 12 and over, first, Linda Fletcher, second Margaret May, and third, Rose Mary White.

There were others who were responsible for the success of the show, the Awards Committee; Mrs. Cleburne White, chairman; Mrs. Don Wills, and Mrs. Clara Moore. Also, the decorating committee composed of Mrs. W. S. Gray, Mrs. E. W. Earle, Mrs. Pearl Bower, Mrs. Percy Neely, Mrs. W. A. Carr and Mrs. J. K. Mayo, did a superb job. A big thanks to the business firms who made the awards possible.

CLOTHING STAINS

The three classes of stains most often found on clothing and household linens are: greasy, nongreasy, and stains that are a combination of the two. Greasy stains including butter, car grease and salad oils on washable fabrics can sometimes be removed by normal laundering of fabrics. For non - greasy such as fruit, black coffee, catsup, chili sauce, sponge with or soak in cool water. A long soak may be needed. If the stain is still visible, run liquid detergent into the stained area then rinse thoroughly.

Combination stains include ice cream, chocolate, gravy, coffee with cream. To remove these stains, sponge with or soak in cool water first. Next rub detergent into the stain and rinse well with water. If a greasy spot remains sponge with a grease solvent such as carbon tetrachloride.

A THOUGHT

Happiness comes from determination, confidence, self reliance, effort, accomplishment, from being needed, from serving and giving.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board this week is Mrs. Otto Vokaty, Strongsville, Ohio, who makes this suggestion.

"For cotton dresses, I make shields from two thicknesses of the material. In this way, the dress can be worn quite a few times before it has to be laundered, just rinse out the shields and snap back in. This is especially good for short-sleeved dresses because by using the same material as the dress, the shields do not show as much as the ones you buy."

REINFORCE SEAMS

"Dear Eunice,

"Is there anyway to keep the seams from splitting in children's shorts and pants that are fitted rather tight?"

Mrs. D.P.

Dea r Mrs. D.P:

Any part of a garment that will get more than normal strain should be reinforced. This could apply to the crotch seams of shorts and pants, as well as the underarm seam of dresses. Always stitch this area twice on exactly the same stitching line. If it is a curved seam, you may have to clip the seam in several places to release the "pull."

It would also help if you would baste a piece of seam tape over the seam line and machine stitch over this when stitching your seams. This will be an extra reinforcement.

CREATE TRIMS

"Ready made clothes have such unusual trimmings to make them attractive, but where can we home sewers get this type of thing? I love your column, it's just like a letter from home."

Mrs. N.F.H.

Dear Mrs. N.F.H.;

Don't forget the drapery department for your trimmings. Many of the fringes and tassels found on summer clothes can be purchased there, and also brushed fringes, and various braids. This is your chance to be creative and original Be sure your trimmings are washable if you are using them on washable garments. It's a good idea to preshrink braids or tapes before using.

PILLBOX HATS

"Dear Eunice,

"Your darling pattern for the satin pillbox hat was the answer to my prayers. I just finished five of them for the bridesmaids in my daughter's wedding. The girls think they are adorable and so different they are certainly a "first" as far as bridal accessories go. Last but not least, they cost less than two dollars each."

Thanks for the letters from all of you who have already made the little hat. It isn't too late to get your pattern if you haven't sent for it already. Just send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and your request to this newspaper.

"Dear Eunice Farmer,

"I am making a dress that has a jacket pattern included but no pattern for the lining. Can you please explain how to cut a lining from a regular jacket pattern"

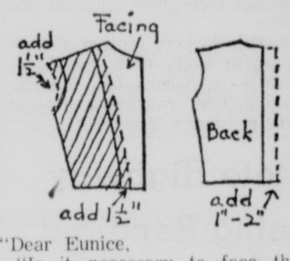
Mrs. E.L.

Dear Mrs. E.L.:

Any measurement adjustments you have made on your jacket, must be added to the lining. Don't fit the lining too tight or you will lose the shape of the jacket.

Mark the width of the facing on your jacket front PATTERN. Allow 1½ inches extra at the front edge, as illustrated. This will take care of the seam allowances.

Also allow 1½ inches extra at the top of the armhole, tapering to almost nothing at the underarm. This extra lining fabric will form a soft pleat at the shoulder to give ease for the bustline. For the back of the lining, cut pattern almost the same as your jacket except for a one to two to two-inch alowance for a pleat at the center back. The sleeve linings are cut exactly as your pattern. Cut the length of the lining to the hem marks on all pieces.



"Dear Eunice,

"Is it necessary to face the front seam for a Zipper"

Mrs. M.C.

Dear Mrs. M.C.:

By the word "facing" I imagine you mean seam tape. Yes, I would recommend applying seam tape to the front seam before inserting the Zipper. This is especially necessary for a side fastener because it will keep the curved seam from stretching. It will also assure ample seam allowance for the fastener.

We need your questions and suggestions. Please send them to Sew Simple and the will be answered as soon as possible in the column. All mail should be sent to Sew Simple in care of Monroe Morning World.

Many Hares Around Field Near Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—You don't have to wait for March to find mad hares around here.

They've got them all year round at Nutt's Corner, Belfast's hill-fringed airport. Its the airfield with the mostest and the fastest—150 of them at last count and top speed recorded 35 m.p.h.

Their favorite pasttime is running alongside planes as they land and take off. Thousands of passengers have seen them. Pilots and air crews know them. They are king size and tame. Airport staffs feed them when they come playing around the terminal building.

"The airport wouldn't be the same without them," said John Selway, airport commandant. "They are no danger or nuisance. We have grown to accept them as part of the surroundings."

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

New Idea Is Used In Arrangements

By MRS JOHN TOLAR

Dr. John Wright, horticulture professor from Louisiana Tech at Ruston, presented a very unusual flower arrangement T.V. and Garden Center show last week.

A new idea was presented, the use of two similar containers or twin containers in an arrangement carrying the theme and line through both containers. This is a new idea that will created interest, just something different from the usual thing, Dr. Wright explained.

Roses could well be the theme for this show since three out of four of the arrangements featured the lovely Queen Elizabeth rose. Maybe the thought of roses and Mother's Day happened to coincide so appropriately at this time. The Queen Elizabeth roses were grown by Mrs. M. L. Johnson, of Monroe.

DELICATE DOCK

Dr. Wright used a delicate roadside dock (light green into rose tints) for his line material in the first arrangement. The two interesting containers for this design were one tall light pink cylinder vase and a large light pink bowl. Both were of the same texture of ceramic. The dock line was placed high in the cylinder container. Followed by the pink roses, smaller ones at the top on into the larger open roses at the base of the design. For a filler he used the variegated or the Golden Honeysuckle. One long piece hung low and tied in the smaller arrangement made in the low bowl. This arrangement contained rose buds, one full open rose and the leaves and Golden Honeysuckle as a filler. A perfect picture for the large table before the window in the den or living room.

Next, two identical vases, pink square vertical types were used for a most unusual design using all Queen Elizabeth roses with their foliage. This was a vertical design — starting with the buds on long stems for the tallest placement in the tall upright vase, followed by the open roses into the full blown roses at the base of the design. The second vase was placed on its side by the upright placed container. In a needle cup holder Dr. Wright placed one large rose with its foliage on top of the lower overturned vase thus tying in the vertical line of the design.

The third "two container design" featured roses with iris buds and their foliage in a tall light pink Usabata container and a low round bowl similar in texture and color. The iris formed the line followed by the rose buds and the larger blossoms of the pink Queen Elizabeth roses with their foliage in the Usabata. A similar design, much smaller and lower was placed in the low round bowl, thus tying in the two containers to form one over-all design, such a clever way to use two similar containers without making "twin designs."

DIFFERENT

The last arrangement was entirely different in flower material — yet, the twin or two container idea still prevailed. Dr. Wright used the red (Johnsonia) amaryllis to form a massed vertical line in a very modern black compote container. The second container, similar to the first, yet much smaller was placed on its side resembling a wheel and set beside the larger container. Into this Dr. Wright placed two amaryllis with light green dock. For filler in the larger arrangement he used the golden privet hedge. This formed a very pleasing color combination, red and yellow complimentary colors. This proved very striking and modern in design.

Thanks to Dr. Wright for this lovely show and the clever use of two containers in a design. We always seek something new and different in our flower arranging. By the way, Dr. Wright will be our feature arranger on the morning T.V. show all this week at 7:45 a.m. Be sure to watch for him. You'll enjoy it, Monday through Friday.

Dr. Wright has just given me the date for the next flower show school (3) Sept. 27, 28, 29. So, mark this down and plan right now to attend. I also have a schedule on the peaches and posies show that we all look forward to each year at this time. The Lincoln Garden Council presents this wonderful show at the Student Center at Louisiana Tech, Ruston, June 21, 3:00 to 9:00. The Peach Festival chairman is Mrs. Clarence E. Faulk and the Flower Show chairman is Mrs. Wilbur McDonald.

This week be sure to watch for our next T.V. and Garden Center Show Wednesday noon which will be presented by members of the Jonesboro - Hodge Garden club. They will feature top awards arrangements from their Tenth Annual Flower Show. The theme of this show was "One's Self." This is sure to be a real treat, so be watching.

Garden Hints, If you have not already done so, be sure to prune spring flowering shrubs such as spirea, flowering almond, and quince. Divide your violets into single clumps and reset in a fertile spot. Spray Cape Jasmine, camellias and ligustrum to control white fly and scale. A good spray is an oil emulsion (malathion).

There are still a lot of seed that you can plant now such as sweet alyssum, periwinkle, moonflower, sunflower, portulaca, tithoma, marigolds, cosmos, zinnia, balsam,and African golden daisy.

Watch roses for leaf spot and dust when foliage is dry with sulphur. Cut bloom stalks from native iris, unless you are saving seed. Time now to plant bulbs, tubers, and rhyzomes, examples are: Lycoris (radiata, alba, squamegeria, aurea), iris (cristata, kaempferi, Louisiana, Stylosa), tuberoses, dahlias, hosta and day lilies.

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Small comfort to the homeowner stuck with the annual trim painting chores, but the day is not far off when gutters and shutters and the like won't need painting.

Chemical research has caught up with this old problem of home maintenance. In the not-too-distant future many of the materials in the average home will be maintenance free.

Sheldon Cady, architectural authority for Allied Chemical Company's Barrett Division, a leading producer of chemically based building materials, estimates that nearly one-third of materials used for building homes in the 1970's will be found in "test tubes."

Cady says the potentialities of plastics in building still are largely unexplored although plastics and chemically based materials already have contributed to advancements such as various types of wall, ceiling and flooring tiles; plastic roofing materials; foamed plastic for thermal insulation and for use as a lath base for plaster on masonry walls; sandwich building panels; cold water piping and vapor barriers.

New Mark

Cady noted that although plasticized vinyls have been widely used for many years, the unplasticized rigid vinyl market is just being developed.

"Gutters and shutters, for example, have been developed from rigid polyvinyl chloride," Cady said. "They're lightweight, nonflammable, won't support combustion. They can be made in a wide variety of colors, are unaffected by rain or ordinary weather stains, can be washed clean with a garden hose, and they never have to be painted."

Other potential basic building materials Cady envisions from continuing polyvinyl chloride development, are downspouts, piping, weatherstripping, ducts for heating and air conditioning, window slides and storm doors.

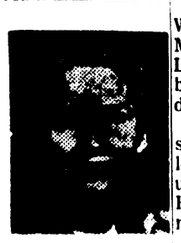
Special Day For Mothers



By AUDREY H. DAWSON

This is one of our most special days, a day dedicated to the ones who are the greatest, mothers.

Kate Douglas Wiggin wrote the most beautiful sentence about mother which stands out as one of my favorites, so I want to repeat it. Quote, "Most of all the other beautiful things in life come by twos and threes, by dozens and hundreds, Plenty of roses, stars, sunsets, rainbows, brothers and sisters, aunts and cousins, but only one mother in the whole world." So Happy Mothers Day to all you mothers who read my column, may your day be a perfect one.

GARDENING

There are so many jobs to do in our garden in May. There is pruning, planting, mulching, fertilizing or just about anything you want to do, and if our garden is to be pretty during these next few months, we need to be busy. We surely need to put plenty of mulch in those flower beds. Although we are having plenty of rain now, this summer will probably be different and mulch will help to conserve the moisture, so will take less of our time watering. Also, mulch keeps down weeds and grasses, therefore, saves time.

Prune the wiegela as soon as the flowers fade. Rambler roses of the cluster type should be pruned after the flowers have faded. Cut the old canes back to the ground, leaving only the new ones.

If you have not planted your annuals do so now. If you sow seed of annuals in the bed when they come up thin them to distance recommended on the package so that the plants will have room to grow. If you do not want to sow the seed, your nurseryman will have the plants. The annuals which we call the hot weather annuals that are best to plant now are zinnia, balsam, portulaca, sweet alyssum, vinca, salvia, marigold, snow on the mountain and celosia.

Now is the time to fertilize trees and other plants in the the yard according to our horticulturists. In general the recommendations for applying fertilizer to trees is to measure the tree trunk one foot above the ground and then divide this figure in half to obtain the number of pounds of fertilizer. In other words a tree six inches in diameter would need three pounds of complete fertilizer. Our horticulturists also recommend placing the fertilizer in holes about four inches deep under the area covered by the tree limbs

Lawns, too, can be fertilized now, so that spring rains will carry the plant food into the root zone.

DRESS REVUE

Congratulations to all the Home Demonstration Club members who entered the casual dress contest last week. Everyone of you was a winner, although not declared so by the judge, because you gained more information on construction which will give you a better looking dress the next time. So, a big thanks to each of you who entered.

The three top winners were: Adult, first place, Mrs. Danny Sullivan of McGuire Club; second place, Mrs. Charles Guready of Progressive Club, and Mrs. Floyd Kent taking third place. Mrs. Kent is from Thrifty Homemaker Club.

Winners in the little girls dresses 1-5 were: First, Julie Lovett; second, Kay Roberts; third; Jacquita Smith; Boys 1-5, first, Bobby Sharp, second, Fred Lowery; third, Andy Coon; girls 6-11, first, Debra Lynn Fowler, second, Peggy Williams; third, Becky White; Girls 12 and over, first, Linda Fletcher, second Margaret May, and third, Rose Mary White.

There were others who were responsible for the success of the show, the Awards Committee; Mrs. Cleburne White, chairman; Mrs. Don Wills, and Mrs. Clara Moore. Also, the decorating committee composed of Mrs. W. S. Gray, Mrs. E. W. Earle, Mrs. Pearl Bower, Mrs. Percy Neely, Mrs. W. A. Carr and Mrs. J. K. Mayo, did a superb job. A big thanks to the business firms who made the awards possible.

CLOTHING STAINS

The three classes of stains most often found on clothing and household linens are: greasy, non-greasy, and stains that are a combination of the two. Greasy stains including butter, car grease and salad oils on washable fabrics can sometimes be removed by normal laundering of fabrics. For non - greasy such as fruit, black coffee, catsup, chili sauce, sponge with or soak in cool water. A long soak may be needed. If the stain is still visible, run liquid detergent into the stained area then rinse thoroughly.

Combination stains include ice cream, chocolate, gravy, coffee with cream. To remove these stains, sponge with or soak in cool water first. Next rub detergent into the stain and rinse well with water. If a greasy spot remains sponge with a grease solvent such as carbon tetrachloride.

A THOUGHT

Happiness comes from determination, confidence, self reliance, effort, accomplishment, from being needed, from serving and giving

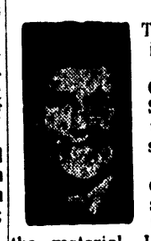
SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer



Winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board this week is Mrs. Otto Vokaty, Strongsville, Ohio, who makes this suggestion.

"For cotton dresses, I make shields from two thicknesses of the material. In this way, the dress can be worn quite a few times before it has to be laundered, just rinse out the shields and snap back in. This is especially good for short-sleeved dresses because by using the same material as the dress, the shields do not show as much as the ones you buy."

REINFORCE SEAMS

"Dear Eunice,

"Is there anyway to keep the seams from splitting in children's shorts and pants that are fitted rather tight?"

Mrs. D.P.

Dear Mrs. D.P.:

Any part of a garment that will get more than normal strain should be reinforced. This could apply to the crotch seams of shorts and pants, as well as the underarm seam of dresses. Always stitch this area twice on exactly the same stitching line. If it is a curved seam, you may have to clip the seam in several places to release the "pull."

It would also help if you would baste a piece of seam tape over the seam line and machine stitch over this when stitching your seams. This will be an extra reinforcement.

CREATE TRIMS

"Ready made clothes have such unusual trimmings to make them attractive, but where can we home sewers get this type of thing? I love your column, it's just like a letter from home."

Mrs. N.F.H.

Dear Mrs. N.F.H.:

Don't forget the drapery department for your trimmings. Many of the fringes and tassels found on summer clothes can be purchased there, and also brushed fringes, and various braids. This is your chance to be creative and original Be sure your trimmings are washable if you are using them on washable garments. It's a good idea to preshrink braids or tapes before using.

PILLBOX HATS

"Dear Eunice,

"Your darling pattern for the satin pillbox hat was the answer to my prayers. I just finished five of them for the bridesmaids in my daughter's wedding. The girls think they are adorable and so different they are certainly a "first" as far as bridal accessories go. Last but not least, they cost less than two dollars each."

Thanks for the letters from all of you who have already made the little hat. It isn't too late to get your pattern if you haven't sent for it already. Just send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and your request to this newspaper.

"Dear Eunice Farmer,
"I am making a dress that has a jacket pattern included but no pattern for the lining. Can you please explain how to cut a lining from a regular jacket pattern"

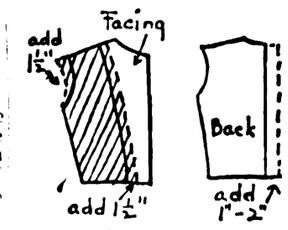
Mrs. E.L.

Dear Mrs. E.L.:

Any measurement adjustments you have made on your jacket, must be added to the lining. Don't fit the lining too tight or you will lose the shape of the jacket.

Mark the width of the facing on your jacket front PATTERN. Allow 1½ inches extra at the front edge, as illustrated. This will take care of the seam allowances.

Also allow 1½ inches extra at the top of the armhole, tapering to almost nothing at the underarm. This extra lining fabric will form a soft pleat at the shoulder to give ease for the bustline. For the back of the lining, cut pattern almost the same as your jacket except for a one to two to two-inch alowance for a pleat at the center back. The sleeve linings are cut exactly as your pattern. Cut the length of the lining to the hem marks on all pieces.



"Dear Eunice,

"Is it necessary to face the front seam for a Zipper"

Mrs. M.C.

Dear Mrs. M.C.:

By the word "facing" I imagine you mean seam tape. Yes, I would recommend applying seam tape to the front seam before inserting the Zipper. This is especially necessary for a side fastener because it will keep the curved seam from stretching. It will also assure ample seam allowance for the fastener.

We need your questions and suggestions. Please send them to Sew Simple and the will be answered as soon as possible in the column. All mail should be sent to Sew Simple in care of Monroe Morning World.

Many Hares Around Field Near Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—You don't have to wait for March to find mad hares around here.

They've got them all year round at Nutt's Corner, Belfast's hill-fringed airport. Its the airfield with the mostest and the fastest—150 of them at last count and top speed recorded 35 m.p.h.

Their favorite pastime is running alongside planes as they land and take off. Thousands of passengers have seen them. Pilots and air crews know them. They are king size and tame. Airport staffs feed them when they come playing around the terminal building.

"The airport wouldn't be the same without them," said John Selway, airport commandant. "They are no danger or nuisance. We have grown to accept them as part of the surroundings."

British Seek To Head Off Dock Strike

LONDON (AP) — The government mustered all its powers of persuasion Saturday night to head off a threated national dock strike that would plunge Britain into a state of emergency.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan cut short a trip to Scotland and flew back to London to take personal command.

Unions and employers, watched over by Labor Minister John Hare were locked in negotiations with the looming walkout only one day away.

About 30,000 troops stood by at key points ready to move into the nation's ports if the strike takes place as scheduled at midnight Sunday.

A national dock walkout would mean the first waterfront shutdown since the general strike of 1926.

Britain's 75,000 dock workers are demanding a pay increase of a shilling six pence—21 cents a day. The employers are offering just a shilling.

A breakdown in the talks — and a strike — would almost certainly force the government to ask Queen Elizabeth II to proclaim a state of national emergency.

That would be needed to use troops to unload vital foodstuffs and raw materials.

Throughout London's sprawling docks network, more than 90 ships were being hurriedly loaded or unloaded.

Employers arranged for longshoremen to work at expensive piece-rates right up to the midnight deadline.

The dispute with all its overtones of calamity, came at a time when Macmillan's government is reeling under a huge anti-Conservative vote in municipal elections throughout England and Wales.

British dockers receive a basic minimum wage of 9 pounds — $25.20 — a week, but average earnings with overtime and piece rates are much higher.

CHARLES W. FURNISH, 29, a machinist, sits in a Downey, Calif., police station where he was booked Saturday on suspicion of murder. Police said Furnish told them he suffocated the youngest of his four children, Star, 18 months old, with a plastic bag because she was "unplanned and unwanted." Furnish was quoted further: "My wife never wanted the child. She was a thorn in her side. The baby was just breaking up our marriage." (AP Wirephoto)

State Highway Being Repaired

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Highway 11 between New Orleans and Slidell was expected to remain closed to through traffic through Sunday pending repair of a 40-yard section of the roadway, which collapsed into a washout.

Police said nearby dredging apparently caused Friday's collapse about 100 yards this side of the Lake Pontchartrain bridge. Half the roadway caved in about six feet below the pavement level.

Traffic between New Orleans and Slidell was temporarily being routed over U. S. Highway 90.

Tax Plan Gains Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's proposal for tax withholding on dividends and interest has improved its position in the Senate Finance Committee, Democratic members said Saturday, but is still far from being out of the woods.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., told a reporter things are looking up for the plan in view of the Kennedy administration's vigorous push for it this past week.

The President answered what he said were misconceptions about the proposal at his news conference Wednesday.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon took up the cudgels for the proposal in his testimony Thursday and Friday, closing Senate committee hearings on the tax revision bill.

Douglas said he felt Dillon had refuted completely the points made against withholding.

However, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said in a separate interview that the provision probably is in worse shape on the floor than it is in committee.

McCarthy noted that all senators have received a flood of mail opposing the plan from savers and investors, and said that even some administration supporters have sent replies committing themselves against it.

The mail has been tapering off and many committee members have been wary about taking a public position on the issue, for fear of inspiring another deluge.

A check of the 17 members indicated a potential eight votes for withholding, all Democrats, with seven opposed including all six Republicans on the committee. That would leave two Democratic senators holding the deciding votes. The senators polled asked that their names not be used.

There could be many changes before the committee gets around to voting. It is only one of many controversial features in the tax revision bill, and no decisions are expected before June.

The withholding provision is the one which most affects individual taxpayers.

Opponents of the proposal had talked privately of offering an alternative to the plan in the committee, but Dillon must have got wind of this because he presented arguments against it.

Under the alternative, the taxpayer would be required to answer on his tax form a specific question as to whether or not he had any dividend and interest income.

A further provision would require information returns from savings institutions on all interest payments above $10 in a year, the same as is now in effect for dividends. The present floor on interest returns is $600.

Dillon argued that automatic data processing machines would show up 15 million delinquencies a year under such a procedure, and that it would take an army of agents to check on all these.

Band Members Are Honored At Winnsboro High

WINNSBORO (Special) — Two senior trombone players received special recognition at the Winnsboro High School spring concert.

Gary Ellerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Ellerman, was presented the John Philip Sousa Award as the outstanding member of the band by principal S. W. Williamson. Gary has been a member of the band for four years and is Captain of the Wildcat senior band this year.

James Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Ross, was presented the Scholastic Award by Jamie Cruse, president of the Band Parents club. James has been a member of the band for four years and has a four year scholastic average of 3.842. He is salutatorian of the 1962 graduating class.

In addition to the senior band, Glynn Gardner, Winnsboro High School band director also presented his junior and elementary bands at the concert.

British Seek To Head Off Dock Strike

LONDON (AP) — The government mustered all its powers of persuasion Saturday night to head off a threated national dock strike that would plunge Britain into a state of emergency.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan cut short a trip to Scotland and flew back to London to take personal command.

Unions and employers, watched over by Labor Minister John Hare were locked in negotiations with the looming walkout only one day away.

About 30,000 troops stood by at key points ready to move into the nation's ports if the strike takes place as scheduled at midnight Sunday.

A national dock walkout would mean the first waterfront shutdown since the general strike of 1926.

Britain's 75,000 dock workers are demanding a pay increase of a shilling six pence—21 cents a day. The employers are offering just a shilling.

A breakdown in the talks — and a strike — would almost certainly force the government to ask Queen Elizabeth II to proclaim a state of national emergency.

That would be needed to use troops to unload vital foodstuffs and raw materials.

Throughout London's sprawling docks network, more than 90 ships were being hurriedly loaded or unloaded.

Employers arranged for longshoremen to work at expensive piece-rates right up to the midnight deadline.

The dispute with all its overtones of calamity, came at a time when Macmillan's government is reeling under a huge anti-Conservative vote in municipal elections throughout England and Wales.

British dockers receive a basic minimum wage of 9 pounds — $25.20 — a week, but average earnings with overtime and piece rates are much higher.

CHARLES W. FURNISH, 29, a machinist, sits in a Downey, Calif., police station where he was booked Saturday on suspicion of murder. Police said Furnish told them he suffocated the youngest of his four children, Star, 18 months old, with a plastic bag because she was "unplanned and unwanted." Furnish was quoted further: "My wife never wanted the child. She was a thorn in her side. The baby was just breaking up our marriage." (AP Wirephoto)

State Highway Being Repaired

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Highway 11 between New Orleans and Slidell was expected to remain closed to through traffic through Sunday pending repair of a 40-yard section of the roadway, which collapsed into a washout.

Police said nearby dredging apparently caused Friday's collapse about 100 yards this side of the Lake Pontchartrain bridge. Half the roadway caved in about six feet below the pavement level.

Traffic between New Orleans and Slidell was temporarily being routed over U. S. Highway 90.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Mayor At Houma Toppled In Runoff

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Conrad Picou toppled Houma Mayor Leon Gary Saturday in the feature of Democratic primary runoffs in 37 Louisiana municipalities.

Picou, who led the first primary April 7, polled 4,217 votes to 3,482 for Gary, who was seeking his fifth four-year term. Picou is a Terrebonne Parish police juror.

Incumbents were also defeated in Sulphur, Kenner and Kaplan.

Here are mayoral results:

SULPHUR—J. Earl Koonce ousted Mayor Adias Saunier, 2,149-1,787.

WEST LAKE—Mayor Charles Carroll defeated Orise Rider, 770-463.

NEW LLANO—Mayor Jack Gregory defeated Adolph Davis, 67-58.

KAPLAN—Councilman J. D. Hanks Jr. defeated Mayor A. G. Latour, 1,342-1,153.

Mother Bitten, Son Sentenced

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Louis J. Hewlette, 43, a barber, was sentenced Saturday to six months in the Maryland House of Correction—the day before Mothers Day—on a charge of biting his mother.

His mother, Claudia Hipple, said he had bitten her on the right hand and wrist Friday night. Hewlette denied the assault charge, saying his mother was bitten by her dog.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. today at the Spring Hill Baptist Church near Kelly with the Rev. Filer Seal and Rev. Hoyt Gandy officiating. Interment will be in the Roberts Cemetery under the direction of Riser and Son Funeral Home.

Other survivors are two more sons, Herbert T. Childress and Robert F. Childress, both of Grayson; two daughters, Mrs. Ermer Eubanks and Mrs. Alice Duloney, both of Grayson; 19 grandchildren; 40 great-grandchildren; and three great - great - grandchildren.

Pallbearers are Gerald Childress, Melvin Childress, Carl Childress, Vercie Childress, Kenneth Childress, Jewel Ferguson, Jack Ferguson and Robert Ferguson.

Tax Plan Gains Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's proposal for tax withholding on dividends and interest has improved its position in the Senate Finance Committee, Democratic members said Saturday, but is still far from being out of the woods.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., told a reporter things are looking up for the plan in view of the Kennedy administration's vigorous push for it this past week.

The President answered what he said were misconceptions about the proposal at his news conference Wednesday.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon took up the cudgels for the proposal in his testimony Thursday and Friday, closing Senate committee hearings on the tax revision bill.

Douglas said he felt Dillon had refuted completely the points made against withholding.

However, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said in a separate interview that the provision probably is in worse shape on the floor than it is in committee.

McCarthy noted that all senators have received a flood of mail opposing the plan from savers and investors, and said that even some administration supporters have sent replies committing themselves against it.

The mail has been tapering off and many committee members have been wary about taking a public position on the issue, for fear of inspiring another deluge.

A check of the 17 members indicated a potential eight votes for withholding, all Democrats, with seven opposed including all six Republicans on the committee. That would leave two Democratic senators holding the deciding votes. The senators polled asked that their names not be used.

There could be many changes before the committee gets around to voting. It is only one of many controversial features in the tax revision bill, and no decisions are expected before June.

The withholding provision is the one which most affects individual taxpayers.

Opponents of the proposal had talked privately of offering an alternative to the plan in the committee, but Dillon must have got wind of this because he presented arguments against it.

Under the alternative, the taxpayer would be required to answer on his tax form a specific question as to whether or not he had any dividend and interest income.

A further provision would require information returns from savings institutions on all interest payments above $10 in a year, the same as is now in effect for dividends. The present floor on interest returns is $600.

Dillon argued that automatic data processing machines would show up 15 million delinquencies a year under such a procedure, and that it would take an army of agents to check on all these.

Nine Coast Guardsmen Are Honored

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Nine Coast Guardsmen, including three who helped rescue the pilot of a crashed U-2 jet plane, will receive certificates of merit and keys to the city at City Hall ceremonies Thursday.

The men selected for the honor, a Coast Guard spokesman said, were picked from men who participated in more than 300 assistance cases during this fiscal year.

Lt. Cmdr. J. W. Swanson, Lt. (j.g.) J G., Glasgow and Electronicsman 2-c F. T. Yoder, the crew of an amphibian aircraft, were credited with rescuing Air Force Capt. Charles Stratton when his U-2 crashed in a Southwest Mississippi swamp Jan. 2.

Chief Boatswain P. J. Descant skippered a patrol boat which led four persons in a 16-foot outboard motorboat to safety in heavy fog at the mouth of the Mississippi River on Feb. 25.

Chief Boatswain P. J D.escant on Jan. 29 was in charge of a patrol boat and rescued two men adrift in the Gulf of Mexico after their motor vessel, the Heedless, exploded and sank.

Lt. Robert Russell and Aviation Machinist 3-c E. C. Burr, crew of a Navy helicopter, participated in the rescue of nine survivors of a Navy Neptune bomber when it crashed off Grand Isle, La., March 17.

Boatswain 2-c R. E. Holbert, Engineman 3-c G. D. Loftlin, and Seaman T. E. Landrum, the crew of a Coast Guard boat, rescued three persons after their boat hit a submerged piling and went down in Lake Pontchartrain Nov. 14.

Slow Progress In Cattle Seen

RUSTON (Special) — Progress in cow and calf improvement programs in Lincoln parish will be slow in the future because the primary room for improvement is in breeding, Glenn Clark, associate professor of animal industry at Louisiana Tech says. He spoke to a calf - grading clinic at Miss Eugenia Smith's farm here Thursday.

"We have gone about as far as we can go in management, and from here on, it is a matter of breeding, which takes a long time, he explained.

"One means by which we may move forward is performance testing, he commented. "Records of performance can lead to more economical production of more desirable beef."

Foundation Plans To Stay In Laos

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—The Dr. Thomas A. Dooley Foundation "will stay in Laos and the Communists will not run us out," its executive director said Saturday.

Communists have overrun Muong Sing and Houei Sai, two places where the late Dr. Tom Dooley set up hospitals. Their work, under Dr. Dooley's organization, Medico, was abandoned last October because of political instability. But after the Dr. Thomas A. Dooley Foundation was formed its representatives went back to those trouble spots.

Saturday, the executive director, Dr. Vern Chaney, said he has cabled Dr. Carl Weidermann at Chieng Khong in Thailand instructions to negotiate with the royal government of Laos to set up a new hospital outside the territory overrun by the Communists.

Dr. Chaney said Dr. Weidermann headed the hospital work at Houei Sai. Although he has not been heard from, it is presumed by foundation officials that he, his associate, Dr. Judson Lloyd and a technician, Albert Harris, managed to get across the Mekong River into Thailand. Chieng Khong is close by.

"We are determined to stay on in Laos," Dr. Chaney emphasized.

"The Communists cannot tolerate any American institution next to their borders in Asia any more than they can in West Berlin because it makes liars out of them as to what Americans truly represent.

"We are there basically to help the people of Laos. But we also are there to help ourselves and represent America to these people."

Dr. Chaney's headquarters is in San Francisco. He was visiting in Monterey Saturday.

The theft of three cases of empty soft drinks bottles is under investigation by West Monroe police. H. Y. Johnson of 805 N. 3rd. St., West Monroe, reported the bottles were stolen from his residence last Thursday.

World Court Case Could Have U.N. Impact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Court starts hearings Monday in a case which could have a major impact on the future of the United Nations.

The case, on sharing costs of its Congo and Middle East operations bears directly on the U.N. struggle to keep afloat financially and pay for future peacekeeping forces.

Indirectly, it could lead toward loss by Communist countries of their vote in the U.N. General Assembly and affect the congressional prospects of President Kennedy's disputed $100-million U.N. bond request.

U. S. statisticians figure that with a favorable court ruling and the bond plan in effect, the Soviets will lose their General Assembly vote by 1964 unless they switch tactics and pay their full U.N. assessments plus another $9 million of arrears.

The State Department has assigned its top lawyer, legal adviser Abram Chayes, and his assistant, Stephen M. Schwebel, to present the U.S. argument at the World Court's seat at The Hague.

Lined up with similar views are Australia, Canada, Iran, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway and Britain.

The opponents include a mixture of Reds like the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia on the one hand, and non-Reds like France, Upper Volta, Spain, Portugal and South Africa on the other. France contends the issue is political and thus not for the court to decide.

The 15-man tribunal-known officially as the International Court of Justice-is expected to listen to renowned barristers on the case for a week or two, then deliberate and hand down a ruling before going into summer recess a couple months hence.

The question at issue has been put to the court by the General Assembly itself for an advisory opinion on whether the U.N. Congo and Middle East costs are expenses of the organization within the meaning of the U.N. charter Article 17, and thus binding on all U.N. members.

Article 17 says the expenses of the organization shall be borne by the members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

The question is important because it strikes to the heart of Secretary - General U Thant's plan to revive U. N. finances. The world organization is broke because the Soviet Union, France and some others refused to pay their share of special funds for the peacekeeping operations. The costs—especially the $10 million a month for the Congo—come to more than the U.N. regular operating budget, to which all members do contribute. The United States has been helping to fill the breach.

Under Thant's plan, the peacekeeping costs are being lumped into the regular budget as are the costs of a $200-million, 25-year bond issue floated to ease the U.N. cash shortage. Kennedy has pledged U.S. purchase of up to $100 million of the bonds, Congress willing.

The regular annual budget is paid by General Assembly assessment on all U.N. members. Any member falling into arrears by more than two years is supposed, under the U.N. charter, to lose its General Assembly vote.

U.S. authorities have expressed confidence the court ruling will support Thant's inclusion of peacekeeping costs as expenses. Some countries have already started to catch up on arrears.

They expect France, opposed to the Congo operation, will pay up too if the court so rules, but not the Soviet bloc which owes $45 million on the Congo-Middle East so far although it has paid its regular budget assessments.

Their work, under Dr. Dooley's organization, Medico, was abandoned last October because of political instability. But after the Dr. Thomas A. Dooley Foundation was formed its representatives went back to those trouble spots.

Saturday, the executive director, Dr. Vern Chaney, said he has cabled Dr. Carl Weidermann at Chieng Khong in Thailand instructions to negotiate with the royal government of Laos to set up a new hospital outside the territory overrun by the Communists.

Dr. Chaney said Dr. Weidermann headed the hospital work at Houei Sai. Although he has not been heard from, it is presumed by foundation officials that he, his associate, Dr. Judson Lloyd and a technician, Albert Harris, managed to get across the Mekong River into Thailand. Chieng Khong is close by.

"We are determined to stay on in Laos," Dr. Chaney emphasized.

"The Communists cannot tolerate any American institution next to their borders in Asia any more than they can in West Berlin because it makes liars out of them as to what Americans truly represent.

"We are there basically to help the people of Laos. But we also are there to help ourselves and represent America to these people."

Dr. Chaney's headquarters is in San Francisco. He was visiting in Monterey Saturday.

World Court Case Could Have U.N. Impact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Court starts hearings Monday in a case which could have a major impact on the future of the United Nations.

The case, on sharing costs of its Congo and Middle East operations bears directly on the U.N. struggle to keep afloat financially and pay for future peacekeeping forces.

Indirectly, it could lead toward loss by Communist countries of their vote in the U.N. General Assembly and affect the congressional prospects of President Kennedy's disputed $100-million U.N. bond request.

U. S. statisticians figure that with a favorable court ruling and the bond plan in effect, the Soviets will lose their General Assembly vote by 1964 unless they switch tactics and pay their full U.N. assessments plus another $9 million of arrears.

The State Department has assigned its top lawyer, legal adviser Abram Chayes, and his assistant, Stephen M. Schwebel, to present the U.S. argument at the World Court's seat at The Hague.

Lined up with similar views are Australia, Canada, Iran, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway and Britain.

The opponents include a mixture of Reds like the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia on the one hand, and non-Reds like France, Upper Volta, Spain, Portugal and South Africa on the other. France contends the issue is political and thus not for the court to decide.

The 15-man tribunal-known officially as the International Court of Justice-is expected to listen to renowned barristers on the case for a week or two, then deliberate and hand down a ruling before going into summer recess a couple months hence.

The question at issue has been put to the court by the General Assembly itself for an advisory opinion on whether the U.N. Congo and Middle East costs are expenses of the organization within the meaning of the U.N. charter Article 17, and thus binding on all U.N. members.

Article 17 says the expenses of the organization shall be borne by the members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

The question is important because it strikes to the heart of Secretary - General U Thant's plan to revive U. N. finances. The world organization is broke because the Soviet Union, France and some others refused to pay their share of special funds for the peacekeeping operations. The costs—especially the $10 million a month for the Congo—come to more than the U.N. regular operating budget, to which all members do contribute. The United States has been helping to fill the breach.

Under Thant's plan, the peacekeeping costs are being lumped into the regular budget as are the costs of a $200-million, 25-year bond issue floated to ease the U.N. cash shortage. Kennedy has pledged U.S. purchase of up to $100 million of the bonds, Congress willing.

The regular annual budget is paid by General Assembly assessment on all U.N. members. Any member falling into arrears by more than two years is supposed, under the U.N. charter, to lose its General Assembly vote.

U.S. authorities have expressed confidence the court ruling will support Thant's inclusion of peacekeeping costs as expenses. Some countries have already started to catch up on arrears.

They expect France, opposed to the Congo operation, will pay up too if the court so rules, but not the Soviet bloc which owes $45 million on the Congo-Middle East so far although it has paid its regular budget assessments.

JFK Waves Olive Branch To Business During Week

TEXAS INDEPENDENTS

Oilmen To Make Policy Decisions

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Policy decisions on imports and a controversial well spacing dispute will be made by Texas independent oil operators this week.

The three-day 16th annual meeting of the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association begins Thursday.

The organization's policy on imports will not be surprising, but the well spacing dispute probably will produce heated debate. Its officials already have endorsed an amendment that would have President Kennedy's new trade expansion act spell out a formula that would reduce current oil imports about 250,000 barrels a day.

Texas oil operators—large and small—are in a hot argument over proper spacing regulations for oil and gas wells.

The dispute involves the practice of permitting any landowner to drill for oil or gas even if his land holdings amount to nothing more than a town lot of about one-fifth of an acre.

Two court decisions of the past 15 months have discouraged small tract drilling in favor of conventional spacing patterns ranging from one oil well to 40 acres and one gas well to 40 acres or more.

Until a year ago the Texas independents traditionally championed small tract drilling. The 1961 convention modified the traditional policy a bit to pledge aid "in any manner possible in any effort the (Texas Railroad) commission may make to correct inequities by drilling on tracts smaller than proration units."

The state's oil and gas regulatory body currently is considering several cases resulting from the two court decisions which, in effect, have said small tract drilling is contrary to sound conservation practices.

The dispute continues, however, with organization members active on both sides.

They were active in the February organization of the statewide committee for equitable development of oil and gas resources. The committee voids reference to small tract drilling but has been very active, behind the scenes, in supporting 1962 state legislative candidates who favor conventional spacing patterns.

Other Texas independent members have been active in the organization of a small tract group —the Texas Landowners Independent Oil and Gas Producers Association. This group has not been as active in the legislative races but has threatened to carry the recent state court decisions to the Supreme Court.

Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla., author of the Trade Expansion Act amendment, is to speak at Friday's opening general session.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall told the Independent Petroleum Association of America on April 30 he hopes a cutback under the mandatory oil imports control program can be announced before Congress acts on the Kennedy trade program.

Steed replied on May 1 Udall was saying the administration wants to win so badly "they are willing to stoop to bribery of Congress."

James F. West, Texas independent president from Stamford, said many thinking oil operators believe 1962 may offer their last real hope for success in their imports fight.

"If we fail to write into the foreign trade bill adequate provision for survival of the domestic oil independents, we may never have another meaningful opportunity," he said.

The organization contends the mandatory controls program has slowed the rate of growth of oil imports but has failed to stabilize the growth in relation to domestic crude production.

Texas crude oil production declined from 3,027,000 barrels a day in 1956 to 2,574,000 in 1961. The number of producing allowable days in Texas in 1961 totaled 101 compared to 190 in 1956. Texas well completion in 1961 totaled only 15,369 compared to 25,515 in 1956. In the same period, oil industry employment in Texas dropped from 172,000 to 149,000.

West is to make his annual report Friday.

'Lasers' May Have Large 1970 Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Folks who like to invest in new scientific discoveries are getting justifiably curious about something called the laser — the newest marvel turned out by the physicists and the optical industry.

It may be some years before lasers are sold in sufficient quantities to earn cash and stock dividends, but their power and future possibilities for medicine, defense and industry already have been demonstrated. A market for $200 million worth of them each year, perhaps much more, by 1970 is a distinct possibility.

Laser is a coined word meaning "light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation." The laser is a variety of maser. Maser means amplifying radio or any other waves by stimulated emission of radiation.

There are two main kinds of laser — solid state, which generally is a ruby held in a metal container, and gaseous, a mixture of helium and neon in a glass tube. Another gaseous type has just been discovered.

All do the same thing. Ordinary light is what the physicists call "spatially incoherent." That is, its power is broken up and largely lost. It goes in all directions. The laser collects the power of light into waves of tremendous energy and harnesses the waves.

Then they can be focused and put to practical use. A laser made by American Optical Co. at Southbridge, Mass., was used successfully recently to burn a tumor off the retina of a patient's eye in one-thousandth of a second. This indicates the enormous possibilities for lasers in surgery.

A laser made by Raytheon Corp. of Lexington, Mass., demonstrated at the Convention of Institute of Radio Engineers, burned a hole through a sheet of stainless steel in one-two-thousandth of a second and set fire to carbon paper 10 feet away.

Radio Corp. of America has just announced a new gaseous laser that can cut to one-tenth the amount of power needed to produce strong beams of infrared light — useful in many scientific and industrial processes.

The laser conceivably could be the defense answer to the intercontinental ballistic missile. Because of its intense power and because it can travel at the speed of light, it might be harnessed to vaporize ICBM's in flight. In other words, it would mean the achievement of the ray gun, which science fiction writers talked about years ago.

For more prosaic industrial purposes, lasers probably could drill, machine and weld instantaneously refractory metals that now are enormously difficult and expensive. Hughes Aircraft Co., has just announced a series of them to sell for $2,500 including power supply. Perkin-Elmer Corp., of Norwalk, Conn., makes a helium-neon laser that emits a continuous beam for $7,500.

WILCOX SAND TAPPED

Adams County Oil Field Find Assured

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Marlin Exploration, Inc., has assured a new oil field find for Adams County with the Wildcat USA No. A-1, Sec. 55-5n-1w.

The well flowed 100 barrels of 3 degree gravity oil from a Wilcox sand at 4,844-45 feet. It is three miles east of the Kingston oil field.

Field drilling in Wayne County received a boost with Humble's recent opening of the first lower cretaceous pools in the semi-shallow Yellow Creek field.

Humble is currently testing high gravity oil from perforations at 11,439-49 feet in the Norsworth No. 1, sec. 18-9n-7w. The well has three strings of tubing cemented at 11,570 feet.

Humble has been testing the USA No. 1, sec. 13-9n-8w, for several months, but very little information has been released. The well is equipped for a triple completion and has tested a large amount of oil from the Cotton Valley formation.

Two other deep tests are underway in Wayne County and another is expected shortly.

Yellow Creek was discovered in 1947 and until recently has been productive from only the Eutaw formation at 5,000 feet.

Outpost wells in the Diamond and Chaparral field are being watched for developments.

Barnwell Drilling Co. has set production casing to 9,600 feet in the Chaparral area.

Petroleum Management Inc., is deepening the unit No. 12-15, sec. 12-10n-7w, below contract depth of 10,500 feet after logging slight shows at contract depth.

Humble as below 11,200 feet in a Pike County wildcat, the Holmesville oil unit No. 1, sec. 19-3n-9e, with the venture located between the Little Creek field of Pike and Lincoln counties and the Kokomo gas field of Walthall County. The well is scheduled to 13,500 feet.

Southwest Gas Producing Co. has extended production in the Oldenurg field of Rankin County by one mile to the southwest with the completion of the J. J. Hale et al No. 1, sec. 34-7n-2e. The well flowed 137 barrels per day from perforations at 10,509-14 feet.

Field drilling the past week brought three new oilers and one gas condensate well.

In the Junction City field of Clarke County, Mobil Oil Co. finaled the Trehern No. 1, sec. 24-2n-16e, which pumped 148 barrels of 17 gravity oil per day from perforations at 3,638-3,797.

At Mallalieu Field in Lincoln County, Tex-Star Oil and Gas Corp. completed the Nordan No. 1, sec. 10-6n-8e, pumping 110 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 10,488-514 feet.

Kelly and Byrne completed the Young Estate No. 1, sec. 7-4n-2w, in the North Overton field of Adams County. It flowed 25 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 4,595-96 feet.

In the Stewart field of Pearl River County, Cities Service Production Co. finaled the Belin No. 1, sec. 29-1s-17w, which flowed 4,250,000 cubic feet of gas and 56 barrels of condensate per day.

Chicago Grains Register Drops

CHICAGO (AP)—Significant influences were scarce in the grain futures market last week and prices drifted into general weakness on the Board of Trade.

All commodities showed losses running to more than a cent a bushel with only a few gainers. Tenders on May contracts were the principal bearish factors in most pits, particularly corn, where they ran consistently large and circulated rather freely.

Wheat finished the week 1¼ cents a ushel lower on the nearby months to 1 cent higher on the distant contracts, May $2.13½-¾; corn unchanged 1⅞ lower, May $1.11¼-⅛; oats 1 cent higher to 1¾ lower, May 71¼-⅜; rye 1-1½ lower, May $1.25⅛-¼; soybeans ½-1¼ lower, May $2.49¼-⅜.

Bankers Clinic Slated Tuesday

WINNSBORO (Special) — Representatives of the Franklin State Bank and Trust Co. of Winnsboro and Wisner and the Winnsboro State Bank and Trust Co. of Winnsboro and Gilbert and their guests will attend the Bankers Farm Clinic in Concordia Parish Tuesday.

The morning session will get underway at 9 a.m. on The Curtis Huff farm nine miles north of Ferriday. Luncheon and the afternoon session will be the Concordia Parish Fair Grounds in Ferriday. Host bank is the Concordia State Bank and Trust Co. of Vidalia and Ferriday.

"Opportunities for Youth in a Changing Agriculture" is the theme of the bankers 14th annual farm clinic meetings which are also being held in four other areas during the month of May. These clinics are sponsored by the Louisiana Bankers Association, Louisiana State University, and the Federal Reserve Banks of Atlanta and Dallas.

Depreciation Liberalizing Is Expected

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kennedy administration held out an olive branch toward business during the week and it appeared acceptable.

As a result, the gulf between government and business may narrow.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon advised the Business Council, meeting in Hot Springs, Va., that liberalization of tax depreciation write-offs will be ordered soon.

This is expected to bring an estimated 1962 tax saving of $1.25 billion to businessmen.

Industrialists have been clamoring for greater depreciation credit so they can expand and modernize plants.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. and chairman of the Business Council, called the action very important in restoring confidence in business and improving government-business relations.

Blough said Dillion's message, delivered to the council by Treasury Undersecretary Henry H. Fowler, was very well-received by the 100 corporation heads who make up the group.

He expressed hope that the over-all business climate will improve.

President Kennedy and Blough were the main adversaries in the fight in which Kennedy forced a roll-back of a steel price increase initiated by Blough.

Since then the Kennedy administration has been accused of being antibusiness.

In another development during the week, organized labor got the word from Kennedy that he expects wages as well as profits to hold the noninflation line.

He told the United Auto Workers convention in Atlantic City, N.J.: "Unjustified wage demands which require price increases are equally as contrary to the national interest as unjustified profit demands which require price increases."

And it was a week in which: The Labor Department reported unemployment declined by 400,000 and employment increased 700,000 in April.

Stockholders of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads approved merger of the two giant systems.

In his Atlantic City speech, Kennedy praised the UAW for what he said the administration considers a noninflationary settlement with the automobile industry last year, but said, "The same responsibility for a noninflationary and peaceful settlement applies both to you and to management in your forthcoming negotiations in the aircraft and missile industries."

UAW President Walter P. Reuther had said earlier that wages should rise faster than productivity at least for the present.

Heads of two big steel companies persisted in their stand that steel price increases are needed to enable the producers to modernize and remain competitive.

Chairman Roger M. Blough of U.S. Steel Corp., who initiated the $6-a-ton increase last month only to wilt under government pressure, defended his action at the annual stockholders meeting.

He called for harmony between government and business but said it is "incomprehensible" that "government can ever serve the national interest in peacetime by seeking to control prices."

Republic Steel Corp.'s president, T. F. Patton, told his annual meeting that the company "still needs a price increase—as competitive factors permit."

Under questioning at his news conference, Kennedy denied that, in his anger, over the steel price increase, he had made a scorching remark about "all businessmen." He meant it just for some steel industry executives, he said, adding, "That is all past. Now we are working together, I hope."

In other presidential actions affecting business, Kennedy defended his plan for tax withholding on dividends and interest and asked Congress for standby authority to cut individual income taxes temporarily by as much as $10 billion a year to minimize future recessions.

The report on unemployment wasn't as good as it appeared at first glance. While the number of jobless declined by 400,000 to 3,946,000—the first time it was below 4 million since last November—it continued to represent 5.5 per cent of the labor force. The total employment figure of 66,824,000 was a record for any April.

Action by stockholders of the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads opened the throttle wider toward putting together the world's biggest railroad system—20,000 miles and $5.3 billion in assets.

Central President Alfred Perlman said the merger could take place within 18 months. Pennsy Chairman James H. Symes said only a year might be necessary.

Nevertheless, the biggest obstacle — getting a green signal from the Interstate Commerce Commission — is still ahead.

Automobile production spurted during this week to its highest level of the year—an estimated 157,000 passenger cars. This was 2.2 per cent above the previous high of 153,614 in the week ended April 28. It compared with 149,582 last week and 129,530 in the like week of 1960.

Steel output during the week fell for the fifth consecutive week and major producers indicated further cuts are to come. Production was down to 1,820,000 tons, which represented about 60.5 per cent of the industry's estimated capacity.

Briefly around the business scene: Business and industrial failures so far this year total 6,207, compared with 6,418 in the comparable 1961 period . . Granite Steel Co. reported a 100-million-ton deposit of iron ore has been found at Bourbon, Mo. ... Sears Roebuck & Co. sales in the first quarter exceeded $1 billion for the first time.

Stocks Suffer Severe Loss During Week

Averages Plunge In Sharpest Dip For Thirty Years

NEW YORK (AP) — As confidence continued to melt away, the stock market last week took its worst weekly loss in about 30 years.

The comparison had to be approximate because weekly statistics on stock market moves were not kept at the Associated Press and Dow Jones & Co. Inc., prior to 1932.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 30.75 to 640.63. This put the Dow 94.28 below its historic high of 734.91 reached last Dec. 13.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 11.00 to 236.10. No weekly break in the past 30 years was larger than the decline of 9.40 in the week ended July 22, 1933, in the days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal.

Without much doubt there were greater weekly declines in the black days of the 1929 decline, both on a point basis and, much more so on a percentage basis, because the averages were much lower at that period of stock market history.

It was the market's third straight weekly decline and stocks fell in spite of generally encouraging news about the economy. The continued retreat also flew in the phase of various technical signs used by professional security analysts to calculate probabilities in the market.

One experienced analyst, speaking off-the-cuff and not for direct attribution, said: "I'm a lost sheep. Technical indicators are absolutely useless in this kind of market. This emotional selling cannot be measured."

The technical indicators, said this expert, gave the same kind of message two weeks ago that they gave in the market bottoms of September 1960 and October 1957—but this time the market did not rally strongly as it did following those declines.

As the week ended, the stock market had gone through six straight daily declines.

Volume was 18,419,640 shares, compared with 19,370,710 the week before.

Prominently mentioned as causing lack of confidence was President Kennedy's "non-inflationary" policy, which some Wall Streeters feel gives labor some benefits but deprives business of increased prices to pay for them — thus squeezing profits. Nevertheless, general business news was quite good last week. Many corporate reports showed improvement in earnings. Retail sales, rail freight carloadings and auto output were on the upbeat.

Both corporate and U.S. government bonds resumed their climb to higher price levels in sharp contrast with the severe break of stock values. Corporate volume reached a high for the year for the second week in a row. Trading totaled $35,783,000 par value, compared with $33,243,000 the previous week.

Texas Gas Sets Stock Dividend

OWENSBORO, Ky. — The board of directors of Texas Gas Transmission Corporation have declared a regular cash dividend on its common stock at the rate of 40 cents per share. The dividend is payable June 15, 1962, to stockholders of record at the close of business on May 25, 1962, W. M. Elmer, president, announced.

The board also declared the regular quarterly dividends on the company's 5.40 per cent and 4.96 per cent preferred stocks and Second Preferred Stock, 5¼ per cent Convertible Series, payable July 1, 1962, to stockholders of record at the close of business on June 15, 1962.

NEW MAXIMUM DEPTH

MOSCOW (UPI) — The news agency Tass said Saturday Soviet scientists aboard the survey ship Akademik S. Vavilov have recorded a new maximum depth of the Mediterranean Sea—16,797 feet at a point 65 miles west of Matapan Cape in southern Greece.

Tass said the previous known deepest point of 16,453 feet was to the south of the Greek Peloponneseus peninsula.

FINALS ON WELLS

Catahoula Parish Activity Leading Monroe District

Producing areas in Catahoula Parish led activity last week in the 14 parishes of the Monroe Oil & Gas District, with drillers there reporting finals on three wells. Two were in the Wallace Lake Field, the last in the Tew Lake Field.

Overall, activity seemed moderately down, with but four new locations recorded throughout the area. Four of them were in the Monroe Gas Field in Union Parish; Ouachita Parish and the Cheniere Field contributed the fourth.

Of four other completions, two of them came from Union Parish, again the Monroe Field, and one each from LaSalle Parish (Tullos Urania Field) and Tensas Parish (Buckhorn Field).

Records on file in the office of Duncan S. Cook, district manager for the State Conservation Commission, showed a total of 13 wells active at week's end, divided between Ouachita, Concordia, Grant, LaSalle, and Tensas Parishes. Six, or nearly half, were concentrated in LaSalle Parish; Tensas had four and Ouachita, Concordia and Grant, one each.

One well was plugged and abandoned, pushing the inactive total to 92 scattered rigs, and two permits expired.

A pair of wells, one each in Concordia and La Salle Parishes, were re-completed. They were identified as the California Company's LSJ Unit No. 37 in the Lake St. John Field at 9196 feet, and Justiss Mears Oil Company's Cassell - Davis No. 1 in the La-Salle Parish Little Creek Field. The latter formerly was a gas well.

Locations last week numbered an even half a hundred.

Here is the usual second look at completions, new locations and active rigs:

COMPLETIONS

CATAHOULA PARISH, Tew Lake Field —Kinsey Ints. and Marlin's Morris no. 1, located in sec. 3-8-6E.

Wallace Lake Field—R. A. Campbell Co.'s White-Manning etal Unit no. 1, located in sec. 23-8-6E.

Wallace Lake Field—Crow-Greyhound Drilling Co. etal's Magruder no. 3, located in sec. 23-8-6E.

LA SALLE PARISH, Tullos Urania Field—Tennyson Oil Co.'s Urania Lbr. Co. no. K-2, located in sec. 18-10-2E.

TENSAS PARISH, Buckhorn Field — Humble Oil and Refg. Co. M. M. Bloom no. 5, located in sec. 25-12-11E.

UNION PARISH, Monroe Field—J. C. Trahan Drilling Contr. Inc.'s R. E. Dodd no. 1, located in sec. 36-20-2E.

Monroe Field—J. C. Trahan Drilling Contr. Inc. Z. C. Rabun Sst. no. 1, located in sec. 1-19-2E.

NEW LOCATIONS

Ouachita Parish, Cheniere Field — British-American Oil Prod. Co.'s Cadeville SU P; Golson no. 1, located 1750 ft. from north line and 330 ft. from east line of sec. 17-17-2E.

UNION PARISH, Monroe Gas Field—H and H Oil Corp's Monroe Gas Unit no. 7, located 697 ft. south and 522 ft. west of the ¼ sec. corner between secs. 14 and 15-21N-2E.

Monroe Gas Field—J. C. Trahan Drilling Inc.'s Sam Quahley no. 2, located 600 ft. south and 660 ft. west of NE corner of NE¼ of SE¼.

Monroe Gas Field— J. C. Trahan Drilling Contr., Inc.'s Eva B. Smith no. 2, located 330 ft. south and 275 ft. west of NE corner of SW¼ of SW¼ of sec. 6-19-3E.

ACTIVE WELLS

CONCORDIA PARISH, Moro Field — E. C. Wentworth etal's Fisher Lbr. Co. no. E-3, located in sec. 2-7-7E, testing depth 3957 ft.

GRANT PARISH, Tullos Urania Field —J. E. Grandstaff's Morrison "B" no. 15, located in sec. 10-9-1E, testing.

LA SALLE PARISH, Wildcat Field—J. M. Whatley Est. no. 1, located in sec. 27-8-3E, testing.

South Jena Field—E. C. Wentworth etal's Corley no. A-1, located in sec. 28-8-3E, testing 3910 ft.

Trout Creek Field—Briggs Drilling Co. etal's Gray Heirs no. 1, located in sec. 30-8-3E, testing .3713 ft.

OUACHITA PARISH, Cheniere Field—Humble Oil and Refg. Co. C'ville SU M; Werner no. 1, located in sec. 9-17-2E, drilling at 9880 ft.

TENSAS PARISH, Aubrey Field—Est. Wm. G. Helis (A Part)'s S. P. Burton etal no. 2-A, located in sec. 23-11-11E, drilling 7549 ft.

Buckhorn Field—Humble Oil and Refg's V. A. Anderson no. 8, located in sec. 24-12-11E, drilling 7070 ft.

St. Joseph Field—Phillips Petr. Co.'s Brown "K" no. 2, located in sec. 44-11-12E, drilling 6255 ft.

USDA Plan Would Slice Milk Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A report now under study in the Agriculture Department calls for federal action to cut fluid milk prices in some parts of the country, and to break up local milk monopolies.

The report urges the department to run federal milk marketing orders as closely meshed parts of a national system, not as a collection of local programs designed "to create or preserve special advantages for local groups."

There has been no hint yet from Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman as to what he plans to do about the report from his Federal Milk Order Study Committee, made public May 1. Freeman said at the time that the report was so complicated that his department had not fully evaluated it.

Many of the Agriculture Department's milk marketing experts are believed to agree privately with most of the report's basic recommendations on milk pricing policy and rule-making in federal milk marketing orders. Freeman also is believed to feel personally that some reforms are needed in the fluid milk marketing system.

"But the question now is to decide whether we accept the report's recommendations. And if we accept these policies, the question then is how they're to be enforced," one department source said.

It is possible that Freeman may never announce formal acceptance of the proposed milk policies in one single gesture. Some of his advisers may favor moving quietly and undramatically, step-by-step, putting new policies into effect wherever it seems practical.

Federal milk marketing orders have been operating, with little notice from the consuming public, for more than 25 years. Under these orders, which must be accepted by two-thirds of the farmers involved before they can take effect, the federal government regulates prices paid to dairy farmers by milk plants and dealers.

There are now more than 80 orders covering most of the nation's major milksheds. Experts estimate that about two-thirds of the milk sold to consumers in fluid form is produced in marketing order areas.

The report recommending reforms in this system was produced for Freeman, after more than a year of study and debate, by a group of 18 non-government experts headed by Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of he President's Council of Economic Advisers during the Truman administration.

One bit of the committee's advice which Freeman is not likely to accept was a statement condemning the use of "supply management" controls on milk producers. Some members of the committee favored a system which would, in effect, regulate production by requiring farmers to sell excess milk at unprofitable prices. But 10 of the 18 committee members denounced this as a first step toward complete government control of the whole milk industry.

Freeman has advocated supply management controls on a nationwide basis to reduce dairy surpluses.

Aside from the supply management argument, the Nourse committee agreed that fluid milk prices in many parts of the country have gone too high.

In some areas, the committee said, this happened because powerful dairy farmer cooperatives used the marketing order price formula as a floor from which to negotiate price premiums.

In such cases, the committee advised the Agriculture Department to call public hearings to review prices. If producer groups refuse to drop their premiums, the committee said, the department could consider suspending the local marketing order. This threat to knock out the federal price floor could be a powerful weapon against balky farm groups.

A move of this kind might be fought bitterly by producer groups. During the Eisenhower administration, former Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson once announced suspension of the Philadelphia, Pa., marketing order because prices set by state order were above the federal level. Pressure from Pennsylvania political leaders forced Benson to cancel his decision.

The Nourse committee's 201-page report also called from federal action to tear down barriers erected by marketing order rules against milk from "outside" producers.

The committee said farmers in a marketing order have the right to protection against short-run "raids" by outside producers. But they have no right to permanent protection against farmers in the other areas who can undersell them in legitimate competition. The committee advised the Agriculture Department to move against market barriers by some friendly persuasion, if possible, and by threats of cancelling orders if necessary.

Present law gives the Secretary of Agriculture the right to suspend a marketing order if he decides its provisions do not carry out the purposes of the basic marketing law.

"It is apparent," the committee said, "that advantage is sometimes taken of the opportunity (under present orders) afforded local interests to devise regulations that will give them a favored position to the detriment of other producers and handlers."

Business Briefs

Offshore

NEW YORK (Special) — Texas Gas Transmission Corp. announced net income of $2,823,000 for the first quarter of 1962, which amounted after preferred dividends to 75 cents per share, up 19 cents from last year, at its annual stockholders meeting.

Texas Gas Exploration Corp. acquired a net interest of about 25 per cent in some 171,000 acres of offshore Louisiana oil and gas leases during the first quarter of 1962, stockholders were told.

The company has pending before the Federal Power Comision applications for expansion programs which would add 143 million cubic feet of daily capacity this year.

TEXAS INDEPENDENTS

Oilmen To Make Policy Decisions

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Policy decisions on imports and a controversial well spacing dispute will be made by Texas independent oil operators this week.

The three-day 16th annual meeting of the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association begins Thursday.

The organization's policy on imports will not be surprising, but the well spacing dispute probably will produce heated debate. Its officials already have endorsed an amendment that would have President Kennedy's new trade expansion act spell out a formula that would reduce current oil imports about 250,000 barrels a day.

Texas oil operators—large and small—are in a hot argument over proper spacing regulations for oil and gas wells.

The dispute involves the practice of permitting any landowner to drill for oil or gas even if his land holdings amount to nothing more than a town lot of about one-fifth of an acre.

Two court decisions of the past 15 months have discouraged small tract drilling in favor of conventional spacing patterns ranging from one oil well to 40 acres and one gas well to 40 acres or more.

Until a year ago the Texas independents traditionally championed small tract drilling. The 1961 convention modified the traditional policy a bit to pledge aid "in any manner possible in any effort the (Texas Railroad) commission may make to correct inequities by drilling on tracts smaller than proration units."

The state's oil and gas regulatory body currently is considering several cases resulting from the two court decisions which, in effect, have said small tract drilling is contrary to sound conservation practices.

The dispute continues, however, with organization members active on both sides.

They were active in the February organization of the statewide committee for equitable development of oil and gas resources. The committee voids reference to small tract drilling but has been very active, behind the scenes, in supporting 1962 state legislative candidates who favor conventional spacing patterns.

Other Texas independent members have been active in the organization of a small tract group —the Texas Landowners Independent Oil and Gas Producers Association. This group has not been as active in the legislative races but has threatened to carry the recent state court decisions to the Supreme Court.

Rep Tom Steed, D-Okla., author of the Trade Expansion Act amendment, is to speak at Friday's opening general session.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall told the Independent Petroleum Association of America on April 30 he hopes a cutback under the mandatory oil imports control program can be announced before Congress acts on the Kennedy trade program.

Steed replied on May 1 Udall was saying the administration wants to win so badly "they are willing to stoop to bribery of Congress."

James F. West, Texas independent president from Stamford, said many thinking oil operators believe 1962 may offer their last real hope for success in their imports fight.

"If we fail to write into the foreign trade bill adequate provision for survival of the domestic oil independents, we may never have another meaningful opportunity," he said.

The organization contends the mandatory controls program has slowed the rate of growth of oil imports but has failed to stabilize the growth in relation to domestic crude production.

Texas crude oil production declined from 3,027,000 barrels a day in 1956 to 2,574,000 in 1961. The number of producing allowable days in Texas in 1961 totaled 101 compared to 190 in 1956. Texas well completion in 1961 totaled only 15,369 compared to 25,515 in 1956. In the same period, oil industry employment in Texas dropped from 172,000 to 149,000.

West is to make his annual report Friday.

'Lasers' May Have Large 1970 Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Folks who like to invest in new scientific discoveries are getting justifiably curious about something called the laser — the newest marvel turned out by the physicists and the optical industry.

It may be some years before lasers are sold in sufficient quantities to earn cash and stock dividends, but their power and future possibilities for medicine, defense and industry already have been demonstrated. A market for $200 million worth of them each year, perhaps much more, by 1970 is a distinct possibility.

Laser is a coined word meaning "light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation." The laser is a variety of maser. Maser means amplifying radio or any other waves by stimulated emission of radiation.

There are two main kinds of laser — solid state, which generally is a ruby held in a metal container, and gaseous, a mixture of helium and neon in a glass tube. Another gaseous type has just been discovered.

All do the same thing. Ordinary light is what the physicists call "spatially incoherent." That is, its power is broken up and largely lost. It goes in all directions. The laser collects the power of light into waves of tremendous energy and harnesses the waves.

Then they can be focused and put to practical use. A laser made by American Optical Co. at Southbridge, Mass., was used successfully recently to burn a tumor off the retina of a patient's eye in one-thousandth of a second. This indicates the enormous possibilities for lasers in surgery.

A laser made by Raytheon Corp. of Lexington, Mass., demonstrated at the Convention of Institute of Radio Engineers, burned a hole through a sheet of stainless steel in one-two-thousandth of a second and set fire to carbon paper 10 feet away.

Radio Corp. of America has just announced a new gaseous laser that can cut to one-tenth the amount of power needed to produce strong beams of infrared light — useful in many scientific and industrial processes.

The laser conceivably could be the defense answer to the intercontinental ballistic missile. Because of its intense power and because it can travel at the speed of light, it might be harnessed to vaporize ICBM's in flight. In other words, it would mean the achievement of the ray gun, which science fiction writers talked about years ago.

For more prosaic industrial purposes, lasers probably could drill, machine and weld instantaneously refractory metals that now are enormously difficult and expensive. Hughes Aircraft Co., has just announced a series of them to sell for $2,500 including power supply. Perkin-Elmer Corp., of Norwalk, Conn., makes a helium-neon laser that emits a continuous beam for $7,500.

WILCOX SAND TAPPED

Adams County Oil Field Find Assured

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Marlin Exploration, Inc., has assured a new oil field find for Adams County with the Wildcat USA No. A-1, Sec. 55-5n-1w.

The well flowed 109 barrels of 3 degree gravity oil from a Wilcox sand at 4,844-45 feet. It is three miles east of the Kingston oil field.

Field drilling in Wayne County received a boost with Humble's recent opening of the first lower cretaceous pools in the semi-shallow Yellow Creek field.

Humble is currently testing high gravity oil from perforations at 11,439-49 feet in the Norsworth No. 1, sec. 18-9n-7w. The well has three strings of tubing cemented at 11,570 feet.

Humble has been testing the USA No. 1, sec. 13-9n-8w, for several months, but very little information has been released. The well is equipped for a triple completion and has tested a large amount of oil from the Cotton Valley formation.

Two other deep tests are underway in Wayne County and another is expected shortly.

Yellow Creek was discovered in 1947 and until recently has been productive from only the Eutaw formation at 5,000 feet.

Outpost wells in the Diamond and Chaparral field are being watched for developments.

Barnwell Drilling Co. has set production casing to 9,600 feet in the Chaparral area.

Petroleum Management Inc., is deepening the unit No. 12-15, sec. 12-10n-7w, below contract depth of 10,500 feet after logging slight shows at contract depth.

Humble as below 11,200 feet in a Pike County wildcat, the Holmesville oil unit No. 1, sec. 19-3n-9e, with the venture located between the Little Creek field of Pike and Lincoln counties and the Kokomo gas field of Walthall County. The well is scheduled to 13,500 feet.

Southwest Gas Producing Co. has extended production in the Oldenurg field of Rankin County by one mile to the southwest with the completion of the J. J. Hale et al No. 1, sec. 34-7n-2e. The well flowed 137 barrels per day from perforations at 10,509-14 feet.

Field drilling the past week brought three new oilers and one gas condensate well.

In the Junction City field of Clarke County, Mobil Oil Co. finaled the Trehern No. 1, sec. 24-2n-16e, which pumped 148 barrels of 17 gravity oil per day from perforations at 3,638-3,797.

At Mallalieu Field in Lincoln County, Tex-Star Oil and Gas Corp. completed, the Nordan No. 1, sec. 10-6n-8e, pumping 110 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 10,488-514 feet.

Kelly and Byrne completed the Young Estate No. 1, sec. 7-4n-2w, in the North Overton field of Adams County. It flowed 25 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 4,595-96 feet.

In the Stewart field of Pearl River County, Cities Service Production Co. finaled the Belin No. 1, sec. 29-1s-17w, which flowed 4,250,000 cubic feet of gas and 56 barrels of condensate per day.

Chicago Grains Register Drops

CHICAGO (AP)—Significant influences were scarce in the grain futures market last week and prices drifted into general weakness on the Board of Trade.

All commodities showed losses running to more than a cent a bushel with only a few gainers. Tenders on May contracts were the principal bearish factors in most pits, particularly corn, where they ran consistently large and circulated rather freely.

Wheat finished the week 1¼ cents a ushel lower on the nearby months to 1 cent higher on the distant contracts, May $2.13½-¾; corn unchanged 1⅛ lower, May $1.11¼-⅛; oats 1 cent higher to 1¾ lower, May 71¼-⅜; rye 1-1½ lower, May $1.25⅛-¼; soybeans ½-1¼ lower, May $2.49¼-⅜.

Bankers Clinic Slated Tuesday

WINNSBORO (Special) — Representatives of the Franklin State Bank and Trust Co. of Winnsboro and Wisner and the Winnsboro State Bank and Trust Co. of Winnsboro and Gilbert and their guests will attend the Bankers Farm Clinic in Concordia Parish Tuesday.

The morning session will get underway at 9 a.m. on The Curtis Huff farm nine miles north of Ferriday. Luncheon and the afternoon session will be the Concordia Parish Fair Grounds in Ferriday. Host bank is the Concordia State Bank and Trust Co. of Vidalia and Ferriday.

"Opportunities for Youth in a Changing Agriculture" is the theme of the bankers 14th annual farm clinic meetings which are also being held in four other areas during the month of May. These clinics are sponsored by the Louisiana Bankers Association, Louisiana State University, and the Federal Reserve Banks of Atlanta and Dallas.

Depreciation Liberalizing Is Expected

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kennedy administration held out an olive branch toward business during the week and it appeared acceptable.

As a result, the gulf between government and business may narrow.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon advised the Business Council, meeting in Hot Springs, Va., that liberalization of tax depreciation write-offs will be ordered soon.

This is expected to bring an estimated 1962 tax saving of $1.25 billion to businessmen.

Industrialists have been clamoring for greater depreciation credit so they can expand and modernize plants.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. and chairman of the Business Council, called the action very important in restoring confidence in business and improving government-business relations.

Blough said Dillion's message, delivered to the council by Treasury Undersecretary Henry H. Fowler, was very well-received by the 100 corporation heads who make up the group.

He expressed hope that the over-all business climate will improve.

President Kennedy and Blough were the main adversaries in the fight in which Kennedy forced a roll-back of a steel price increase initiated by Blough.

Since then the Kennedy administration has been accused of being antibusiness.

In another development during the week, organized labor got the word from Kennedy that he expects wages as well as profits to hold the noninflation line.

He told the United Auto Workers convention in Atlantic City, N.J.: "Unjustified wage demands which require price increases are equally as contrary to the national interest as unjustified profit demands which require price increases."

And it was a week in which: The Labor Department reported unemployment declined by 400,000 and employment increased 700,000 in April.

Stockholders of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads approved merger of the two giant systems.

In his Atlantic City speech, Kennedy praised the UAW for what he said the administration considers a noninflationary settlement with the automobile industry last year, but said, "The same responsibility for a noninflationary and peaceful settlement applies both to you and to management in your forthcoming negotiations in the aircraft and missile industries."

UAW President Walter P. Reuther had said earlier that wages should rise faster than productivity at least for the present.

Heads of two big steel companies persisted in their stand that steel price increases are needed to enable the producers to modernize and remain competitive.

Chairman Roger M. Blough of U.S. Steel Corp., who initiated the $6-a-ton increase last month only to wilt under government pressure, defended his action at the annual stockholders meeting.

He called for harmony between government and business but said it is "incomprehensible" that "government can ever serve the national interest in peacetime by seeking to control prices."

Republic Steel Corp.'s president, T. F. Patton, told his annual meeting that the company "still needs a price increase—as competitive factors permit."

Under questioning at his news conference, Kennedy denied that, in his anger, over the steel price increase, he had made a scorching remark about "all businessmen." He meant it just for some steel industry executives, he said, adding, "That is all past. Now we are working together, I hope."

In other presidential actions affecting business, Kennedy defended his plan for tax withholding on dividends and interest and asked Congress for standby authority to cut individual income taxes temporarily by as much as $10 billion a year to minimize future recessions.

The report on unemployment wasn't as good as it appeared at first glance. While the number of jobless declined by 400,000 to 3,946,000—the first time it was below 4 million since last November—it continued to represent 5.5 per cent of the labor force. The total employment figure of 66,824,000 was a record for any April.

Action by stockholders of the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads opened the throttle wider toward putting together the world's biggest railroad system—20,000 miles and $5.3 billion in assets.

Central President Alfred Perlman said the merger could take place within 18 months. Pennsy Chairman James H. Symes said only a year might be necessary.

Nevertheless, the biggest obstacle — getting a green signal from the Interstate Commerce Commission — is still ahead.

Automobile production spurted during this week to its highest level of the year—an estimated 157,000 passenger cars. This was 2.2 per cent above the previous high of 153,614 in the week ended April 28. It compared with 149,582 last week and 129,530 in the like week of 1960.

Steel output during the week fell for the fifth consecutive week and major producers indicated further cuts are to come. Production was down to 1,820,000 tons, which represented about 60.5 per cent of the industry's estimated capacity.

Briefly around the business scene: Business and industrial failures so far this year total 6,207, compared with 6,418 in the comparable 1961 period . . Granite Steel Co. reported a 100-million-ton deposit of iron ore has been found at Bourbon, Mo. ... Sears Roebuck & Co. sales in the first quarter exceeded $1 billion for the first time.

Stocks Suffer Severe Loss During Week

Averages Plunge In Sharpest Dip For Thirty Years

NEW YORK (AP) — As confidence continued to melt away, the stock market last week took its worst weekly loss in about 30 years.

The comparison had to be approximate because weekly statistics on stock market moves were not kept at the Associated Press and Dow Jones & Co. Inc., prior to 1932.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 30.75 to 640.63. This put the Dow 94.28 below its historic high of 734.91 reached last Dec. 13.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 11.00 to 236.10. No weekly break in the past 30 years was larger than the decline of 9.40 in the week ended July 22, 1933, in the days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal.

Without much doubt there were greater weekly declines in the black days of the 1929 decline, both on a point basis and, much more so on a percentage basis, because the averages were much lower at that period of stock market history.

It was the market's third straight weekly decline and stocks fell in spite of generally encouraging news about the economy. The continued retreat also flew in the phase of various technical signs used by professional security analysts to calculate probabilities in the market.

One experienced analyst, speaking off-the-cuff and not for direct attribution, said: "I'm a lost sheep. Technical indicators are absolutely useless in this kind of market. This emotional selling cannot be measured."

The technical indicators, said this expert, gave the same kind of message two weeks ago that they gave in the market bottoms of September 1960 and October 1957—but this time the market did not rally strongly as it did following those declines.

As the week ended, the stock market had gone through six straight daily declines.

Volume was 18,419,640 shares, compared with 19,370,710 the week before.

Prominently mentioned as causing lack of confidence was President Kennedy's "non-inflationary" policy, which some Wall Streeters feel gives labor some benefits but deprives business of increased prices to pay for them — thus squeezing profits. Nevertheless, general business news was quite good last week. Many corporate reports showed improvement in earnings. Retail sales, rail freight carloadings and auto output were on the upbeat.

Both corporate and U.S. government bonds resumed their climb to higher price levels in sharp contrast with the severe break of stock values. Corporate volume reached a high for the year for the second week in a row. Trading totaled $35,783,000 par value, compared with $33,243,000 the previous week.

Texas Gas Sets Stock Dividend

OWENSBORO, Ky. — The board of directors of Texas Gas Transmission Corporation have declared a regular cash dividend on its common stock at the rate of 40 cents per share. The dividend is payable June 15, 1962, to stockholders of record at the close of business on May 25, 1962, W. M. Elmer, president, announced.

The board also declared the regular quarterly dividends on the company's 5.40 per cent and 4.96 per cent preferred stocks and Second Preferred Stock, 5¼ per cent Convertible Series, payable July 1, 1962, to stockholders of record at the close of business on June 15, 1962.

NEW MAXIMUM DEPTH

MOSCOW (UPI) — The news agency Tass said Saturday Soviet scientists aboard the survey ship Akademik S. Vavilov have recorded a new maximum depth of the Mediterranean Sea—16,797 feet at a point 65 miles west of Matapan Cape in southern Greece.

Tass said the previous known deepest point of 16,453 feet was to the south of the Greek Peloponneseus peninsula.

FINALS ON WELLS

Catahoula Parish Activity Leading Monroe District

Producing areas in Catahoula Parish led activity last week in the 14 parishes of the Monroe Oil & Gas District, with drillers there reporting finals on three wells. Two were in the Wallace Lake Field, the last in the Tew Lake Field.

Overall, activity seemed moderately down, with but four new locations recorded throughout the area. Four of them were in the Monroe Gas Field in Union Parish: Ouachita Parish and the Cheniere Field contributed the fourth.

Of four other completions, two of them came from Union Parish, again the Monroe Field, and one each from LaSalle Parish (Tullos Urania Field) and Tensas Parish (Buckhorn Field).

Records on file in the office of Duncan S. Cook, district manager for the State Conservation Commission, showed a total of 13 wells active at week's end, divided between Ouachita, Concordia, Grant, LaSalle, and Tensas Parishes. Six, or nearly half, were concentrated in LaSalle Parish; Tensas had four and Ouachita, Concordia and Grant, one each.

One well was plugged and abandoned, pushing the inactive total to 92 scattered rigs, and two permits expired.

A pair of wells, one each in Concordia and La Salle Parishes, were re-completed. They were identified as the California Company's LSJ Unit No. 37 in the Lake St. John Field at 9196 feet, and Justiss Mears Oil Company's Cassell - Davis No. 1 in the La-Salle Parish Little Creek Field. The latter formerly was a gas well.

Locations last week numbered an even half a hundred.

Here is the usual second look at completions, new locations and active rigs:

COMPLETIONS

CATAHOULA PARISH, Tew Lake Field—Kinsey Ints. and Marlin's Morris no. 1, located in sec. 3-8-6E.

Wallace Lake Field—R. A. Campbell Co.'s White-Manning etal Unit no. 1, located in sec. 23-8-6E.

Wallace Lake Field—Crow-Greyhound Drilling Co. etal's Magruder no. 3, located in sec. 23-8-6E.

LA SALLE PARISH, Tullos Urania Field—Tennyson Oil Co.'s Urania Lbr. Co. no. K-2, located in sec. 18-10-2E.

TENSAS PARISH, Buckhorn Field — Humble Oil and Refg. Co. M. M. Bloom no. 5, located in sec. 25-12-11E.

UNION PARISH, Monroe Field—J. C. Trahan Drilling Contr. Inc.'s R. E. Dodd no. 1, located in sec. 36-20-2E.

Monroe Field—J. C. Trahan Drilling Contr. Inc. Z. C. Rabun Sst. no. 1, located in sec. 1-19-2E.

NEW LOCATIONS

Ouachita Parish, Cheniere Field—British-American Oil Prod. Co.'s Cadeville SU P; Golson no. 1, located 1750 ft. from north line and 330 ft. from east line of sec. 17-17-2E.

UNION PARISH, Monroe Gas Field—H and H Oil Corp's Monroe Gas Unit no. 7, located 697 ft. south and 522 ft. west of the ¼ sec. corner between secs. 14 and 15-21N-2E.

Monroe Gas Field—J. C. Trahan Drilling Inc.'s Sam Ouahley no. 2, located 600 ft. south and 660 ft. west of NE corner of NE¼ of SE¼.

St. Joseph Field—Phillips Petr. Co.'s Brown "K" no. 2, located in sec. 44-11-12E, drilling 6255 ft.

USDA Plan Would Slice Milk Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A report now under study in the Agriculture Department calls for federal action to cut fluid milk prices in some parts of the country, and to break up local milk monopolies.

The report urges the department to run federal milk marketing orders as closely meshed parts of a national system, not as a collection of local programs designed "to create or preserve special advantages for local groups."

There has been no hint yet from Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman as to what he plans to do about the report from his Federal Milk Order Study Committee, made public May 1. Freeman said at the time that the report was so complicated that his department had not fully evaluated it.

Many of the Agriculture Department's milk marketing experts are believed to agree privately with most of the report's basic recommendations on milk pricing policy and rule-making in federal milk marketing orders. Freeman also is believed to feel personally that some reforms are needed in the fluid milk marketing system.

"But the question now is to decide whether we accept the report's recommendations. And if we accept these policies, the question then is how they're to be enforced," one department source said.

It is possible that Freeman may never announce formal acceptance of the proposed milk policies in one single gesture. Some of his advisers may favor moving quietly and undramatically, step-by-step, putting new policies into effect wherever it seems practical.

Federal milk marketing orders have been operating, with little notice from the consuming public, for more than 25 years. Under these orders, which must be accepted by two-thirds of the farmers involved before they can take effect, the federal government regulates prices paid to dairy farmers by milk plants and dealers.

There are now more than 80 orders covering most of the nation's major milksheds. Experts estimate that about two-thirds of the milk sold to consumers in fluid form is produced in marketing order areas.

The report recommending reforms in this system was produced for Freeman, after more than a year of study and debate, by a group of 18 non-government experts headed by Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of he President's Council of Economic Advisers during the Truman administration.

One bit of the committee's advice which Freeman is not likely to accept was a statement condemning the use of "supply management" controls on milk producers. Some members of the committee favored a system which would, in effect, regulate production by requiring farmers to sell excess milk at unprofitable prices. But 10 of the 18 committee members denounced this as a first step toward complete government control of the whole milk industry.

Freeman has advocated supply management controls on a nationwide basis to reduce dairy surpluses.

Aside from the supply management argument, the Nourse committee agreed that fluid milk prices in many parts of the country have gone too high.

In some areas, the committee said, this happened because powerful dairy farmer cooperatives used the marketing order price formula as a floor from which to negotiate price premiums.

In such cases, the committee advised the Agriculture Department to call public hearings to review prices. If producer groups refuse to drop their premiums, the committee said, the department could consider suspending the local marketing order. This threat to knock out the federal price floor could be a powerful weapon against balky farm groups.

A move of this kind might be fought bitterly by producer groups. During the Eisenhower administration, former Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson once announced suspension of the Philadelphia, Pa., marketing order because prices set by state order were above the federal level. Pressure from Pennsylvania political leaders forced Benson to cancel his decision.

The Nourse committee's 201-page report also called from federal action to tear down barriers erected by marketing order rules against milk from "outside" producers.

The committee said farmers in a marketing order have the right to protection against short-run "raids" by outside producers. But they have no right to permanent protection against farmers in the other areas who can undersell them in legitimate competition. The committee advised the Agriculture Department to move against market barriers by some friendly persuasion, if possible, and by threats of cancelling orders if necessary.

Present law gives the Secretary of Agriculture the right to suspend a marketing order if he decides its provisions do not carry out the purposes of the basic marketing law.

"It is apparent," the committee said, "that advantage is sometimes taken of the opportunity (under present orders) afforded local interests to devise regulations that will give them a favored position to the detriment of other producers and handlers."

Business Briefs

Offshore

NEW YORK (Special) — Texas Gas Transmission Corp. announced net income of $2,828,000 for the first quarter of 1962, which amounted after preferred dividends to 75 cents per share, up 19 cents from last year, at its annual stockholders meeting.

Texas Gas Exploration Corp. acquired a net interest of about 25 per cent in some 171,000 acres of offshore Louisiana oil and gas leases during the first quarter of 1962, stockholders were told.

The company has pending before the Federal Power Comision applications for expansion programs which would add 143 million cubic feet of daily capacity this year.

Audrey Hepburn Gets Role In 'My Fair Lady'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Audrey Hepurn was cast as Liza Doolittle Saturday in the movie version of "My Fair Lady."

Jack L. Warner, head of Warner Bros. which paid $5½ million for the rights to the famed hit musical, said he closed the deal with Miss Hepburn by telephone.

Warner is at the studio here while Miss Hepburn is at her home in Switzerland. Details of the deal were not disclosed.

The casting for the role, created on Broadway by British singer Julie Andrews, was not a surprise.

FELONY IN THE FOREST

SMOKEY talks a lot about forest fires started by carelessness. What you don't hear so much about are the forest fires that are set, on purpose, by your neighbors.

Surely, you say, nobody I know would do a thing like that! But you're wrong. One out of every four forest fires, nation-wide, is classed as INCENDIARY!

Even though the wilful forest fire problem is greatest in the South and the East, no part of the Country is free of it. You should know that the malicious woods burner robs you, wherever you live!

Do you want to help solve this serious problem? Here's what you can do:

1. Check with your local forest officers on the problem in your area.

2. Support your law enforcement officers.

3. Let your judicial and legislative servants know how you feel.

Remember—only YOU can

PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

Convict Leaves Medical Center After 29 Years

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Convict John Fisher came out of the U.S. Medical Center Saturday for the first time in 29 years.

The 81-year-old Negro prisoner, who has been serving a life term for an Oklahoma murder since 1903, went on a personally conducted five-hour tour of Springfield and the surrounding area.

It was Fisher's second ride in a motor car. The first was in 1933, when he was brought to the center from a railroad station.

The tour for the aged prisoner was the idea of Lt. Jack Johnson of the custodial staff. He got it approved by Warden Russell Settle and by the Bureau of Prisons.

Fisher was taken to the Frisco Railroad station, where he saw his first diesel engine. He then went to the municipal airport where he saw his first plane up close.

Johnson said the prisoner told him he thought Springfield has gotten too big.

Barnett Pledges Teachers Raise

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Gov. Ross Barnett said Saturday he intends to see that Mississippi school teachers get a "substantial" pay raise this year.

"I am going to put up one of the hardest fights that any governor has ever made in any state to get teacher salaries raised substantially," Barnett told United Press International. "I intend to see that it's done between now and the end of the year."

The governor said he believed that the state's economy would improve enough to finance raises of $300 or more.

"If it doesn't, I intend to see it done anyway."

He said teachers could be assured that he would do "whatever it takes" to get them a raise. If the economy fails to provide money for an increase, he said, "we could make adjustments." He said raising taxes would be a "last resort."

Barnett made his comments after the DeSoto County Teachers Association at Hernando adopted a resolution saying that teachers should strike if they are denied a raise. The House Monday passed a $130 million appropriation for schools, just enough to maintain present salaries. The representatives beat down an attempt to boost it.

On May 3 the governor said no new tax measures were needed to balance the state's budget for the 1962-64 biennium. At that time he called for legislators to stick to the budget commission recommendations in making appropriations, and he promised to veto any which exceed the commission's figures. The $130 million school appropriation was the commission's recommendation.

Barnett said he would be willing to give the teachers a raise now if the revenue was provided. "But we haven't been able to find the money," he said.

"The legislators want to go home. We can come back here in four to six months and see if we can get the job done. Then it might not be necessary to put on any new taxes.

"The teachers deserve a substantial increase, and I want them to have a hope for the future. I want them to be optimistic, because I mean business."

Mississippi teachers salaries presently are the lowest in the nation. A spokesman for the state's teachers recently said this was shaping up as the first legislative session in which teachers were denied a raise.

The DeSoto County Teachers resolution posed this question: "What will the legislators and the people do if next Sept. 1 comes and there are no teachers at the schoolhouse?"

J. H. Pritchard Succumbs; Rites Are Set Today

Funeral services will be held today at 9 a.m. for James Henry Pritchard, of 711 Grammont St., Monroe, who died Saturday morning in the Veteran's Hospital in Shreveport.

The Rev. Fred Doolittle will officiate at the services to be held in the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home. Burial will be in Graceland Cemetery in Pine Bluff, Ark., under the direction of Hixson Brothers.

Mr. Pritchard is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William Dodge, Princeton, N. J.; three brothers, B. B. and Billy Pritchard, both of Pine Bluff, and T. H. Pritchard, Montica, Calif.; and four sisters, Misses Kathline, Lorene and Dorothy Pritchard, all of Pine Bluff, and Mrs. R. N. Knox, also of Pine Bluff.

N.O. Girl Hurt In Car Mishap

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Mary Ricau, 18-year-old daughter of a New Orleans segregationist recently excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church, was in serious condition Saturday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

The girl was one of five teenagers in a car which smashed into a tree. They had just left a lakefront party about midnight when the crash occurred.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

PAY NOW LOWEST

Barnett Pledges Teachers Raise

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Gov. Ross Barnett said Saturday he intends to see that Mississippi school teachers get a "substantial" pay raise this year.

"I am going to put up one of the hardest fights that any governor has ever made in any state to get teacher salaries raised substantially," Barnett told United Press International. "I intend to see that it's done between now and the end of the year."

The governor said he believed that the state's economy would improve enough to finance raises of $300 or more.

"If it doesn't, I intend to see it done anyway."

He said teachers could be assured that he would do "whatever it takes" to get them a raise. If the economy fails to provide money for an increase, he said, "we could make adjustments." He said raising taxes would be a "last resort."

Barnett made his comments after the DeSoto County Teachers Association at Hernando adopted a resolution saying that teachers should strike if they are denied a raise. The House Monday passed a $130 million appropriation for schools, just enough to maintain present salaries. The representatives beat down an attempt to boost it.

On May 3 the governor said no new tax measures were needed to balance the state's budget for the 1962-64 biennium. At that time he called for legislators to stick to the budget commission recommendations in making appropriations, and he promised to veto any which exceed the commission's figures. The $130 million school appropriation was the commission's recommendation.

Barnett said he would be willing to give the teachers a raise now if the revenue was provided. "But we haven't been able to find the money," he said.

"The legislators want to go home. We can come back here in four to six months and see if we can get the job done. Then it might not be necessary to put on any new taxes.

"The teachers deserve a substantial increase, and I want them to have a hope for the future. I want them to be optimistic, because I mean business."

Mississippi teachers salaries presently are the lowest in the nation. A spokesman for the state's teachers recently said this was shaping up as the first legislative session in which teachers were denied a raise.

The DeSoto County Teachers resolution posed this question: "What will the legislators and the people do if next Sept. 1 comes and there are no teachers at the schoolhouse?"

Audrey Hepburn Gets Role In 'My Fair Lady'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Audrey Hepburn was cast as Liza Doolittle Saturday in the movie version of "My Fair Lady."

Jack L. Warner, head of Warner Bros. which paid $5½ million for the rights to the famed hit musical, said he closed the deal with Miss Hepburn by telephone.

Warner is at the studio here while Miss Hepburn is at her home in Switzerland. Details of the deal were not disclosed.

The casting for the role, created on Broadway by British singer Julie Andrews, was not a surprise.

Deaths

Mrs. Raspbury

HODGE (Special) — Mrs. Maggie Malone Raspbury, 81, died early Saturday morning at Lincoln General Hospital in Ruston after a month's illness.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday at United Pentecostal Church in Hodge with the Rev. Jimmy Miller officiating. Burial will be in Indian Village Cemetery near Eros under the direction of Edmonds Funeral Home of Jonesboro.

Survivors are one son, Grover C. Malone of Hodge; three daughters, Mrs. Julius Gaines of Hodge, Mrs. Lee Roy Sanders of San Angelo, Texas, and Mrs. Amy Cook of Little Rock, Ark.; one sister, Mrs. Mary Phillips of Eros; nine grandchildren and seven great - grandchildren.

The body will lie in state at the funeral home until time for services.

J. H. Pritchard Succumbs; Rites Are Set Today

Funeral services will be held today at 9 a.m. for James Henry Pritchard, of 711 Grammont St., Monroe, who died Saturday morning in the Veteran's Hospital in Shreveport.

The Rev. Fred Doolittle will officiate at the services to be held in the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home. Burial will be in Graceland Cemetery in Pine Bluff, Ark., under the direction of Hixson Brothers.

Mr. Pritchard is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William Dodge, Princeton, N. J.; three brothers, B. B. and Billy Pritchard, both of Pine Bluff, and T. H. Pritchard, Montica, Calif.; and four sisters, Misses Kathline, Lorene and Dorothy Pritchard, all of Pine Bluff, and Mrs. R. N. Knox, also of Pine Bluff.

Convict Leaves Medical Center After 29 Years

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Convict John Fisher came out of the U.S. Medical Center Saturday for the first time in 29 years.

The 81-year-old Negro prisoner, who has been serving a life term for an Oklahoma murder since 1903, went on a personally conducted five-hour tour of Springfield and the surrounding area.

It was Fisher's second ride in a motor car. The first was in 1933, when he was brought to the center from a railroad station.

The tour for the aged prisoner was the idea of Lt. Jack Johnson of the custodial staff. He got it approved by Warden Russell Settle and by the Bureau of Prisons.

Fisher was taken to the Frisco Railroad station, where he saw his first diesel engine. He then went to the municipal airport where he saw his first plane up close.

Johnson said the prisoner told him he thought Springfield has gotten too big.

N.O. Girl Hurt In Car Mishap

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Mary Ricau, 18-year-old daughter of a New Orleans segregationist recently excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church, was in serious condition Saturday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

The girl was one of five teenagers in a car which smashed into a tree. They had just left a lakefront party about midnight when the crash occurred.

FELONY IN THE FOREST

SMOKEY talks a lot about forest fires started by carelessness. What you don't hear so much about are the forest fires that are set, on purpose, by your neighbors.

Surely, you say, nobody I know would do a thing like that! But you're wrong. One out of every four forest fires, nation-wide, is classed as INCENDIARY!

Even though the wilful forest fire problem is greatest in the South and the East, no part of the Country is free of it. You should know that the malicious woods burner robs you, wherever you live!

Do you want to help solve this serious problem? Here's what you can do:

1. Check with your local forest officers on the problem in your area.
2. Support your law enforcement officers.
3. Let your judicial and legislative servants know how you feel.

Remember- only YOU can PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Student Seeks Sitter For Sick Lion

Wanted: A lion sitter. Job isn't difficult — just keep Laurie quiet and give her the milk.

This ad was placed by Ed London, a student at Penn State University. It resulted in 35 phone calls. The lion actually is a female cub named Laurie. She broke a leg and the veterinarian set the leg, put it in a cast, ordered a special diet — including a bowl of milk every hour. Treatment will take 3 to 6 weeks but London can now attend classes.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Student Seeks Sitter For Sick Lion

Wanted: A lion sitter. Inhuman difficult — must keep Laurie quiet and give her the milk.

This ad was placed by Ed London, a student at Penn State University. It resulted in 35 phone calls. The lion actually is a female cub named Laurie. She broke a leg and the veterinarian set the leg, put it in a cast, ordered a special diet — including a bowl of milk every hour. Treatment will take 3 to 6 weeks but London can now attend classes.

STEVE CANYON

by MILTON CANIFF

WHEN THE NEWS BREAKS THAT A SECRET GOVERNMENT PROJECT IS TO BE BUILT NEARBY, THE POPULATION OF THE TOWN OF HODAG IS ELECTRIFIED, GRATIFIED -- OR HORRIFIED, DEPENDING UPON WHO'S DOING THE REACTING

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PROPERTY — NO TRESPASSING

IF THAT'S TO BE AN AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION, IT WOULDN'T BE CLASSIFIED! MUST BE A DEFENSE PROJECT!

I SHOULDN'T BE THINKING THIS WAY, BUT I COULD HAVE DOUBLED THE PRICE IF I HAD KNOWN!

WHATEVER THE GOVERNMENT IS GOING TO BUILD, IT WILL LURE A RAFT OF UNDESIRABLE, TEMPORARY PEOPLE TO HODAG...

BUT THEY'LL ALSO BRING A WHOPPING BIG PAYROLL WITH THEM!...

IF IT IS A DEFENSE PLANT, THERE WILL BE AN INFLUX OF REALLY VULGAR MONEY...

BUT THINK OF THE NEW SOULS WHICH MAY NEED SAVING

THE OLD TOWN NEEDS SUCH A BOOST AS A NEW PLANT... WISH I HAD SOME REAL DETAILS...

WE'LL GET AN INCREASE IN JOB PRINTING! WHY, WE MIGHT EVEN HAVE TO GO TO DAILY PUBLICATION!

A GOVERNMENT PLANT WOULD MEAN ALL KINDS OF ROUGH CHARACTERS AROUND! MATILDA WOULDN'T BE SAFE ON THE STREETS...

MAYBE SOME LONELY WORKMAN WILL COME TO TOWN - AND MARRY POOR TILLIE!

ALREADY, VARIOUS INDUSTRIES ARE PREPARING FOR THE INFLUX OF NEW PEOPLE

CHIMP, EASE OVER TO HODAG AND CASE THE TOWN FOR A PLACE TO SET UP A WHEEL...

I'LL TAKE CARE OF THE GREASE JOB IN THE TOWN HALL

ABOUT THE ONLY ADULT IN TOWN WHO HASN'T BROODED OVER THE BIG EVENT IS THE WIDOW LIFFY — WHO HAS OTHER PROBLEMS...

INTO THIS ELECTRIC ATMOSPHERE FLIES COL. STEVE CANYON...TROUBLE-SHOOTING FOR THE REGULARLY-ASSIGNED OFFICER ON THE PROJECT. HIS SMALL PLANE LANDS ON THE LOCAL AIRSTRIP...

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I have found that I can gently wash my own knit dress and do a pretty good job of stretching it by using my breakfast room table or kitchen drainboard and a milk bottle.

First I wash the dress in a mild detergent. I then rinse it well in a water softener. I find that this is a necessity. It makes the threads shine and gives it body besides removing any soap film.

I then put it on my Formica drainboard or breakfast room table and roll it with a milk bottle. Rolling it flat with a bottle seems to "set" all the little threads and takes the "spring" out of the seat.

By doing this myself, I find that I can have a cleaner dress as it can be washed often . . . which adds to the life of the garment.

— Mildred Kauffman

WALLPAPER

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who paper their own walls. We have found that rolling the paper on the ceiling with a paint roller is "the thing".

This makes it smooth and leaves no wrinkles and it doesn't tear as easily.

— Charlotte Magnuson

BUREAU DRAWERS

DEAR HELOISE:
Summer and winter. Two entirely different seasons. Stuck bureau drawers come with both. After 15 years, I've found a pretty good solution.

I use any old wax, such as a candle or the paraffin from the top of a glass of jelly and rub on the sides or runners of the drawers wherever they stick.

Another solution: waxed bread wrappers. These seem to be heavily coated with wax. Lay the bread wrapper on the runner or the side of the drawer and open and close the drawer until the wax is gone from the paper.

—Devotee

DEAR GALS:
Beware of putting ammonia in your mop water! We have found that this solution has broken down many bindings on asphalt tile. It won't be noticed until you remove all those coats and coats of wax . . . then your floor will be like sand paper. Messy, messy, messy!

—Heloise

EXTRA SHELVES

DEAR HELOISE:
If you are like me . . . I find that I never have enough shelf space. So I installed those dime-store glass shelves in my cabinets. I placed them midway between each wooden shelf.

I find that this takes care of all those little odds and ends that accumulate on each shelf and are always being knocked over.

— Reader

OIL WOOD

DEAR HELOISE:
An inexpensive scratch remover for natural wood cabinets and woodwork is mineral oil. This blends into the wood and assumes its shade as well as polishing the wood at the same time.

— Pann Michaelsen

DEAR HELOISE:
I have had much success getting the yellow out of treated white cotton shirts by using color removers that come in boxes.

Follow directions on the box, using only enough for one shirt at a time. One package will whiten four to five shirts, depending on the size. This works on dacron and cotton.

— Trudy

NO MESS MEALS

DEAR HELOISE:
I have met several mothers who do not permit their children to feed themselves because of the inevitable mess they create.

As soon as my children were old enough to express the desire to feed themselves, I immediately supplied them with an adult spoon, bowl and some dry cereal. They loved it.

This dry, no-mess method taught them dexterity, usage of adult utensils and, of course, the thrill of accomplishment at an early age. When they finished eating, all I had to do was vacuum up the dry mess. — Lynn Reynolds

PERK IT UP

DEAR HELOISE:
When I make starch for dark garments, I find that the starch will leave no white streaks if I color it with coffee. I think people should be told to remember this next time they starch their black linen dresses!

— Betty

NEW BIBS FOR KIDS

DEAR HELOISE:
For the kids who hate to wear bibs and aprons at home or school when eating or painting. . . .

Cut the collar and sleeves out of dad's old white shirts. This will look sorta like an artist's smock. Put the shirt on the child backwards so the buttons will be in the back. No little boy seems to mind this much . . . when it's Dad's! It covers completely.

—J. C. Mullery

DEAR HELOISE:
Having trouble drying your crinoline petticoats? Just put them over an open umbrella! Great!

—Mrs. M.V.

INSIDE OUT IRONING

DEAR HELOISE:
Some of my coffee-drinking friends think I am a lunatic the first time they see me ironing slacks, boxer shorts, pajama pants and the like. But invariably they go home converted to my system.

Pull one leg down inside of the other leg. This will look like a half-pair of pants. Iron on the wrong side. Back darts, etc., won't mark the pants because they will be together. Open to finish.

—D.D.

CLEAN GRAVY PANS

DEAR HELOISE:
When broiling a steak, line the shallow roasting pan with aluminum foil and it will make a nice brown gravy and save washing and scouring the pan.

—Mrs. Raymond Tuade

MERINGUE BLUES

THE CORRECT WAY to keep the meringue from weeping on a pie is to turn off the oven after the topping is through browning, open the oven door and leave it open.

Let the pie cool inside the oven and it will not weep at all. It's the shock of the change of intense heat to the cool temperature outside the oven that causes weeping.
